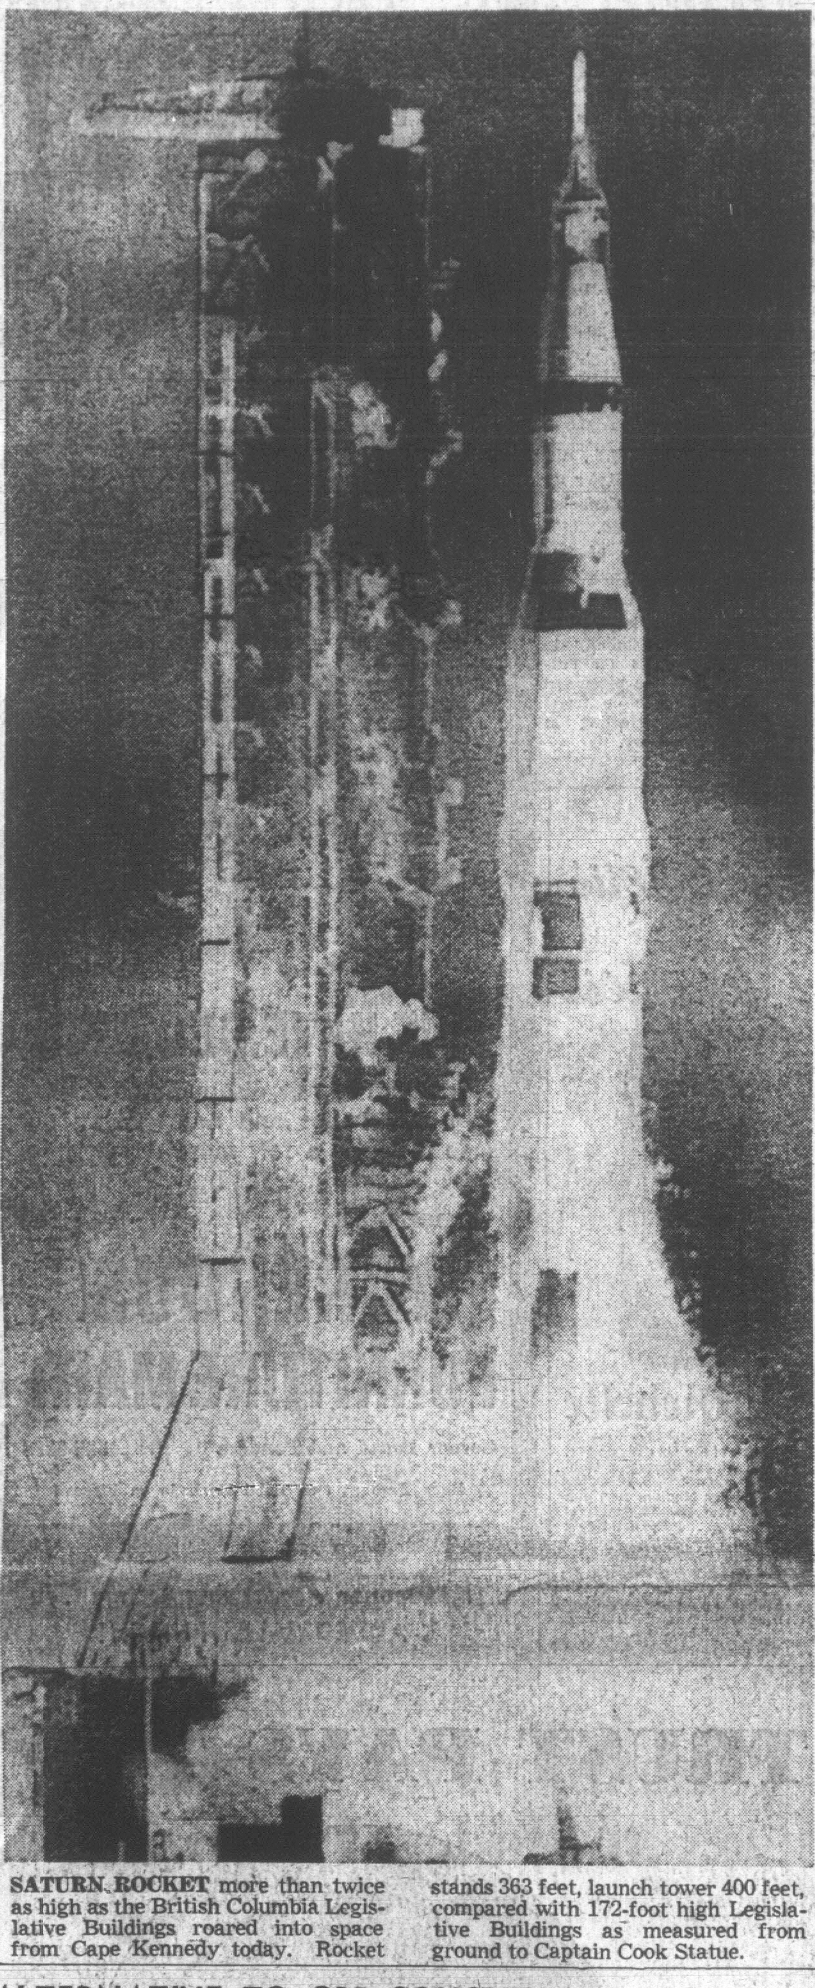
World's Largest Rocket Completes Space Trial



SATURN ROCKET more than twice as high as the British Columbia Legislative Buildings roared into space from Cape Kennedy today. Rocket stands 363 feet, launch tower 400 feet, compared with 172-foot high Legislative Buildings as measured from ground to Captain Cook Statue.

First Saturn Flight Perfect

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—The Apollo IV spacecraft completed its maiden flight and splashed down in "bullseye" style some six miles from the carrier, floating upright "in a stable, normal attitude". Frogmen plunged into the water from a helicopter to attach floatation gear.

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Saturn V super-rocket scored a resounding success on its maiden test flight today, orbiting a record 140-ton space vehicle and shooting an unmanned Appollo IV moonship deep into space.

The historic flight gave the U.S. man-in-space program a much-needed shot in the arm and revived hopes that U.S. astronauts still can land on the moon in this decade.

With a thundering burst of power, the powerful rocket blasted away from its launch pad at 7 a.m. EST (4 a.m. PST) after a perfect countdown.

The three stages of the monster Saturn V ignited with drill-like precision during an 11-minute boost phase and shoved the massive payload, including the still-attached third stage, into orbit 115 miles high.

Three hours later, after two orbits of the earth, the hydrogen-powered third stage re-started its engine on ground command and propelled the 64,000-pound Apollo 4 vehicle outward toward a high point of 11,400 miles.

The re-ignition of the third stage gave flight controllers their first anxious moments of the mission. A vent valve refused to close until the last moment.

The spacecraft separated from the stage and a motor on board fired for 15 seconds to provide final power to reach the planned altitude. Had it burned a few seconds longer, Apollo 4 could have gone to the moon, but that was not planned for today's flight because of the need to test the heat shield on re-entry.

Fiery Dive at 25,000 m.p.h.

After reaching the 11,400-mile altitude, the spacecraft was to plunge back through the atmosphere at nearly 25,000 miles an hour—the speed at which astronauts will return from the moon. The fiery dive would determine how well the heat shield survives re-entry temperatures expected to reach 4,500 degrees.

Apollo 4 was to parachute to a landing in a rough Pacific Ocean, 622 miles northwest of Hawaii, at 12:37 p.m. PST.

An hour after the world's most powerful rocket blazed away from Cape Kennedy the Apollo program manager, Maj.-Gen. Samuel Phillips told reporters:

"This mission will do a lot to get the whole Apollo team moving again on a positive course. It will do a lot for the progress in coming months of the Apollo program.

"Yesterday, I would have said that I think we have a reasonably good chance of accomplishing a manned lunar landing by the end of 1969. Today, I think that reasonably good chance is maybe a notch above reasonably good."

The Apollo moon program has been lagging since three astronauts died in a spacecraft fire last January, on a pad not far from where the Saturn V started its flight.

Phillips described the early phase of the flight as perfect. He said the three stages of the powerful booster performed "right on the money" that the orbiting vehicle was working fine.

He reported a cheer went up in the launch control centre when the Saturn V broke its earthly ties and rumbled into the sky on a massive tower of

ANNOUNCING AGREEMENT with Chrysler Corporation in Detroit Wednesday night is Walter Reuther (right), president of United Auto Workers, as Chrysler director Douglas Fraser listens. Workers have yet to ratify terms worked out by negotiating teams. (AP Wirephoto.)

Car Men Win Parity With U.S. Wage Rate

DETROIT (UPI) — A tentative contract accepted by the United Auto Workers and Chrysler Corporation Wednesday night gives Chrysler workers three pace-setting improvements.

They are equal pay for Canadian Chrysler workers, restored pension credits for workers laid off during Chrysler's lean years of the late 1950s and the early 1960s and retroactive pay raises for all blue collar workers.

The union wanted Candian parity to eliminate the temptation among the auto makers to expand parts and assembly operations across the border to take advantage of lower pay in Canada.

Under the agreement, Canadian Chrysler workers will receive five scaled increases that will bring their pay in line with that of Chrysler workers in the United States in 2½ years.

However, U.S. workers will still make about seven cents per dollar more after the time span because of the difference in the currency exchange rate between the two nations.

INFLATION

Canadian officials have expressed concern over the inflationary impact of parity on top of the historic increases won by the UAW. But observers say the impact will be blunted by the 2 years it will take for parity to be fully implemented.

UAW president Walter P. Reuther called the "retroactivity" clause "precedent setting in a major industry."

As soon as the agreement is ratified and local issues are smoothed over, assembly line workers will receive 20 cents an hour and skilled workers will get 50 cents hourly retroactive to Oct. 16.

Based on a 40-hour work week and assuming the contract is ratified by the end of next week, assembly line workers will get a Christmas time windfall of $40 and skilled tradesmen will receive about $100 in back pay.

SENIORITY

Chrysler experienced the most lucrative October for sales in its history last month, but Reuther reminded the company of the dog days of the late 1950s and early 1960s when "there were plants where it required 26 years seniority to hold a job."

The workers who were laid off during Chrysler's "depression years" lost not only salaries, but credits toward their pensions.

The new contract will give those workers pension credits for the time they were laid off.

The three measures, along with the guaranteed annual income worked out with Ford, will give Reuther a good start on

Two-Rail Port Link Only Hurdle to Pact

By JOHN MIKA
Times Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO—Complex negotiations towards a huge rail-ship export contract for Fernie coal seem to be highballing towards a successful conclusion but conflicting signals flashed here today warning of a potential head-on collision.

B.C. pointed the finger at Ottawa as the chief danger but a spokesman for the mammoth Kaiser Steel Corporation obliquely hinted the company is worried the provincial government may push the de-rail button.

The differences appeared in separate interviews of Commercial Transport Minister Robert Bonner and Albert P. Heiner, vice-president in charge of public relations and traffic for Kaiser.

The two men met for several hours Wednesday to discuss Kaiser's progress in negotiating a deal to mine and ship at least 45 million tons of Fernie coal to Japan and another seven million tons to California over the next 15 years.

Mr. Bonner told reporters Wednesday evening that a "rigid and unimaginative" insistence by the federal government that the coal move over an all-Canadian rail route to the proposed Roberts Bank superport could undermine the deal.

Mr. Bonner said B.C. still intends to stay in the picture with its $25 million plan to build a super-port but will delay final decision to wait for an official contact from the federal government outlining its $50 million plan as proposed by Transport Minister Hellyer.

He said everything now depends on Ottawa agreeing to a "two-rail link to the ocean" which would allow the Great Northern Railway to freight Fernie coal to Roberts Bank through the U.S. as an alternative to the Canadian Pacific Railway.

But this morning Mr. Heiner indicated that Kaiser feels the two-rail link proposition is vir-

Heater Fire Cause

RAINBOW LAKE, Alta. (CP) —RCMP said Wednesday a heater apparently caused a fire Tuesday which destroyed 41 trailers in a nearby camp and left about 200 men to find substitute accommodation elsewhere in this oil boom town, 400 miles northwest of Edmonton.

SALERNO, Italy (AP)—The Milan-to-Palermo express tore through a wandering herd of buffalo and then into a derailed commuter train today, and at least 14 passengers were killed and about 70 injured.

China Plans N-Test

TAIPEI (UPI) — Nationalist Chinese intelligence sources said today Communist China is planning to carry out a missile-borne nuclear test "at any time." The sources said the test, the first involving a true guided missile, probably would be timed to coincide with the United Nations debate this winter on the admission of China.

Curfews Requested

HONG KONG (AP) — Hong Kong officials asked night-time businesses today to institute voluntary curfews to clear the streets while police go after terrorist bombers who have killed one policeman and wounded 66 persons since Sunday night.

Cardinal Resigns To Be Missionary

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger, one of the leading progressives in the Roman Catholic hierarchy, has resigned as archbishop of Montreal to do missionary work among lepers in foreign lands.

The announcement by the Vatican today caused some surprise in church circles, since Cardinal Leger at 63 is 12 years below the retirement age for diocesan prelates and his post is an important one.

But Cardinal Leger for a long time has been urging Pope Paul to release him from his post. It was believed the Pope's decision to accept his resignation was delayed until after the bishops' synod last month.

The resignation does not affect the Montreal prelate's lifetime membership in the College of Cardinals.

The cardinal has made frequent trips to leper colonies in Africa.

Vatican experts speculated that the cardinal, instead of becoming a simple chaplain at a colony, might act as leader of the Church's work for lepers by travelling, organizing and raising money.

Another North American cardinal, Richard Cushing, Archbishop of Boston, also has long desired to leave his post to work in Latin America.

But Cardinal Cushing is 72 and in frail health, and the Pope has not given approval.

Cardinal Leger was named archbishop of Montreal by Pope Pius XII in 1950. He was invested as a cardinal in Rome in 1953.

Red Cross Kept Woman From 'Something Terrible'

By TED GASKELL

"I think I would have done something terrible to myself if I had not had the help of the Red Cross to see me through a trying time."

That was the comment of a mother who, because of her emotional state, couldn't look after her family and was assisted by the Homemaker Service, one of the many agencies within the Red Cross Society here.

This year Red Cross is a partner with Red Feather in the United Appeal for $600,000. Red Cross Quota is $85,000.

The Homemaker Service deals with all manner of cases and the numbers are increasing. In 1965 it undertook 648 cases. Last year this had increased to 832.

The homemakers worked more than 54,000 hours last year.

OTHER CASES

There's a "special service" available for senior citizens who can't look after themselves. In some cases people pay their own Homemakers Services fees, the Red Cross assists some and in other cases the welfare agencies foot the bills.

But the service has more value than just providing people who look after household chores.

One elderly lady felt she got value just from the presence of the homemaker. "It's not very nice to be old and alone. But having the Red Cross lady coming gives me something to look forward to. I feel much more cheerful when she's here."

One of the tougher cases the service recalls is that in which a whole family was sick and two workers, both innoculated, were assigned to the home. They worked two eight-hour shifts, used the trolley supplied by the Red Cross Loan Cupboard and served meals to the large family for nearly six weeks until the adults and older children were well and able to manage for themselves.

Another family with the mother in hospital, and the father unable to look after the two children, had a homemaker live-in for nine days.

The Red Cross paid one third of the cost of having a homemaker spent five hours a day for two years helping a multiple sclerosis victim, the mother of three children.

Some people are able to pay for the homemaker service but many are not.

DEBATE UNDER WAY

Capital Punishment Grabs House Spotlight

By ALEXANDER FARELL

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons became the scene today of another attempt to move towards the end of capital punishment in Canada.

Debate was scheduled to begin on a government bill that would abolish the death penalty for a five-year trial period, except for murderers of policemen and prison guards.

A controversial broadcasting bill was given second reading—approval in principle—in the Commons Wednesday and on motion of its sponsor, State Secretary Judy LaMarsh, was promptly referred to the Commons broadcasting committee for study in detail.

The bill to revise broadcasting regulations and set up a new regulatory body in place of the Board of Broadcast Governors got second reading without a formal vote after a Conservative amendment was beaten 118 to 66.

Thus ended five days of hot debate fuelled by Miss LaMarsh's claim in a television interview Nov. 1 that the CBC suffers in many places from "rotten management." The opposition spent a good deal of time trying to get her to be more specific. Some opposition members supported her general contention, others accused her of smearing the entire CBC administration by implication.

TO HAVE WIDER POWERS

The new agency proposed in the bill, the Canadian Radio Commission, would have wider powers than the BBG.

For one thing, it would be able to set different terms for the operation of each radio or TV station, including those of the CBC.

The amendment, proposed by M. T. McCutcheon (PC—Lambton-Kent), would have sent the bill to committee before second reading, virtually killing it. Only 65 Conservatives and Maurice Allard (Ind—Sherbrooke) voted for it.

Repercussions were felt in the Commons from a demonstration Tuesday night outside the Soviet Embassy, where bottles, rocks and other objects were thrown during a diplomatic reception marking the 50th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

External Affairs Minister Martin said that Ottawa police took inadequate steps to deal with the demonstration.

He regrets this inadequacy, he said in reply to Terry Nugent (PC — Edmonton - Strathcona), who described the demonstration as "shameful lawlessness."

Mr. Martin said he has directed that steps be taken to compensate the Soviet government and repair damage.

Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons he will be glad to consider a proposal by T. C. Douglas, New Democrat leader, that a special committee study the laws regarding homosexuality.

Mr. Douglas recalled that the Supreme Court of Canada upheld this week an indefinite prison sentence against a man who admitted homosexual relations with other consenting adults.

He said most authorities, however, now "are agreed that homosexuality is a social and psychiatric problem rather than a criminal one."

The broadcasting and capital-punishment bills are two of the biggest items on the legislative program the government hopes to complete before Christmas. Capital punishment will be the subject of a free vote, meaning that the government itself is taking no position on it and the outcome therefore cannot signify either victory or defeat for the government.

The bill to ban hanging temporarily and conditionally was introduced by Solicitor-General Pennell Oct. 19, when it got automatic first reading.

During the five-year trial period envisaged by the bill, no person serving a life sentence for murder could be released without cabinet approval.

The death penalty now is imposed for capital murder and certain cases of treason and piracy.

DEBATED LAST YEAR

The last time the Commons debated the subject, in April, 1966, a private member's bill to do away with death penalty was beaten 143 to 112.

Mr. Cowan criticized the cabinet for treating private MPs as "dumb bunnies" by not acquainting them with the content of legislation before it is brought into the Commons.

Bill in Senate

OTTAWA (CP)—The minister of defence production would be permitted to sign defence contracts without any limitation on size and without cabinet approval under the terms of a bill introduced in the Senate on Tuesday.

PRESS KILLING HIPPIES?

OTTAWA (CP)—The hippie movement is dying and many hippies are returning to "square society," David Depoe, spokesman for the Yorkville hippies, said Wednesday.

The Company of Young Canadians volunteer said "hippies were created, built up and are now in the process of being killed by the press".

The movement is splitting in three directions with members moving to farms, becoming politically and socially active or rejoining square society, Mr. DePoe, 23, said.

He participated in a panel discussion sponsored by an Ottawa synagogue.

MIDDLE EAST STILL SNARLED

Direct Talks Best Plan, Israel Tells UN Council

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The UN Security Council is making a new attempt to break the Middle East deadlock despite signs of hardening positions by both Israel and Egypt.

Egypt requested a meeting of the 15-nation council this afternoon to deal with Israel's refusal to withdraw from territory it seized during the June war. A government spokesman told a press conference in Cairo there could be no move toward a settlement until Jewish forces pull back.

In New York, Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said Egypt's demand that Israel withdraw without a peace treaty defining frontiers "is so irrational that it is amazing to find it proposed."

Eban said that, because of its provisions for withdrawal an Indian resolution aimed at promoting a settlement is unacceptable. He criticized a rival U.S. draft, contending it did not give enough stress to Israel's insistence on direct negotiations with the Arab states.

The Israeli foreign minister also found fault with a Japanese working paper circulating among council members. He said that, like the Indian resolution, it prejudices Israel's position on withdrawal.

Eban concentrated his fire on the proposal submitted by India, Mali and Nigeria. He charged that it had been drawn up "in close consultation at every point" with Egypt, but without consultation with Israel.

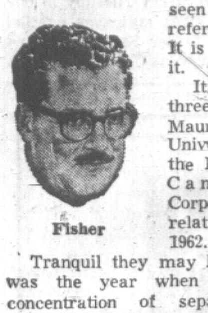
Prof. Seguin's 'History' Of Quebec Separatism

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

There is a document in circulation which purports to be a history and justification of separatism for Quebec, and to which we have seen and heard several references in recent weeks. It is instructive to examine it.



Fisher

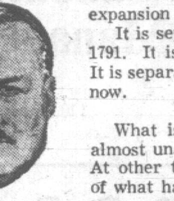
It originated as a set of three talks by Professor Maurice Seguin of the University of Montreal on the French network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation back in the relatively tranquil days of 1962.

Tranquil they may have seemed, but that was the year when the French network concentration of separatists and crypto-separatists first came to public attention.

The title of the original broadcasts, preserved in a translation by the Department of History at the University of Waterloo, was Origin and Historical Record of The Separatist Idea In French Canada.

An abridged version, now circulating in Quebec, seems to have originated with a publication, no longer in existence, called Parti Pris.

In three radio talks the whole of the history of the French Canadian people on this continent is presented as the history of their pursuit of separatism.



Crowe

First of all, let us say that the narrative style of Prof. Seguin is such that it is usually difficult, and often impossible, to be sure whether he is expressing views of his own or is merely reproducing the ideas of "leading groups" or ideas held by the "whole nation."

However, this is the style which is typical of almost all nationalist and separatist writers in Quebec.

In this connection, we recently heard a French Canadian lawyer say that it would be extremely difficult to get any of them on a treason charge. The utterance could be descriptive and reportorial and not assertive and personal.

This brought to mind the thought that we have never heard an English-speaking Canadian raise, except perhaps as a jest, the possibility that treason is involved in the proposal to disrupt the country and make off with much of its real estate and resources.

How long would a Pierre Bourgault or a Rap Brown last as a free agent advocating separatism or violence, in France, Turkey, Russia, Iceland, Ghana or North Vietnam?

This is a curious and wonderful continent. And on this point it is worth noting that with many English-speaking Canadians an unconstrained sympathy for the Rap Browns in the United States is matched by a quite illiberal attitude toward French Canadians.

Back to Prof. Seguin, who says: "The present-day separatists, as they progressively clarify their doctrine, do put into French Canadian minds the idea of the necessity for independence in the political field first of all.

"In this, they do the greatest service to French Canadians, that of exposing the falsity of . . . that grand old myth of an equality being possible between the two nationalities or of the possibility for French Canadians to be masters in a Quebec which would remain inside the Confederation."

That, fairly clearly, is the speaker's own opinion. So is the concluding thought of the last address, "Our masters, the English, would not be worthy of having been our masters for two centuries if they allowed themselves to be easily overthrown."

But what about all the rest of it, from the conquest down to the 1960s?

It would be very discouraging to think that these pages which are presented as the "historical record" were the interpretation of our history by Prof. Seguin and not just what some French Canadians, at different times, and to suit their contemporary purposes, found it convenient to say was their views of history.

Much of it is not history at all. Polemics on fiction would be the corner of the library for it. And yet the skeleton of it is familiar.

The ground is that old field in which students in our schools are bored to tears—the Quebec Act of 1774, the Constitutional Act of 1791, rebellion and Durham, the Act of Union 1840-41 and deadlock, Confederation and expansion and autonomy.

It is separatism in 1774. It is separatism in 1791. It is separatism with the rebels of 1837. It is separatism with Bourassa. It is separatism now.

What is separatism? Sometimes it is the almost unanimous collective will of the people. At other times it is the correct interpretation of what happened, however dimly it may have been appreciated at the time.

Always it is "them" and "us." There is no concept of Canada as a nation state or as a nation.

The Act of Union of 1840, in operation in 1841, becomes the supreme tragedy in French Canadian history because it ended the "independence" of Quebec and committed it to an arrangement in which the "British" would have a majority.

Prof. Seguin quotes a nationalist on Papineau's uprising:

"One thing is certain. It was the senseless revolt of Papineau which brought us infinitely more harm than good. It led to the union of the two Canadas, which led us fatally to Confederation.

"Without the criminal uprising of our so-called patriots, Lower Canada would probably not have been united to Upper Canada, and today, as a British colony but not part of the Dominion, French Canada would be on the way to complete autonomy. Without 1837 there would now be a French Canada completely independent from English Canada." And that was said before 1900.

However, the polemics are as good as the history is bad. We have already heard some of these and shall be hearing more:

"To be a minority people in a federation is to be an annexed people."

And there are a number of subtle touches: "One can almost admire Cartier . . ."; Henri Bourassa, "the man from Ottawa"; and Quebec, "the best cared for annexed nation in the world."

One can almost admire Prof. Seguin.

Leave Hatreds Outside

By ART STOTT

In our more optimistic moods, a lot of us picture Canada today as a mosaic more brightly colored by the addition of traditions and cultures brought to the country by immigrants who have chosen this land as a place in which to set down roots. We assume, and for the most part correctly, I believe, that those who have sought sanctuary or greater opportunity here wish, in the first place, to become Canadians, but not to lose all the characteristics which have been nationally significant in their own lands.

Stott

In the process, we tend to overlook the facts that immigrants, being human, bring to us not only the arts and bright aspects of their backgrounds, but some of the prejudices and hates of long or short standing.

A few, a relative handful, splashed that fact in our faces on Tuesday with the red paint they splattered on the steps of the Russian Embassy in Ottawa. They chose this form of behavior, unacceptable in my opinion to the spirit of Canada, to demonstrate their animosity to Russia on that country's celebration of the revolution 50 years ago.

Canadian anger at the display, where such anger exists, must be tempered by a realization that animosities springing from experience in their homelands do not die easily even when the individual has left home. At the some time, it is saddening to Canadians that the Canadian tolerance which accepts all shades of opinion should thus be abused by people who enjoy that tolerance.

As I understand our position, we grant to anti-Communists in this country the right to be anti-Communist, just as we permit pro-Communists to be pro-Communist, provided that violence is not done to our national concepts.

It seems to me that violence was done to these concepts in Ottawa on Tuesday. We, as a nation, are shamed by the actions of some whom we welcomed to our shores. We are particularly shamed since the people whom we chose to represent us considered the reception at the Soviet Embassy an occasion in which they should participate as guests of the Russian host.

The incident seems the more regrettable because, apart from the conventional parade of armaments in Moscow—a format which the Russians seem unable to break—most of the material I have read or seen on the 50th birthday of the new Russia has been devoted to a study of the people, not of the ideological conflict which persists between East and West.

In newspaper and magazine articles, on television and in speeches we have been reminded that Russians are human beings, have aspirations that are human, disagree with us on the manner in which some of those aspirations should be pursued, but nevertheless strive for the better life in terms universally understandable.

This, apparently, is a line of thought alien to the placard carriers, rock-and-egg throwers and paint smearers who performed at the Embassy.

Quite conceivably, if there were an embassy representing the antithesis of Russian ideology, and if it held a reception, there would be a fringe group in the country ready to carry placards, throw eggs and rocks and smear paint on its quarters during the celebration of such an embassy's national event. No set of extremists has a monopoly on such behavior.

Accepting this, it still seems to me that some quiet effort should be made to let such demonstrators understand very clearly that they are showing very little appreciation for their reception into Canada by such activities.

At the same time, we, as Canadians, might give thought to failure on our part to instil Canadianism into some of our new settlers. We shouldn't just tut-tut the proceedings and tell the demonstrators that they are showing bad form. We ought to let them know that they are expected to doff old nationalistic hatreds, like dirty boots, before coming in.

Has Balance of Terror Shifted From the U.S. to Russia?

By GEORGE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON — The Soviets' new orbital rocket confronts the United States with a whole new set of military problems because it is the first weapon to take the high ground of outer space.

The Fractional Orbital Bombardment System (FOBS) which the Soviets are testing need not pass Pentagon cost-effectiveness tests to fulfill its mission.

FOBS, according to the experts, is not supposed to be a better ICBM, but a terror weapon. This makes the belittling of it by Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara almost beside the point—even if he is right.

The psychological impact of a hydrogen bomb whirling over the United States with the release button in the Kremlin cannot be ignored by the Johnson administration.

The anti-ballistic-missile debate, if nothing else, showed that the lawmakers are going to insist on buying some kind of life insurance against super-weapons for their constituents.

The McNamara argument that the U.S. is already naked against a massive ICBM attack, so why worry about FOBS, ignores the fact that many lawmakers regard the anti-Chinese ABM as the first step toward a Soviet one.

Same Ground

Already, congressional reaction to FOBS shows that the U.S. must find a way to reach the same high ground taken by the Soviets.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D.—Wash.), for example, said in an interview that the Russian orbital rocket "has opened up a whole new dimension of problems."

He said the U.S., as a starter, would have to speed development of anti-satellite weapons and build a lot more detection radar. He has opened public hearings to explore these questions with administration witnesses.

Republicans in Congress already are making an issue out of McNamara's statement that "I'm not concerned" about FOBS. Rep. William L. Dickinson (R.—Ala.) said in a telegram to President Johnson that McNamara should be fired for such unconcern.

What will make congressional criticism hard to combat, even in closed hearings, is that the Pentagon has little working hardware to point to in the way of FOBS counter-weapons.

McNamara in confirming that the Soviets have been testing orbital rockets said that the U.S. had a new detection radar, but it is limited.

Just Started

True, over-the-horizon radar has been under development for years. But the type which really gives meaningful information about Soviet launches hidden from existing radar and spy satellites has only begun to operate.

Also the U.S. has no foolproof system for intercepting and inspecting a foreign satellite to see if a bomb is inside. Weapons in hand for knocking down a hostile satellite also have limited effectiveness.

Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, in testifying before the Senate foreign relations committee this spring on the treaty to ban weapons in outer space said the chiefs "remain concerned about the assured verification capability with regards to weapons in orbit. The deployment of prohibited orbital vehicles could have serious implications, especially if it enabled an enemy to launch an effective surprise attack against our command and control facilities and military forces.

"Weapons in orbit," Wheeler continued, "could become a matter of grave consequence, particularly when utilized in conjunction with other strategic systems . . . This threat can be answered only through intensified U.S. effort to develop capabilities to detect and verify the orbiting of nuclear weapons or those threatening mass destruction.

MIRV is the technique of dividing a big bomb into a bunch of little ones and then sending each of them to a different target. Some military leaders fear the Soviets put a MIRV warhead on their orbital rocket.

Jackson said using MIRV with FOBS would make bombs "come down like Roman candles." Even without MIRV, he argued, FOBS "represents a qualitative jump in their strategic weapons capability." The U.S., he said, needs "more and improved defences" against FOBS.

What the Soviets have done by testing an orbital weapons system is to undercut McNamara's "Peter at the dike" effort to hold back the arms race. The tests come at the time he appeared to be making real progress in selling the American public and allies on the folly of building a bigger mountain of nuclear weapons or a thick missile defence.

During hearings last April on the outer space treaty, Pentagon leaders said the United States was prepared to rely on its ability to detect "bombs in orbit." Deputy Defence Secretary Cyrus R. Vance and Gen. Wheeler, agreed that "one or two or some very small number of weapons" could "be clandestinely orbited without being identified."

But "to be militarily significant," said Vance, "a large number of weapons would have to be deployed, and this would certainly be detected."

When asked how many "would give us concern?" Vance replied that was difficult to answer, but "if I saw ten or more I would certainly be concerned."

Hope Fades for Chiang As China Settles Down

By DENNIS BLOODWORTH

SINGAPORE—Stranded by the receding tide of history more than 100 miles from home, President Chiang Kai-shek celebrated his 80th birthday in Formosa, disturbed by signs that the bright promise of the Communist "Cultural Revolution" in China was betrayed.

Almost at the brink of ruin and disintegration (as he saw it) his enemies in Peking were braking hard.

Proletarian masses, who had earlier been incited to smash the existing "revisionist" party and administrative musculature on which the articulation of the State depended, were now being urged to form "grand alliances" with the bureaucrats they had earlier humiliated.

Peking's back-handed birthday gift to the president of Nationalist China was the report of a speech by Hsieh Fu-chih, Communist minister for public security, who stressed that even the ideological arch-villain, President Liu Shao-chi, and all others on the distinguished short-list of disgraced "revisionist" leaders, should not be imprisoned or shot, but reclaimed through Mao Tse-tung's formula of "unity, criticism, unity."

Still Active

Neat and nut-brown, the octogenarian Generalissimo of exiled China is still the active supreme commander, and promulgates all vital decisions from his hideous brick palace in Taipeh.

Ramrod straight in his creaseless uniform, it is as if he were already cast in his own charisma. But he lives—and in a world of paradoxes.

Mao took China away from him, but today he must wish Mao success. For he sees the Communist chairman as a senile visionary six years his junior, whose dream of a classless society, translated into a policy of putting revolution before rice-bowls, repels the outside world and could plunge China into the ultimate chaos of a civil war which would give Chiang's own Kuomintang Nationalists their great chance to "recover the mainland."

Conversely, hope fades as the turmoil threatens to subside, and moderates like Premier Chou En-lai become Chiang's most dangerous opponents. For they are capable not only of restoring Communist China's unity, peace and productivity, but also of ending her vulnerable isolation by making it up with Moscow.

The thought saddens Taipeh. For at present the Maoists alienate Moscow, and meanwhile the world's two super powers—the Soviet Union and the United States—are being drawn towards peaceful co-existence because the alternative is a ruinous exercise in nuclear isometrics.

To Chiang Kai-shek, whose first faltering footsteps in dictatorship were guided by Russian advisers, a tacit understanding between the Soviet Union and Formosa is not inconceivable.

It could serve both Chiang's ambition to invade the South and a Russian urge to see friendly anti-Maoists chip off from Peking their own provincial fiefs along the Sino-Soviet border in the North. There are no signs of this yet, for the Russians, like the Americans, look upon China today as an unstable explosive with which it would be madness to meddle.

Many observers, nevertheless, believe that the odds on a rapprochement will shorten if Chiang dies. The constitutional successor of the Generalissimo will be Vice-President C. K. Yen, but Chiang Ching-kuo, eldest son of the "Gimo" will hold the real power.

In his late fifties, Ching-kuo is a velvet hand in an iron glove. Short, unpretentious, a man of simple tastes but not vices, Ching-kuo is national defence minister and master of Formosa's 600,000-strong armed forces, of the secret police and their notorious "thought reform" camp, and of the 100,000-strong National Salvation Youth Corps, whose members act as political spies, are organized in cells, and practise self-criticism like their Communist cousins.

Formosa's future strongman is an advocate of the police state and of the concentration of political power, and points out that with these weapons Stalin was able to hack a strong Soviet Union out of the amorphous mass of Russia.

Lived in Russia

Ching-kuo spent 12 years in the U.S.S.R. until 1937, joining the Komsomols and then the Red Army, and marrying a Russian wife. Some neutral Chinese believe that the Russians could slip far more easily into a modus vivendi with him than they could with Mao.

However, the arbiters of the Kuomintang's destiny remain the Americans, who are pledged to defend Formosa, but who have stipulated that Chiang Kai-shek must consult them before mounting any offensive against the mainland. The Nationalists eagerly discuss the loopholes in their treaty of mutual defence, but Washington is not to be flouted lightly.

Arthropods Very Successful At Populating the Earth

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL
Director, Provincial Museum

From the point of view of versatility anthropods have been remarkably successful at populating this earth and they have persisted over a very long period of time. Records of "jointed-legged" animals are found among the earliest fossils indicating that ancestors of modern forms had developed in ancient seas. Some, like the trilobites, eventually died out, while others continued to flourish through succeeding ages. In time certain of their descendants invaded the land and even the air until all parts of the planet were inhabited.

Carl

Of the several natural groups of arthropods now represented on earth the crustacea rank next to the insects in variety of forms. Almost all are aquatic but though restricted to water they have managed to occupy every possible habitat in the sea and in fresh water.

Along rocky shores, crabs, shrimps and barnacles are prominent members of the marine fauna. Most numerous are the shore crabs which seldom measure more than an inch and a half across the shell but come in a variety of colors. They busy themselves among the boulders when the tide is in searching every crack and cranny for food. When alarmed they quickly scuttle sideways under the nearest rock, or if no shelter is immediately available they make a stand with nippers raised in a defiant attitude which is usually very effective in warding off an attacker.

During low tide when the beach is exposed shore crabs are most likely to be found beneath the boulders or any other object that can provide shelter from predators and from the drying action of the sun. Here they may share quarters with several other species including the young stage of the red rock crab (recognizable by its striped shell), the flat-top crab, designed for squeezing into narrow cracks, and the black-clawed crab with its strongly developed pincers.

Here, as well as in exposed tide pools several kinds of hermit crabs are likely to be seen, each one dragging a snail shell behind for protection. Some of the borrowed shells are large enough to completely enclose the hermit when it pulls itself within the whorls; others, as if emulating the current "mini" style, are only large enough to cover the relatively unprotected rear end of the crab. So long have these crustaceans depended upon an empty shell for extra shelter that their bodies are twisted to fit the curves of the adopted cover and the crab is most unhappy if its borrowed shell is removed.

Trapped in pools but much more difficult to see are various species of shrimps, fragile-looking as if made of glass. Though covered with a jointed shell, as are all members of the group, they lightly pick their way on delicately constructed legs or dart quickly backward with a quick flip of the tail. The greatly elongated feelers can be swung in any direction to test the surrounding area for food or potential attackers.

The barnacles are probably the least attractive members of this assemblage, mainly because nothing but the shell is usually visible. When exposed to the air the animal is completely withdrawn so that a barnacle appears to be a projection on the rock or pile. Only when covered by water and actively feeding is its true beauty revealed, for at this time the hand-like appendage sweeps gracefully through the water in a rhythmic motion that carries food downward and into the mouth. The shell may be drab but the feeding organ and the rim around the base may be bright with color providing a striking contrast with its somber surroundings.

Because the outer covering of a barnacle is calcareous like that of a mollusc its true relationship to the arthropods was not realized until its internal anatomy and its life history were studied. Now it is known that the barnacle is indeed a crustacean, but one which has become sedentary, protecting itself by developing a secondary coat of limestone. Internally it still has a chitinous skin characteristic of all arthropods and the animal develops from a free swimming larval stage typical of most other related crustacea. In form and habit it has diverged greatly from the other members of that great group but in so doing it has managed to occupy a niche that no other arthropod is able to take over.

DUCHESS DISLIKES 'RED' TAG

MADRID—Luisa Isabel Alvarez de Toledo y Marua, 21st Duchess of Medina Sidonia, greatly disliked being called the red duchess.

"I am neither, red, blue, nor any other color for that matter," she says. The name has been bestowed upon her by foreigners enthralled by her radical political activities.

Last week this serious-minded woman was sentenced to a year in prison for leading the villagers of Palomares in a protest march. They were complaining about inadequate compensation after four American H-bombs landed on them by mistake.

There seems to be some doubt as to the justness of the cause, but this would not deter the duchess. She hates the American presence in Spain. She is not the first of her family to oppose invaders of Spanish soil; nor indeed the only one to show a quixotic streak.

The sixteenth duke was one of the first great nobles to renounce his feudal privileges, in 1808. Her father refused a commission in the Spanish Civil War and fought as a private. And her mother turned the 12th-century family palace into a clinic for poor patients. Luisa has given away her remaining lands.

About the only conventional thing about her is her love for horses. She won 15 championships while still in her teens. She also holds the Spanish upper-class record for expulsions from convent schools.

SATURN ROCKET more than twice as high as the British Columbia Legislative Buildings roared into space from Cape Kennedy today. Rocket stands 363 feet, launch tower 400 feet, compared with 172-foot high Legislative Buildings as measured from ground to Captain Cook Statue.

World's Largest Rocket Completes Space Trial

First Saturn Flight Perfect

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—The Apollo IV spacecraft completed its maiden flight and splashed down in "bullseye" style some six miles from the carrier, floating upright "in a stable, normal attitude". Frogmen plunged into the water from a helicopter to attach floatation gear.

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Saturn V super-rocket scored a resounding success on its maiden test flight today, orbiting a record 140-ton space vehicle and shooting an unmanned Appollo IV moonship deep into space.

The historic flight gave the U.S. man-in-space program a much-needed shot in the arm and revived hopes that U.S. astronauts still can land on the moon in this decade.

With a thundering burst of power, the powerful rocket blasted away from its launch pad at 7 a.m. EST (4 a.m. PST) after a perfect countdown.

The three stages of the monster Saturn V ignited with drill-like precision during an 11-minute boost phase and shoved the massive payload, including the still-attached third stage, into orbit 115 miles high.

Three hours later, after two orbits of the earth, the hydrogen-powered third stage re-started its engine on ground command and propelled the 64,000-pound Apollo 4 vehicle outward toward a high point of 11,400 miles.

The re-ignition of the third stage gave flight controllers their first anxious moments of the mission. A vent valve refused to close until the last moment.

The spacecraft separated from the stage and a motor on board fired for 15 seconds to provide final power to reach the planned altitude. Had it burned a few seconds longer, Apollo 4 could have gone to the moon, but that was not planned for today's flight because of the need to test the heat shield on re-entry.

Fiery Dive at 25,000 m.p.h.

After reaching the 11,400-mile altitude, the spacecraft was to plunge back through the atmosphere at nearly 25,000 miles an hour—the speed at which astronauts will return from the moon. The fiery dive would determine how well the heat shield survives re-entry temperatures expected to reach 4,500 degrees.

Apollo 4 was to parachute to a landing in a rough Pacific Ocean, 622 miles northwest of Hawaii, at 12:37 p.m. PST.

An hour after the world's most powerful rocket blazed away from Cape Kennedy the Apollo program manager, Maj.-Gen. Samuel Phillips told reporters:

"This mission will do a lot to get the whole Apollo team moving again on a positive course. It will do a lot for the progress in coming months of the Apollo program.

"Yesterday, I would have said that I think we have a reasonably good chance of accomplishing a manned lunar landing by the end of 1969. Today, I think that reasonably good chance is maybe a notch above reasonably good."

The Apollo moon program has been lagging since three astronauts died in a spacecraft fire last January, on a pad not far from where the Saturn V started its flight.

Phillips described the early phase of the flight as perfect. He said the three stages of the powerful booster performed "right on the money" that the orbiting vehicle was working fine.

He reported a cheer went up in the launch control centre when the Saturn V broke its earthly ties and rumbled into the sky on a massive tower of

ANNOUNCING AGREEMENT with Chrysler Corporation in Detroit Wednesday night is Walter Reuther (right), president of United Auto Workers, as Chrysler director Douglas Fraser listens. Workers have yet to ratify terms worked out by negotiating teams. (AP Wirephoto.)

Car Men Win Parity With U.S. Wage Rate

DETROIT (UPI) — A tentative contract accepted by the United Auto Workers and Chrysler Corporation Wednesday night gives Chrysler workers three pace-setting improvements.

They are equal pay for Canadian Chrysler workers, restored pension credits for workers laid off during Chrysler's lean years of the late 1950s and the early 1960s and retroactive pay raises for all blue collar workers.

The union wanted Candian parity to eliminate the temptation among the auto makers to expand parts and assembly operations across the border to take advantage of lower pay in Canada.

Under the agreement, Canadian Chrysler workers will receive five scaled increases that will bring their pay in line with that of Chrysler workers in the United States in 2½ years.

However, U.S. workers will still make about seven cents per dollar more after the time span because of the difference in the currency exchange rate between the two nations.

INFLATION

Canadian officials have expressed concern over the inflationary impact of parity on top of the historic increases won by the UAW. But observers say the impact will be blunted by the 2 years it will take for parity to be fully implemented.

UAW president Walter P. Reuther called the "retoactivity" clause "precedent setting in a major industry."

As soon as the agreement is ratified and local issues are smoothed over, assembly line workers will receive 20 cents an hour and skilled workers will get 50 cents hourly retroactive to Oct. 16.

Based on a 40-hour work week and assuming the contract is ratified by the end of next week, assembly line workers will get a Christmas time windfall of $40 and skilled tradesmen will receive about $100 in back pay.

SENIORITY

Chrysler experienced the most lucrative October for sales in its history last month, but Reuther reminded the company of the dog days of the late 1950s and early 1960s when "there were plants where it required 26 years seniority to hold a job."

The workers who were laid off during Chrysler's "depression years" lost not only salaries, but credits toward their pensions.

The new contract will give those workers pension credits for the time they were laid off.

The three measures, along with the guaranteed annual income worked out with Ford, will give Reuther a good start on

Two-Rail Port Link Only Hurdle to Pact

By JOHN MIKA
Times Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO—Complex negotiations towards a huge rail-ship export contract for Fernie coal seem to be highballing towards a successful conclusion but conflicting signals flashed here today warning of a potential head-on collision.

B.C. pointed the finger at Ottawa as the chief danger but a spokesman for the mammoth Kaiser Steel Corporation obliquely hinted the company is worried the provincial government may push the de-rail button.

The differences appeared in separate interviews of Commercial Transport Minister Robert Bonner and Albert P. Heiner, vice-president in charge of public relations and traffic for Kaiser.

The two men met for several hours Wednesday to discuss Kaiser's progress in negotiating a deal to mine and ship at least 45 million tons of Fernie coal to Japan and another seven million tons to California over the next 15 years.

Mr. Bonner told reporters Wednesday evening that a "rigid and unimaginative" insistence by the federal government that the coal move over an all-Canadian rail route to the proposed Roberts Bank superport could undermine the deal.

Mr. Bonner said B.C. still intends to stay in the picture with its $25 million plan to build a super-port but will delay final decision to wait for an official contact from the federal government outlining its $50 million plan as proposed by Transport Minister Hellyer.

He said everything now depends on Ottawa agreeing to a "two-rail link to the ocean" which would allow the Great Northern Railway to freight Fernie coal to Roberts Bank through the U.S. as an alternative to the Canadian Pacific Railway.

But this morning Mr. Heiner indicated that Kaiser feels the two-rail link proposition is vir-

Cardinal Resigns To Be Missionary

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger, one of the leading progressives in the Roman Catholic hierarchy, has resigned as archbishop of Montreal to do missionary work among lepers in foreign lands.

The announcement by the Vatican today caused some surprise in church circles, since Cardinal Leger at 63 is 12 years below the retirement age for diocesan prelates and his post is an important one.

But Cardinal Leger for a long time has been urging Pope Paul to release him from his post. It was believed the Pope's decision to accept his resignation was delayed until after the bishops' synod last month.

The resignation does not affect the Montreal prelate's lifetime membership in the College of Cardinals.

The cardinal has made frequent trips to leper colonies in Africa.

Vatican experts speculated that the cardinal, instead of becoming a simple chaplain at a colony, might act as leader of the Church's work for lepers by travelling, organizing and raising money.

Another North American cardinal, Richard Cushing, Archbishop of Boston, also has long desired to leave his post to work in Latin America.

But Cardinal Cushing is 72 and in frail health, and the Pope has not given approval.

Cardinal Leger was named archbishop of Montreal by Pope Pius XII in 1950. He was invested as a cardinal in Rome in 1953.

AID IN TIME OF TROUBLE

By TED GASKELL

"I think I would have done something terrible to myself if I had not had the help of the Red Cross to see me through a trying time."

That was the comment of a mother who, because of her emotional state, couldn't look after her family and was assisted by the Homemaker Service, one of the many agencies within the Red Cross Society here.

This year Red Cross is a partner with Red Feather in the United Appeal for $600,000. Red Cross Quota is $85,000.

The Homemaker Service deals with all manner of cases and the numbers are increasing. In 1965 it undertook 648 cases. Last year this had increased to 832.

The homemakers worked more than 54,000 hours last year.

OTHER CASES

There's a "special service" available for senior citizens who can't look after themselves. In some cases people pay their own Homemakers Services fees, the Red Cross assists some and in other cases the welfare agencies foot the bills.

But the service has more value than just providing people who look after household chores.

One elderly lady felt she got value just from the presence of the homemaker. "It's not very nice to be old and alone. But having the Red Cross lady coming gives me something to look forward to. I feel much more cheerful when she's here."

One of the tougher cases the service recalls is that in which a whole family was sick and two workers, both innoculated, were assigned to the home. They worked two eight-hour shifts, used the trolley supplied by the Red Cross Loan Cupboard and served meals to the large family for nearly six weeks until the adults and older children were well and able to manage for themselves.

One worker helped a mother and children daily for more than a year.

Another family with the mother in hospital, and the father unable to look after the two children, had a homemaker live-in for nine days.

The Red Cross paid one third of the cost of having a homemaker spent five hours a day for two years helping a multiple sclerosis victim, the mother of three children.

Some people are able to pay for the homemaker service but many are not.

Production Key To Full Parity

Cabinet Members Cautious On Equal Pay With U.S.

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Overall wage parity between Canada and the United States could cause very serious problems until productivity between the two nations is equal.

That was the initial reaction today of members of the Cabinet to the announcement from Detroit that employees of Chrysler Canada Limited will achieve wage parity with workers at the parent corporation in the U.S. by June 1, 1970.

The question was considered during a cabinet meeting this morning. But neither Prime Minister Pearson nor External Affairs Minister Paul Martin would comment on the development at this stage.

Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp said he wanted to study the terms of settlement before making comments. However he said overall wage parity between the two countries was a practical impossibility until productivity was equal.

COMPETITION

Trade and Commerce Minister Robert Winters observed that productivity has been lagging behind the U.S. for some time. Anything that contributes to a widening of productivity disparity would hurt Canada's competitive position in world trade.

The onus is on the Canadian management of Chrysler and on labor to make sure they can offset the wage increases by improved productivity, he suggested.

Finance Minister Sharp in an address in Quebec City Wednesday night said one of the reasons why prices and costs have been increasing rapidly is that in recent years the increase in our productivity has not been satisfactory. He said this disappointing increase has not been due to insufficient demand nor is it the result of inadequate investment.

Industry Minister C. M. Drury expressed the hope today there would be some relationship between the increase in wages with an increase in productivity.

. . . PARITY

the bargaining with General Motors Corp. in the weeks to come. Of the big three of the auto industry, GM has yet to settle with the UAW.

George Burt, UAW Canadian director, said in Windsor he is confident there will be no difficulties in getting wage parity from Ford of Canada and General Motors.

He said the Ford Motor Co. in Detroit has indicated it will meet the situation if its competitors agree to parity.

Mr. Burt said the average wage gap at Chrysler is about 34 cents an hour.

A membership meeting of Chrysler workers in Canada will be held within the next few days to vote on wage and parity terms and on lifting the Nov. 15 strike deadline so bargaining may continue for an extended period.

The average hourly straight time wage for UAW workers in the industry is $3.41. Siilled workers at Chrysler were earning 60 cents to $1.20 above this under terms of the expired contract.

'Pact Fans Fires of Inflation'

MONTREAL (CP) The Canadian Chamber of Commerce says wage parity between Canadian and United States auto workers "at this time" serves only to "fan the fires of inflation."

President W. M. Anderson of Vancouver, in a statement today to the union contract signed with Chrysler Corp. in Detroit that would eliminate the current wage disparity, said:

"Inflationary pressures, if they remain unchecked, will damage our competitive position, threaten jobs and even lead to a lower standard of living for all citizens.

"Matters of productivity, wage rates and other related issues should finally be determined by Canadians for Canadians."

The three-year Chrysler contract negotiated by the United Auto Workers union provides for a step-by-step disappearance of a current 40-cent hourly wage disparity between Canadian and U.S. workers. Complete parity would be reached by June, 1970.

Barefoot Patient Flees Hospital After X-Rays

A man is in good condition in the psychiatric ward of Royal Jubilee Hospital today after he fled barefoot from the X-ray department Wednesday night.

The man had been brought to the hospital with possible head injuries following a traffic accident.

He leapt from the table after the X-ray technician had taken some pictures, and ran from the building.

Police and orderlies searched the dark grounds and finally spotted him running up a fire escape. He was apprehended and taken to the psychiatric ward.

Full Closure Warning Given By Six Chains

Six B.C. supermarket chains said today they will close all their stores if any one of the companies is struck by the Amalgamated Meat Cutters' Union.

Aubrey Roberts, secretary of an employers committee negotiating for Super-Valu, Safeway, Shop Easy, Dominion, Loblaws and High-Low Stores, issued the warning.

Mr. Robers said the union, which is seeking a four-day, 36-hour work week and pay raises ranging between $1 an hour and $1.45 an hour, has publicly stated that only a part of the retail food industry would be affected if the union proceeds with strike action.

"Consumers will never believe that the union is really doing this as a favor to them," Mr. Roberts said. "The real reason for the move would be to coerce one or more of the employers to agree to the union's unreasonable wage demands and restrictive clauses and later force the same conditons on other employers."

Noon Robbery Nets Thieves $209 From Hotel

Thieves broke into the office of the Albany Hotel mid-day Wednesday and made off with $209 in cash.

Police report the culprits used a knife to cheat a lock on the door and then took the money from a cash box.

. . . CARDINAL

Observers wondered if the action by Cardinal Leger would set a precedent for more resignations by leading prelates to do field work in developing nations.

The resignation was the first by a cardinal for such a purpose in many years.

Cardinal Leger was a leading advocate in the 1962-65 Vatican ecumenical council for basic changes in the Church.

During the council he formulated a view of marriage that placed marital love on an equal plane of importance with child-bearing, this opened the way to a new look at the theology of marriage that pointed toward acceptance of birth control measures.

The special commission that reported on birth control to Pope Paul gave great weight to this view and recommended that the Pope allow birth control methods other than abstinence and the rhythm method. These two are still the only methods allowed by the church as Pope Paul continues to study the problem.

FOUGHT FOR POLICIES

Cardinal Leger fought long and hard to steer church policy abreast of the times while fighting materialistic modern values.

His outspoken pronouncements covered every subject from art to vice, linking the church with causes he deemed worthwhile, pitting it uncompromisingly against all that smacked of sin.

As spiritual leader of more than 2,000,000 Roman Catholics in Montreal diocese, he headed the largest archdiocese in the Commonwealth.

Like Pope Paul, Cardinal Leger probably considers himself a missionary for he has served his church abroad many times.

A tireless opponent of poverty, Cardinal Leger has led many drives to raise funds for church work and in poorer countries.

WORKED IN JAPAN

As a young priest he went to Japan in 1933 to found a seminary at Fukuoka, on the southern island of Kyushu.

Cardinal Leger's six years in Japan were part of the training that led to his unexpected selection in 1950 as an archbishop and his elevation to the College of Cardinals three years later at the age of 48. He was one of the youngest men to don the red hat.

tually agreed as a compromise and the only substantial obstacle left in the way of completing the Japanese negotiations is an assurance that no one will delay development of the super-port.

The negotiations now "impinge on Roberts Bank being ready for first shipments in early 1970," he said.

Mr. Heiner revealed the CPR recently offered a "competitive rate and service to Roberts Bank" which Kaiser feels will allow a mutually satisfactory compromise splitting the rail hauling business between the CPR and CNR.

And, without referring specifically to Mr. Bonner's comments, Mr. Heiner warned that public controversy posing the problem as a fight over rail traffic could "seriously harm" current talks.

The two men also differed on the size of the contracts involved.

SIX MILLION

Mr. Bonner said he believes Kaiser will ultimately sign a 15-year contract for exporting six million tons annually to Japan at a price "in the range of $13.50 a ton."

His estimate would place the gross value at about $1.2 billion.

But Mr. Heiner emphasized that "as far as Kaiser is concerned we are only working on the basis of three million tons a year to Japan and we're hoping to move between 300,000 and 500,000 tons a year to our plant at Fontana as well, possibly through Roberts Bank."

He said there was "absolutely not a shred of proof" to suggestions that Kaiser has financial or managerial involvement with the Great Northern.

UNIT TRAINS

Mr. Heiner said Kaiser may ship directly by unit trains to its Fontana plant 45 miles east of Los Angeles. Although the distance is 1,800 miles he said this could be cheaper than using the Roberts Bank facility.

He would not comment on prices but, if $13.50 is correct, the Kaiser negotiations would have a gross value of about $583 million.

Mr. Heiner said Kaiser has an agreement with Crows Nest Industries Limited under which it can "take over all their coal interests at Fernie" Jan. 30 if the Japanese export contract is signed by then.

He said in that event, Kaiser would invest "between $50 and $60 million over a period of two years" at Fernie, developing a strip-mining operation and more facilities for cleaning, storing and loading the coal.

(In addition, CNIL plans to begin construction soon of a provincially authorized $12 million 60-mile spur line from Fernie to the GNR mainline in Montana.)

Mr. Heiner said the recent CPR offer was "definitely" better than the previous offers which have been quoted at $4.50 a ton hauling charge and his company feels "100 per cent assured that the CPR is being extremely co-operative."

He said the CPR has "definitely agreed to provide service to Roberts Bank" rather than to its own terminal in Port Moody from which the CPR will ship 13 million tons of Alberta coal to Japan over the next 10 years under a recent contract it made with Coleman Collieries Ltd.

FERNIE COAL

In turn, Mr. Heiner said Kaiser has assured the CPR it would be given part of the Fernie coal traffic.

He said Kaiser feels it is essential to have the two real alternatives to protect itself but he declined to comment when asked if the scheme could founder on a refusal of this concession.

"While we have premised our whole approach on dual rail service, and we feel it is in the interests of Canada, too, to have an alternate route to the sea, if this question becomes a burning controversy in the press it would only hurt the negotiations," he said.

Mr. Heiner added Kaiser uses $2,000,000 tons of coking coal a year at Fontana supplied from its own mines in Utah and Mexico.

He said those will remain the company's main sources of coke supply and the Fernie coal will be used "not as a replacement but as a supplementary source of coke to blend with that coming from our other two mines."

. . . ROCKET

flame, vibrating the ground for miles around.

He said recovery would be a challenge because winds were gusting to nearly 30 miles an hour and seas were rough in the planned landing zone.

But no matter what happened the remainder of the mission, the Saturn V had taken a huge step toward its development as a man-to-the-moon booster and as the "ultimate" rocket for U.S. exploration of space for at least the next two decades.

With its engines generating the combined power of more than 500 jet fighter planes, the Saturn V thundered into the sky in the most spectacular launching in the 17-year history of Cape Kennedy.

Emblazoned on the brilliant white sides were the American flag and the letters USA.

Tens of thousands of observers throughout the Cape area watched awestruck as the massive 36-storey-tall rocket rode a pillar of fire more than 500 feet long across the sky and sent an unearthly howl rolling across the land.

The rocket's more than 1,000,000 parts meshed, pulsed and interacted flawlessly, and all three stages—two of them never flown before—ignited like clockwork during the 11-minute boost phase to push the record satellite into orbit 115 miles above the earth.

Included in the weight of the orbiting craft are the Apollo 4 moon ship; a large metal dummy representing the Lunar Module that two astronauts one day will ride to the surface of the moon, and the still-attached third stage of the Saturn V.

Total weight of the orbiting vehicle was 280,036 pounds.

The previous record-holder was another Apollo craft and attached rocket stage which weighed 58,537 pounds. They were launched in 1966 by a smaller Saturn I rocket. The heaviest payload orbited by the Russians was the 26,900-pound Proton 2 satellite launched in 1965.

The flight plan today was planned to simulate the early phases of an Apollo manned lunar landing mission.

Apollo 4 was to parachute to a landing in the Pacific 522 miles northwest of Hawaii, where defence department recovery forces awaited.

Developing Nations Bid For Aid Hike

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (Reuters)—A mission from developing nations will visit North America soon to ask support for their demands for better terms in international trade and aid, informed sources said here Wednesday.

The sources said the mission, to be led by former Pakistani representative to the United Nations, Syed Amjad Ali, would meet U.S. President Johnson and other high U.S. officials and United Nations Secretary-General U Thant.

No date was given for the visit.

After visiting the U.S., the mission will go on to Ottawa for similar talks with Canadian leaders, the sources said.

The mission is one of five formed by the "77 group" of developing countries at an October conference in Algiers, to bring advance publicity to industrialized nations on economic demands to be presented at a UN conference on trade and development meeting in New Delhi in February.

NEW TALKS IN RHODESIA

British Commonwealth Secretary George Thomson and Prime Minister Ian Smith of the breakaway state of Rhodesia and their advisers met in a closely-guarded police station in a fresh attempt to bridge the gap between Salisbury and London.

Smith declined to comment on whether progress was achieved at Wednesday's talks, believed to be the longest Smith has had with a visiting British envoy since Rhodesia's unilateral declaration of independence Nov. 11, 1965.

DEBATE UNDER WAY

Capital Punishment Grabs House Spotlight

By ALEXANDER FARELL

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons became the scene today of another attempt to move towards the end of capital punishment in Canada.

Debate was scheduled to begin on a government bill that would abolish the death penalty for a five-year trial period, except for murderers of policemen and prison guards.

A controversial broadcasting bill was given second reading—approval in principle—in the Commons Wednesday and on motion of its sponsor, State Secretary Judy LaMarsh, was promptly referred to the Commons broadcasting committee for study in detail.

The bill to revise broadcasting regulations and set up a new regulatory body in place of the Board of Broadcast Governors got second reading without a formal vote after a Conservative amendment was beaten 118 to 66.

Thus ended five days of hot debate fuelled by Miss LaMarsh's claim in a television interview Nov. 1 that the CBC suffers in many places from "rotten management." The opposition spent a good deal of time trying to get her to be more specific. Some opposition members supported her general contention, others accused her of smearing the entire CBC administration by implication.

TO HAVE WIDER POWERS

The new agency proposed in the bill, the Canadian Radio Commission, would have wider powers than the BBG.

For one thing, it would be able to set different terms for the operation of each radio or TV station, including those of the CBC.

The amendment, proposed by M. T. McCutcheon (PC—Lambton-Kent), would have sent the bill to committee before second reading, virtually killing it. Only 65 Conservatives and Maurice Allard (Ind—Sherbrooke) voted for it.

Repercussions were felt in the Commons from a demonstration Tuesday night outside the Soviet Embassy, where bottles, rocks and other objects were thrown during a diplomatic reception marking the 50th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

External Affairs Minister Martin said that Ottawa police took inadequate steps to deal with the demonstration.

He regrets this inadequacy, he said in reply to Terry Nugent (PC — Edmonton - Strathcona), who described the demonstration as "shameful lawlessness."

Mr. Martin said he has directed that steps be taken to compensate the Soviet government and repair damage.

Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons he will be glad to consider a proposal by T. C. Douglas, New Democrat leader, that a special committee study the laws regarding homosexuality.

Mr. Douglas recalled that the Supreme Court of Canada upheld this week an indefinite prison sentence against a man who admitted homosexual relations with other consenting adults.

He said most authorities, however, now "are agreed that homosexuality is a social and psychiatric problem rather than a criminal one."

The broadcasting and capital-punishment bills are two of the biggest items on the legislative program the government hopes to complete before Christmas. Capital punishment will be the subject of a free vote, meaning that the government itself is taking no position on it and the outcome therefore cannot signify either victory or defeat for the government.

The bill to ban hanging temporarily and conditionally was introduced by Solicitor-General Pennell Oct. 19, when it got automatic first reading.

During the five-year trial period envisaged by the bill, no person serving a life sentence for murder could be released without cabinet approval.

The death penalty now is imposed for capital murder and certain cases of treason and piracy.

DEBATED LAST YEAR

The last time the Commons debated the subject, in April, 1966, a private member's bill to do away with death penalty was beaten 143 to 112.

Mr. Cowan criticized the cabinet for treating private MPs as "dumb bunnies" by not acquainting them with the content of legislation before it is brought into the Commons.

PRESS KILLING HIPPIES?

OTTAWA (CP)—The hippie movement is dying and many hippies are returning to "square society," David Depoe, spokesman for the Yorkville hippies, said Wednesday.

The Company of Young Canadians volunteer said "hippies were created, built up and are now in the process of being killed by the press".

The movement is splitting in three directions with members moving to farms, becoming politically and socially active or rejoining square society, Mr. DePoe, 23, said.

He participated in a panel discussion sponsored by an Ottawa synagogue.

MIDDLE EAST STILL SNARLED

Direct Talks Best Plan, Israel Tells UN Council

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The UN Security Council is making a new attempt to break the Middle East deadlock despite signs of hardening positions by both Israel and Egypt.

Egypt requested a meeting of the 15-nation council this afternoon to deal with Israel's refusal to withdraw from territory it seized during the June war. A government spokesman told a press conference in Cairo there could be no move toward a settlement until Jewish forces pull back.

In New York, Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said Egypt's demand that Israel withdraw without a peace treaty defining frontiers "is so irrational that it is amazing to find it proposed."

Eban said that, because of its provisions for withdrawal an Indian resolution aimed at promoting a settlement is unacceptable. He criticized a rival U.S. draft, contending it did not give enough stress to Israel's insistence on direct negotiations with the Arab states.

The Israeli foreign minister also found fault with a Japanese working paper circulating among council members. He said that, like the Indian resolution, it prejudices Israel's position on withdrawal.

Eban concentrated his fire on the proposal submitted by India, Mali and Nigeria. He charged that it had been drawn up "in close consultation at every point" with Egypt, but without consultation with Israel.

Water Is Our Life

WATER RESOURCES MINISTER Ray Williston has come out with a firm statement on the question of water exports from British Columbia, and he gave it before an audience where it would get the most attention. His answer was a flat negative, and it is heartening that a government spokesman has publicly made the position of this province unequivocally clear.

Mr. Williston, addressing the Third American Water Resources Conference in San Francisco yesterday, supported his stand—the stand of the people of British Columbia—with unanswerable facts. British Columbia will not export water to the United States because we do not know our eventual needs, we do not know exactly how large our resource is, we will almost certainly need all the water for our own use eventually, if there is any left over Canadian provinces will have first claim on it; vast storage plans envisioned in American proposals for export to the south would place much of the usable area of the province under water; and any temporary alienation is out of the question because once established it would be politically and morally impossible to cut the tap on the dependent communities.

That, in short, was Mr. Williston's message to the United States, and it is one which this province, and this nation, should wholeheartedly support. It carried particular punch because it was delivered against a background of political and professional opinion which holds that the resources of North America are really a continental responsibility, to be directed to areas where they will be most beneficial—in this case out of British Columbia and into the United States Southwest. Speakers before and after Mr. Williston stressed the developing shortage of water in the American West and expounded the multi-billion-dollar plan which has been proposed to channel British Columbia's water to meet that demand.

To make his point, Mr. Williston asked his audience if they would have championed a plan, when California was on the brink of its vast industrial development, to export that state's water in vast quantities to Mexico. The question hardly needed answering. "Surely," said Mr. Williston, "we cannot be held in default for wanting to achieve the greatest possible development of our own resource potentials."

"It would be improvident, if not foolhardy," he added, "for the province to consider at this time any reduction in the total volume of the water resources it now possesses. It is certain that any such reduction would, in many areas, immediately reduce the province's future economic advantage and could have a most serious and even destructive influence upon multi-use resource management."

That is putting it mildly. What would happen is that this province would become a flowing spring and a storage tank for a hundred industrious communities far to the south, and any hope of prosperous development as a fully productive population would be lost forever. No cash payments could even up that kind of a bargain. Mr. Williston's stand should become firm national policy as well as provincial. No government in Canada should even contemplate anything less.

Who Would Be in Charge?

ONE CAN SYMPATHIZE WITH the difficulties which Mr. Arthur Laing, the minister of Indian affairs and northern development, has in keeping commercial interests at bay in the national parks for which he is responsible. But at the same time one may question whether establishment of another Crown corporation is the best solution to the problem.

Mr. Laing has stated his intention of introducing in the Commons a "measure to amend the National Parks Act to authorize the establishment of a Crown corporation to develop, manage and maintain property in national parks of Canada . . ." This would get the entrepreneurs with political muscle, who want to invade our parks with commercial developments, off Mr. Laing's back. But it is by no means certain that it would help to preserve the still largely unspoiled beauty of the parks. In fact, by having the responsibility for land leases and commercial development permits placed in the hands of a semi-autonomous body, it is possible that further inroads on the parks could take place.

This would be so particularly if pressures arose to make the corporation a self-sustaining financial unit. That such pressures could be generated—and very subtly, too—by commercial development lobbyists is only too apparent when one considers the time and money which have already been expended by the would-be exploiters, and the rich prize at stake.

In addition to the specific problem of maintaining the parks as a heritage for future generations of Canadians, Mr. Laing's proposal touches on a broader concern: the wisdom or propriety of turning over national responsibilities to bodies which are not directly answerable to Parliament. There are arguments for and against this procedure—it's a problem which has embroiled the CBC for years, for instance—but it is not one which should be rushed into without a great deal of thought as to whether the public good will be adequately protected.

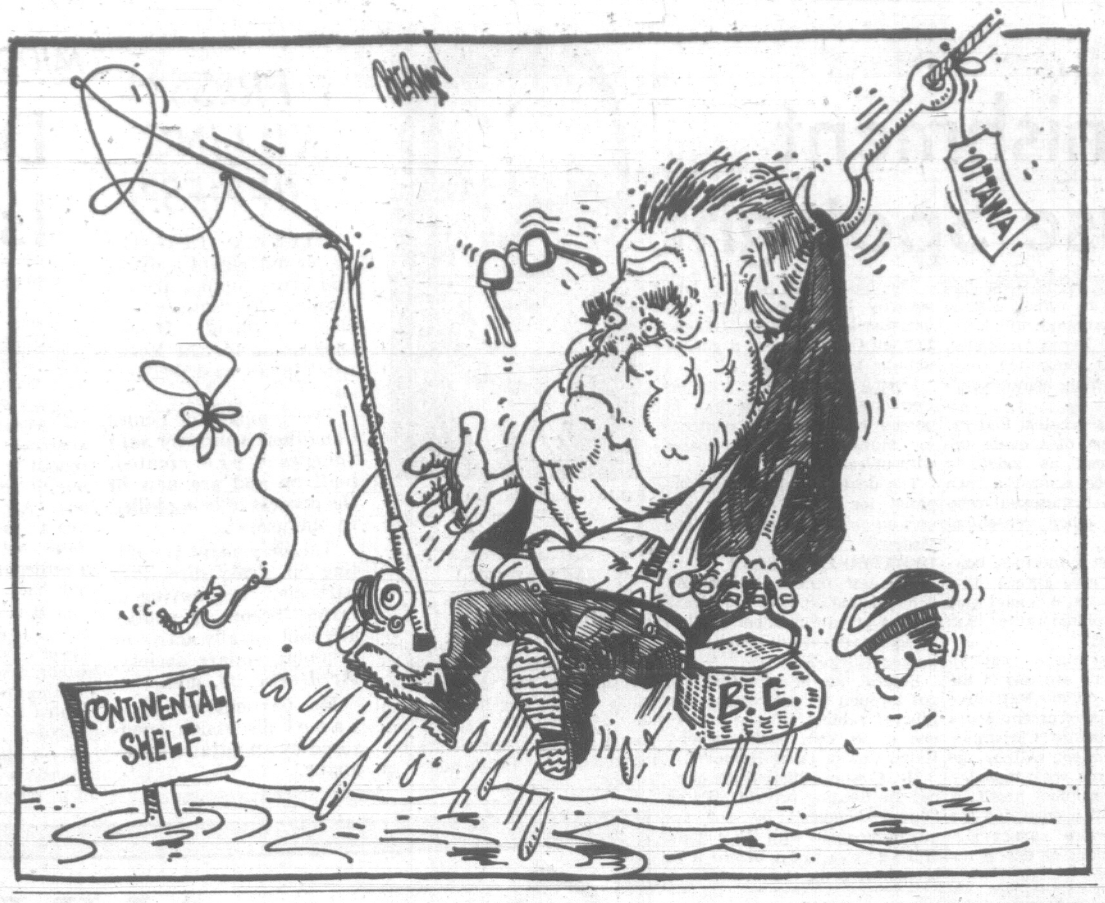
The Growing Minority

THE MOST IMPRESSIVE THING about the referendum on the Vietnam War, held in conjunction with the San Francisco mayoralty election Tuesday, was not that a majority of voters opposed withdrawal of the United States. It was that fully one-third of the 209,000 voters did favor the idea.

When it is considered that the referendum was a straight "yes" or "no" proposition on what amounted to almost unconditional surrender by the United States—"immediate ceasefire and withdrawal of U.S. troops"—it becomes very apparent that the war is unpopular among a large segment of the people.

One cannot help but wonder what the result would have been if the question had been put to them a little differently, if they had been asked whether they favored an immediate ceasefire followed by negotiations for a phased withdrawal with some guarantees for the establishment of a broadly representative government for South Vietnam. As it was, the question was loaded in favor of the "my country right or wrong" patriots.

A government cannot be expected to formulate and carry out foreign policy (and the Vietnam War is certainly an extension of United States foreign policy) through the medium of continual referenda. But foreign policy, and particularly wars, cannot be successfully carried on by a democratically-governed nation without strong popular support. The growing opposition to the Vietnam operation which is filtering down through the American people from a wide segment of their intellectual and moral leaders may in time force a drastic reassessment of American policy in Asia.



RICH BUT STAGNANT ECONOMY

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Britain Rejects the Easy Way Out

AS some of his surviving friends remember, the late John Maynard Keynes once said that a free society could usually cure its big evils, seldom its small ones. "If rats were wolves," he added, "they would have been annihilated long ago." By economic measurement the recurring British balance-of-payments crisis falls into the category of those small evils that society does not cure because it can manage somehow to live with them.

Hutchison

Before we shall begin to grasp Britain's changing situation its trading deficit must be put into perspective. It is not a large deficit, a few hundred million dollars annually at most, a minor fraction of the gross national product. Canada's deficit is several times greater. So is that of the United States.

Of course the United States can better afford this drain and Canada has an American sugar daddy who lends it enough capital every year to close the gap between exports and imports. Otherwise it would go broke overnight.

Britain also has been given American underwriting from time to time but on a relatively short-term basis. It cannot count, as Canada counts, on a massive regular flow of permanent investment from Wall Street.

Decline Easy Way

Yet Britain could instantly end its deficit and pile up a large surplus merely by cutting its military expenditures and foreign aid—with dangerous effects on the global defence balance and devastating effects on many poor countries. So far, Britain is not prepared to wreak such damage on its friends, nor to take the easy way out and devalue the pound at the risk of undermining the U.S. dollar and the entire monetary apparatus of the world.

This year the British government will spend about $600 million on foreign aid, an amount probably larger than its trade deficit. Private British investment abroad will total well over a billion. Defence spending will be more than $6 billion, proportionately the highest figure in Europe.

The British people thus are carrying a much heavier load than any of their neighbors to maintain the world's peace and to nourish its backward regions. They get no credit for their efforts and are growing tired of them.

Wherever I went in Britain the little nameless people repeated the same story. As a Scottish farmer told me across the fence; "We're being bled white by our black brothers of the Commonwealth." A prominent personage in the Labor party said that the new Commonwealth nations "come to London and kick us in the teeth and ask for a humdred million pounds."

Profitless Burden

In the minds of most Britons the Comomnwealth apart from its four "old" English-speaking members, is nothing but a profitless burden and an unnecessary nuisance. The government must pretend and perhaps even believe otherwise but Prime Minister Harold Wilson's sudden disenchantment with the new Commonwealth was one of his main reasons for reversing all his original views and seeking entry into the European Common Market.

Whether the Commonwealth, outside its reliable core, can long endure is a nice question for the future. It is not an immediate, practical question in British policy. What mostly concerns the government today is the trade deficit, not because it is large but because it is persistent, because it raises frequent doubts about sterling and, above all, because economic weakness robs Britain of diplomatic strength in dealing with the fat, comfortable and snug countries of the continent.

When he came to office Mr. Wilson committed two blunders remarkable in a trained economist and a master politician. By deploring, and exaggerating, the trade deficit left by his Conservative predecessors he quickly precipitated a run on sterling. By supposing that his great "socialist" plan for Britain could soon put the economy on an even keel, with a steady rise in living standards and without unemployment, he completely misjudged the nation's basic capacities on the one hand and the world climate on the other.

The threat to sterling was halted by huge foreign credits, yet to be repaid. The soaring spiral of inflation at home was halted by last year's brutal wage freeze—a return to the Conservative policy of "stop and go," deflation and high unemployment which Mr. Wilson had always announced as ruinous.

Now appallingly clear, the net result of all these measures is the stubborn refusal of British business to grow. The present year is ending with more than half a million workers idle, still higher unemployment is in prospect, another trade deficit where a surplus was promised and a rich but stagnant economy.

"Socialist" Plan Failure

In short, the "socialist" plan for Britain is a failure. This does not mean that the Conservative plan, as I heard it vaguely outlined at the recent party conference, would work any better. It does mean that the Wilson government has been forced to recast its whole assessment of the future and its private thinking, as we shall see, is drastically different from its public rhetoric.

What is Mr. Wilson actually trying to do, now that he has overstepped his failing ministers and taken personal charge of the economy?

First, he has staked everything on entry into Europe (a bold and dubious adventure to be discussed here in another article). Second, while he awaits Europe's answer, he has deliberately deflated the economy and created high unemployment—high, that is, by British standards, not North American. The workers now idle could end the trade deficit overnight if they were producing goods for export. That loss of productive manpower must be borne temporarily, together with a frightening political hazard, to shrink soft, uneconomic industries and force workers into the efficient industries capable of rapid growth.

In short, Mr. Wilson has reverted, with suitable disguises, to an old-fashioned orthodox "capitalist" policy (though "capitalism," like "socialism," is a word with little meaning nowadays).

So far the movement of labor from soft to hard industries had made little progress and obviously will take more time than the government had hoped. Meanwhile all these unexpected Wilsonian heresies cause aching strains in a Labor party theoretically "socialist" and bitterly disappointed by the decay of its earlier dreams. The strains often emerge publicly in Parliament and more acutely, within the secret cabinet chamber.

No New System

As the party's left wing now realizes, Mr. Wilson is determined to make the present economic system work instead of building a new one, as the true socialists desired and anticipated. All his revised planning (much of it not yet disclosed) is based not on "socialism" by any known definition but on private enterprise, with a few nationalized monopolies, and on a friendy working partnership between the state and business. With pretty small differences in detail, naturally emphasized for partisan purposes, the Conservative party's policy is the same.

The existing consensus on fundamentals, though always denied in politics, extends to the greatest decision of all—the decision to join Europe, if that is ever possible. While the best and perhaps the only escape route from Britain's internal problems is still closed they should not be overestimated.

By the standards of the world Britain is an opulent country, well ahead of Europe in technology and education, far ahead in the art of government and incomparably more stable in its free democracy. Even in strictly economic terms it is better off than it usually looks from our side of the ocean.

Improved Position

Probably the most powerful businessman in London said to me a few days ago: "We have a trade deficit, yes. It's a nagging worry and must be solved. But basically our position is better right now than it has ever been since the industrial revolution."

And the head of a huge international industry with factories all over the world said the immediate future of the American economy, distorted by the Vietnam war and now facing an inflationary explosion, was more alarming than that of Britain.

Many British economists do not agree with this optimism and, as we shall see, much more than economics is involved in Britain's latest revolution. But all economists and politicans would agree that no sure judgment can be made until Britain knows whether Europe will have it or not. Nor, for that matter, will Canada know where it is going before the baffling Gaullist riddle is unlocked.

SECURITY RISK

In view of the fact that France now is looked upon as somewhat of a security risk—

"SHHHH! MOM'S TAKIN' A NAP!"

Looking Back

From the Times, Nov. 9, 1907:

WINNIPEG — The well-known naturalist and story-teller Ernest Thompson Seton is in the city having returned from a trip to the far northern lands where he has been investigating the nature of the country.

During his great trip Mr. Seton had many interesting adventures and at times his journey was an extremely arduous one.

Canada Must Be Convinced

By MAURICE WESTERN from Ottawa

IN his recent address in Winnipeg Mr. Rasminsky, the governor of the Bank of Canada, warned that our economic foundations may be weakened "unless we bring the present inflationary psychology to an end." Thus what we are faced with is a problem of confidence. The governor also noted paradoxical elements in the present situation. Costs continue to rise despite some increase in unemployment and some alleviation of total demand pressures. The same is true of interest rates despite a flattening out of private investment and a large increase in the money supply.

Western

"I believe," he said, "that the only effective way to deal with both these problems is to break any inflationary expectations that may exist by making it clear beyond doubt that inflation will not be accepted in Canada as a way of life."

While the federal government is not solely responsible for inflation, only that government can take the lead that is required to break these expectations. On its own showing, it is determined to do so and is no doubt trying to do so. But up to now the signals are so faint that the message is scarcely decipherable to the country.

In matters of confidence, delays can be dangerous. Moreover, the situation is likely to be aggravated if ministers appear to be at cross purposes as has sometimes been the case in the past fortnight.

Next Year's Surgery

On Oct. 4, when the budget debate resumed, Mr. Sharp spoke of wielding the knife on next year's estimates with the objective of achieving a balance in federal revenues and expenditures on a national accounts basis. He indicated then that treasury board had already eliminated $650 million from the requests of departments and agencies.

This made a somewhat limited impression since no one knew the starting figure from which the $650 million was lopped. It is known that departments customarily begin with inflated demands in full knowledge that cuts will be imposed. It is also known that huge sums may subsequently be added through supplementaries.

But the government must convince the country that it is in earnest if it hopes, first, to induce restraint in the provincial capitals and secondly to secure public acceptance of its own estimate of what is possible in the ensuing year. There was an expectation about a fortnight ago that the prime minister himself would deliver an appeal to the nation but whatever was planned has evidently been postponed.

The delay has been punctuated by one or two not particularly impressive statements and some confusion.

For example, Mr. McIlraith has referred to cuts in the spending plans of public works. Among projects shelved are a new $17 million department of transport building, a $20 million foreign office and the $70 million national defence headquarters. As these projects have been around for some time, the announcement was created with no particular weeping and wailing in Ottawa and it is doubtful if it caused much pain in government circles.

(Some of us were chided a few years back for suggesting that the tri-towered NDHQ might cost $100 millions; if that estimate had been accepted, Mr. McIlraith would now be in a position to claim an even greater saving.)

Mild Confusion

Cuts in present programs would presumably be more painful and perhaps, for that reason, more convincing. Some confusion resulted last week from Mr. Sharp's letter to the provincial treasurers, according to which the federal government has re-assessed departmental programs for the balance of this fiscal year as well as next. On its face this was in conflict with Mr. Benson's assurances that the June budget remains appropriate and that the issue is 1968-69 spending. Apparently, however, Mr. Sharp's reference was merely to such marginal reductions as might be necessary to offset supplementary requests or higher costs without altering the overall deficit.

The delay has been interpreted by some critics to mean that the government is merely twiddling its fingers. But it is quite as reasonable to conclude that the ministers are in fact struggling with very painful and therefore meaningful decisions.

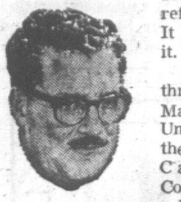
Unfortunately this is all speculative and some ministers are not disinclined to create difficulties for their colleagues. On the question of medicare, for example, the government has attempted to say as little as possible; merely observing when pressed that the effective starting date is part of existing law. Mr. Walter Gordon, however, in a Toronto speech has warned that medicare must not be sacrificed on the altar of economy. There would be little point to this until some are pressing for deferment, possibly by a simple amendment to the law.

If inflationary expectations are to be broken the country will have to be persuaded that there is a united government with a will to carry through a resolute program. Unless something is done—and soon—to dispel the impression of drift which certainly exists in the business community, the government will enter a winter of trouble in no very happy condition.

Prof. Seguin's 'History' Of Quebec Separatism

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

There is a document in circulation which purports to be a history and justification of separatism for Quebec, and to which we have seen and heard several references in recent weeks. It is instructive to examine it.



Fisher

It originated as a set of three talks by Professor Maurice Seguin of the University of Montreal on the French network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation back in the relatively tranquil days of 1962.

Tranquil they may have seemed, but that was the year when the French network concentration of separatists and crypto-separatists first came to public attention.

The title of the original broadcasts, preserved in a translation by the Department of History at the University of Waterloo, was Origin and Historical Record of The Separatist Idea In French Canada.

An abridged version, now circulating in Quebec, seems to have originated with a publication, no longer in existence, called Parti Pris.

Crowe

In three radio talks the whole of the history of the French Canadian people on this continent is presented as the history of their pursuit of separatism.

First of all, let us say that the narrative style of Prof. Seguin is such that it is usually difficult, and often impossible, to be sure whether he is expressing views of his own or is merely reproducing the ideas of "leading groups" or ideas held by the "whole nation."

However, this is the style which is typical of almost all nationalist and separatist writers in Quebec.

In this connection, we recently heard a French Canadian lawyer say that it would be extremely difficult to get any of them on a treason charge. The utterance could be descriptive and reportorial and not assertive and personal.

This brought to mind the thought that we have never heard an English-speaking Canadian raise, except perhaps as a jest, the possibility that treason is involved in the proposal to disrupt the country and make off with much of its real estate and resources.

How long would a Pierre Bourgault or a Rap Brown last as a free agent advocating separatism or violence, in France, Turkey, Russia, Iceland, Ghana or North Vietnam?

This is a curious and wonderful continent. And on this point it is worth noting that with many English-speaking Canadians an unconstrained sympathy for the Rap Browns in the United States is matched by a quite illiberal attitude toward French Canadians.

Back to Prof. Seguin, who says: "The present-day separatists, as they progressively clarify their doctrine, do put into French Canadian minds the idea of the necessity for independence in the political field first of all.

"In this, they do the greatest service to French Canadians, that of exposing the falsity of . . . that grand old myth of an equality being possible between the two nationalities or of the possibility for French Canadians to be masters in a Quebec which would remain inside the Confederation."

That, fairly clearly, is the speaker's own opinion. So is the concluding thought of the last address, "Our masters, the English, would not be worthy of having been our masters for two centuries if they allowed themselves to be easily overthrown."

But what about all the rest of it, from the conquest down to the 1960s?

It would be very discouraging to think that these pages which are presented as the "historical record" were the interpretation of our history by Prof. Seguin and not just what some French Canadians, at different times, and to suit their contemporary purposes, found it convenient to say was their views of history.

Much of it is not history at all. Polemics on fiction would be the corner of the library for it. And yet the skeleton of it is familiar.

The ground is that old field in which students in our schools are bored to tears—the Quebec Act of 1774, the Constitutional Act of 1791, rebellion and Durham, the Act of Union 1840-41 and deadlock, Confederation and expansion and autonomy.

It is separatism in 1774. It is separatism in 1791. It is separatism with the rebels of 1837. It is separatism with Bourassa. It is separatism now.

What is separatism? Sometimes it is the almost unanimous collective will of the people. At other times it is the correct interpretation of what happened, however dimly it may have been appreciated at the time.

Always it is "them" and "us." There is no concept of Canada as a nation state or as a nation.

The Act of Union of 1840, in operation in 1841, becomes the supreme tragedy in French Canadian history because it ended the "independence" of Quebec and committed it to an arrangement in which the "British" would have a majority.

Prof. Seguin quotes a nationalist on Papineau's uprising:

"One thing is certain. It was the senseless revolt of Papineau which brought us infinitely more harm than good. It led to the union of the two Canadas, which led us fatally to Confederation.

"Without the criminal uprising of our so-called patriots, Lower Canada would probably not have been united to Upper Canada, and today, as a British colony but not part of the Dominion, French Canada would be on the way to complete autonomy. Without 1837 there would now be a French Canada completely independent from English Canada." And that was said before 1900.

However, the polemics are as good as the history is bad. We have already heard some of these and shall be hearing more:

"To be a minority people in a federation is to be an annexed people."

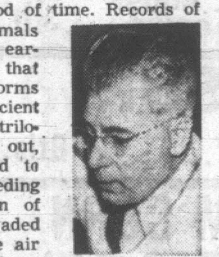
And there are a number of subtle touches: "One can almost admire Cartier . . ."; Henri Bourassa, "the man from Ottawa"; and Quebec, "the best cared for annexed nation in the world."

One can almost admire Prof. Seguin.

Arthropods Very Successful At Populating the Earth

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL
Director, Provincial Museum

From the point of view of versatility anthropods have been remarkably successful at populating this earth and they have persisted over a very long period of time. Records of "jointed - legged" animals are found among the earliest fossils indicating that ancestors of modern forms had developed in ancient seas. Some, like the trilobites, eventually died out, while others continued to flourish through succeeding ages. In time certain of their descendants invaded the land and even the air until all parts of the planet were inhabited.



Carl

Of the several natural groups of arthropods now represented on earth the crustacea rank next to the insects in variety of forms. Almost all are aquatic but though restricted to water they have managed to occupy every possible habitat in the sea and in fresh water.

Along rocky shores, crabs, shrimps and barnacles are prominent members of the marine fauna. Most numerous are the shore crabs which seldom measure more than an inch and a half across the shell but come in a variety of colors. They busy themselves among the boulders when the tide is in searching every crack and cranny for food. When alarmed they quickly scuttle sideways under the nearest rock, or if no shelter is immediately available they make a stand with nippers raised in a defiant attitude which is usually very effective in warding off an attacker.

During low tide when the beach is exposed shore crabs are most likely to be found beneath the boulders or any other object that can provide shelter from predators and from the drying action of the sun. Here they may share quarters with several other species including the young stage of the red rock crab (recognizable by its striped shell), the flat-top crab, designed for squeezing into narrow cracks, and the black-clawed crab with its strongly developed pincers.

Here, as well as in exposed tide pools several kinds of hermit crabs are likely to be seen, each one dragging a snail shell behind for protection. Some of the borrowed shells are large enough to completely enclose the hermit when it pulls itself within the whorls; others, as if emulating the current "mini" style, are only large enough to cover the relatively unprotected rear end of the crab. So long have these crustaceans depended upon an empty shell for extra shelter that their bodies are twisted to fit the curves of the adopted cover and the crab is most unhappy if its borrowed shell is removed.

Trapped in pools but much more difficult to see are various species of shrimps, fragile-looking as if made of glass. Though covered with a jointed shell, as are all members of the group, they lightly pick their way on delicately constructed legs or dart quickly backward with a quick flip of the tail. The greatly elongated feelers can be swung in any direction to test the surrounding area for food or potential attackers.

The barnacles are probably the least attractive members of this assemblage, mainly because nothing but the shell is usually visible. When exposed to the air the animal is completely withdrawn so that a barnacle appears to be a projection on the rock or pile. Only when covered by water and actively feeding is its true beauty revealed, for at this time the hand-like appendage sweeps gracefully through the water in a rhythmic motion that carries food downward and into the mouth. The shell may be drab but the feeding organ and the rim around the base may be bright with color providing a striking contrast with its somber surroundings.

Because the outer covering of a barnacle is calcareous like that of a mollusc its true relationship to the arthropods was not realized until its internal anatomy and its life history were studied. Now it is known that the barnacle is indeed a crustacean, but one which has become sedentary, protecting itself by developing a secondary coat of limestone. Internally it still has a chitinous skin characteristic of all arthropods and the animal develops from a free swimming larval stage typical of most other related crustacea. In form and habit it has diverged greatly from the other members of that great group but in so doing it has managed to occupy a niche that no other arthropod is able to take over.

DUCHESS DISLIKES 'RED' TAG

MADRID—Luisa Isabel Alvarez de Toledo y Marua, 21st Duchess of Medina Sidonia, greatly disliked being called the red duchess.

"I am neither, red, blue, nor any other color for that matter," she says. The name has been bestowed upon her by foreigners enthralled by her radical political activities.

Last week this serious-minded woman was sentenced to a year in prison for leading the villagers of Palomares in a protest march. They were complaining about inadequate compensation after four American H-bombs landed on them by mistake.

There seems to be some doubt as to the justness of the cause, but this would not deter the duchess. She hates the American presence in Spain. She is not the first of her family to oppose invaders of Spanish soil; nor indeed the only one to show a quixotic streak.

The sixteenth duke was one of the first great nobles to renounce his feudal privileges, in 1808. Her father refused a commission in the Spanish Civil War and fought as a private. And her mother turned the 12th-century family palace into a clinic for poor patients. Luisa has given away her remaining lands.

About the only conventional thing about her is her love for horses. She won 15 championships while still in her teens. She also holds the Spanish upper-class record for expulsions from convent schools.

Leave Hatreds Outside

By ART STOTT

In our more optimistic moods, a lot of us picture Canada today as a mosaic more brightly colored by the addition of traditions and cultures brought to the country by immigrants who have chosen this land as a place in which to set down roots. We assume, and for the most part correctly, I believe, that those who have sought sanctuary or greater opportunity here wish, in the first place, to become Canadians, but not to lose all the characteristics which have been nationally significant in their own lands.

Stott

In the process, we tend to overlook the facts that immigrants, being human, bring to us not only the arts and bright aspects of their backgrounds, but some of the prejudices and hates of long or short standing.

A few, a relative handful, splashed that fact in our faces on Tuesday with the red paint they splattered on the steps of the Russian Embassy in Ottawa. They chose this form of behavior, unacceptable in my opinion to the spirit of Canada, to demonstrate their animosity to Russia on that country's celebration of the revolution 50 years ago.

Canadian anger at the display, where such anger exists, must be tempered by a realization that animosities springing from experience in their homelands do not die easily even when the individual has left home. At the some time, it is saddening to Canadians that the Canadian tolerance which accepts all shades of opinion should thus be abused by people who enjoy that tolerance.

As I understand our position, we grant to anti-Communists in this country the right to be anti-Communist, just as we permit pro-Communists to be pro-Communist, provided that violence is not done to our national concepts.

It seems to me that violence was done to these concepts in Ottawa on Tuesday. We, as a nation, are shamed by the actions of some whom we welcomed to our shores. We are particularly shamed since the people whom we chose to represent us considered the reception at the Soviet Embassy an occasion in which they should participate as guests of the Russian host.

The incident seems the more regrettable because, apart from the conventional parade of armaments in Moscow—a format which the Russians seem unable to break—most of the material I have read or seen on the 50th birthday of the new Russia has been devoted to a study of the people, not of the ideological conflict which persists between East and West.

In newspaper and magazine articles, on television and in speeches we have been reminded that Russians are human beings, have aspirations that are human, disagree with us on the manner in which some of those aspirations should be pursued, but nevertheless strive for the better life in terms universally understandable.

This, apparently, is a line of thought alien to the placard carriers, rock-and-egg throwers and paint smearers who performed at the Embassy.

Quite conceivably, if there were an embassy representing the antithesis of Russian ideology, and if it held a reception, there would be a fringe group in the country ready to carry placards, throw eggs and rocks and smear paint on its quarters during the celebration of such an embassy's national event. No set of extremists has a monopoly on such behavior.

Accepting this, it still seems to me that some quiet effort should be made to let such demonstrators understand very clearly that they are showing very little appreciation for their reception into Canada by such activities.

At the same time, we, as Canadians, might give thought to failure on our part to instil Canadianism into some of our new settlers. We shouldn't just tut-tut the proceedings and tell the demonstrators that they are showing bad form. We ought to let them know that they are expected to doff old nationalistic hatreds, like dirty boots, before coming in.

Has Balance of Terror Shifted From the U.S. to Russia?

By GEORGE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON — The Soviets' new orbital rocket confronts the United States with a whole new set of military problems because it is the first weapon to take the high ground of outer space.

The Fractional Orbital Bombardment System (FOBS) which the Soviets are testing need not pass Pentagon cost-effectiveness tests to fulfill its mission.

FOBS, according to the experts, is not supposed to be a better ICBM, but a terror weapon. This makes the belittling of it by Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara almost beside the point—even if he is right.

The psychological impact of a hydrogen bomb whirling over the United States with the release button in the Kremlin cannot be ignored by the Johnson administration.

The anti-ballistic-missile debate, if nothing else, showed that the lawmakers are going to insist on buying some kind of life insurance against super-weapons for their constituents.

The McNamara argument that the U.S. is already naked against a massive ICBM attack, so why worry about FOBS, ignores the fact that many lawmakers regard the anti-Chinese ABM as the first step toward a Soviet one.

Same Ground

Already, congressional reaction to FOBS shows that the U.S. must find a way to reach the same high ground taken by the Soviets.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D.—Wash.), for example, said in an interview that the Russian orbital rocket "has opened up a whole new dimension of problems."

He said the U.S., as a starter, would have to speed development of anti-satellite weapons and build a lot more detection radar. He has opened public hearings to explore these questions with administration witnesses.

Republicans in Congress already are making an issue out of McNamara's statement that "I'm not concerned" about FOBS. Rep. William L. Dickinson (R.—Ala.) said in a telegram to President Johnson that McNamara should be fired for such unconcern.

What will make congressional criticism hard to combat, even in closed hearings, is that the Pentagon has little working hardware to point to in the way of FOBS counter-weapons.

McNamara in confirming that the Soviets have been testing orbital rockets said that the U.S. had a new detection radar, but it is limited.

Just Started

True, over-the-horizon radar has been under development for years. But the type which really gives meaningful information about Soviet launches hidden from existing radar and spy satellites has only begun to operate.

Also the U.S. has no fool-proof system for intercepting and inspecting a foreign satellite to see if a bomb is inside. Weapons in hand for knocking down a hostile satellite also have limited effectiveness.

Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, in testifying before the Senate foreign relations committee this spring on the treaty to ban weapons in outer space said the chiefs "remain concerned about the assured verification capability with regards to weapons in orbit. The deployment of prohibited orbital vehicles could have serious implications, especially if it enabled an enemy to launch an effective surprise attack against our command and control facilities and military forces.

"Weapons in orbit," Wheeler continued, "could become a matter of grave consequence, particularly when utilized in conjunction with other strategic systems . . . This threat can be answered only through intensified U.S. effort to develop capabilities to detect and verify the orbiting of nuclear weapons or those threatening mass destruction.

MIRV is the technique of dividing a big bomb into a bunch of little ones and then sending each of them to a different target. Some military leaders fear the Soviets put a MIRV warhead on their orbital rocket.

Jackson said using MIRV with FOBS would make bombs "come down like Roman candles." Even without MIRV, he argued, FOBS "represents a qualitative jump in their strategic weapons capability." The U.S., he said, needs "more and improved defences" against FOBS.

What the Soviets have done by testing an orbital weapons system is to undercut McNamara's "Peter at the dike" effort to hold back the arms race. The tests come at the time he appeared to be making real progress in selling the American public and allies on the folly of building a bigger mountain of nuclear weapons or a thick missile defence.

During hearings last April on the outer space treaty, Pentagon leaders said the United States was prepared to rely on its ability to detect "bombs in orbit." Deputy Defence Secretary Cyrus R. Vance and Gen. Wheeler, agreed that "one or two or some very small number of weapons" could "be clandestinely orbited without being identified."

But "to be militarily significant," said Vance, "a large number of weapons would have to be deployed, and this would certainly be detected."

When asked how many "would give us concern?" Vance replied that was difficult to answer, but "if I saw ten or more I would certainly be concerned."

Hope Fades for Chiang As China Settles Down

By DENNIS BLOODWORTH

SINGAPORE—Stranded by the receding tide of history more than 100 miles from home, President Chiang Kai-shek celebrated his 80th birthday in Formosa, disturbed by signs that the bright promise of the Communist "Cultural Revolution" in China was betrayed.

Almost at the brink of ruin and disintegration (as he saw it) his enemies in Peking were braking hard.

Proletarian masses, who had earlier been incited to smash the existing "revisionist" party and administrative musculature on which the articulation of the State depended, were now being urged to form "grand alliances" with the bureaucrats they had earlier humiliated.

Peking's back-handed birthday gift to the president of Nationalist China was the report of a speech by Hsieh Fu-chih, Communist minister for public security, who stressed that even the ideological arch-villain, President Liu Shao-chi, and all others on the distinguished short-list of disgraced "revisionist" leaders, should not be imprisoned or shot, but reclaimed through Mao Tse-tung's formula of "unity, criticism, unity."

Still Active

Neat and nut-brown, the octogenarian Generalissimo of exiled China is still the active supreme commander, and promulgates all vital decisions from his hideous brick palace in Taipeh.

Ramrod straight in his creaseless uniform, it is as if he were already cast in his own charisma. But he lives—and in a world of paradoxes.

Mao took China away from him, but today he must wish Mao success. For he sees the Communist chairman as a senile visionary six years his junior, whose dream of a classless society, translated into a policy of putting revolution before rice-bowls, repels the outside world and could plunge China into the ultimate chaos of a civil war which would give Chiang's own Kuomintang Nationalists their great chance to "recover the mainland."

Conversely, hope fades as the turmoil threatens to subside, and moderates like Premier Chou En-lai become Chiang's most dangerous opponents. For they are capable not only of restoring Communist China's unity, peace and productivity, but also of ending her vulnerable isolation by making it up with Moscow.

The thought saddens Taipeh. For at present the Maoists alienate Moscow, and meanwhile the world's two super powers—the Soviet Union and the United States—are being drawn towards peaceful coexistence because the alternative is a ruinous exercise in nuclear isometrics.

To Chiang Kai-shek, whose first faltering footsteps in dictatorship were guided by Russian advisers, a tacit understanding between the Soviet Union and Formosa is not inconceivable.

It could serve both Chiang's ambition to invade the South and a Russian urge to see friendly anti-Maoists chip off from Peking their own provincial fiefs along the Sino-Soviet border in the North. There are no signs of this yet, for the Russians, like the Americans, look upon China today as an unstable explosive with which it would be madness to meddle.

Many observers, nevertheless, believe that the odds on a rapprochement will shorten if Chiang dies. The constitutional successor of the Generalissimo will be Vice-President C. K. Yen, but Chiang Ching-kuo, eldest son of the "Gimo" will hold the real power.

In his late fifties, Ching-kuo is a velvet hand in an iron glove. Short, unpretentious, a man of simple tastes but not vices, Ching-kuo is national defence minister and master of Formosa's 600,000-strong armed forces, of the secret police and their notorious "thought reform" camp, and of the 100,000-strong National Salvation Youth Corps, whose members act as political spies, are organized in cells, and practise self-criticism like their Communist cousins.

Formosa's future strongman is an advocate of the police state and of the concentration of political power, and points out that with these weapons Stalin was able to hack a strong Soviet Union out of the amorphous mass of Russia.

Lived in Russia

Ching-kuo spent 12 years in the U.S.S.R. until 1937, joining the Komsomols and then the Red Army, and marrying a Russian wife. Some neutral Chinese believe that the Russians could slip far more easily into a modus vivendi with him than they could with Mao.

However, the arbiters of the Kuomintang's destiny remain the Americans, who are pledged to defend Formosa, but who have stipulated that Chiang Kai-shek must consult them before mounting any offensive against the mainland. The Nationalists eagerly discuss the loopholes in their treaty of mutual defence, but Washington is not to be flouted lightly.

HOME GARDEN

Old-Time Favorite Still Popular

By HILDA BEASTALL

A garden job needing attention every three or four years is the lifting and replanting of Lily-of-the Valley.

This old-time favorite with its strong fragrance is still popular today. Although we tend to neglect its well being and thus allow it to dwindle from neglect.

Hilda

Lily-of-the-Valley will be found listed under Convallaria majalis in your garden encyclopedia, for more information on its care.

As the leaves are now becoming browned, dig the roots which will look like couch grass—white runners with tufts of fibres at intervals. The growing tips are sharp and terminate in the browned leaves at this time of year.

Cut off the leaves without damaging the growing tips.

Lily-of-the-Valley likes a rich soil—that is, a bed prepared with a mixture of well-rotted compost, some old manure if you have it, leafmould from last year's leaves, and a handful of bonemeal to each pail of material added.

Mix all this well with a fork, and then level the bed with a rake, firming it a little as work proceeds.

Select only the largest growth tips, known as "pips" or "crowns." Make little furrows about two inches deep; lay the white runners in the furrows with the pips upright and just below soil level when the soil mixture is filled in again.

If the bed is rather dry when finished and rain is not imminent, water with gentle hose just to settle soil mixture around the roots.

Flowering may be sparse next year, but will increase for the following three years or so, until it is again necessary to redo the job.

Alberta In the Red

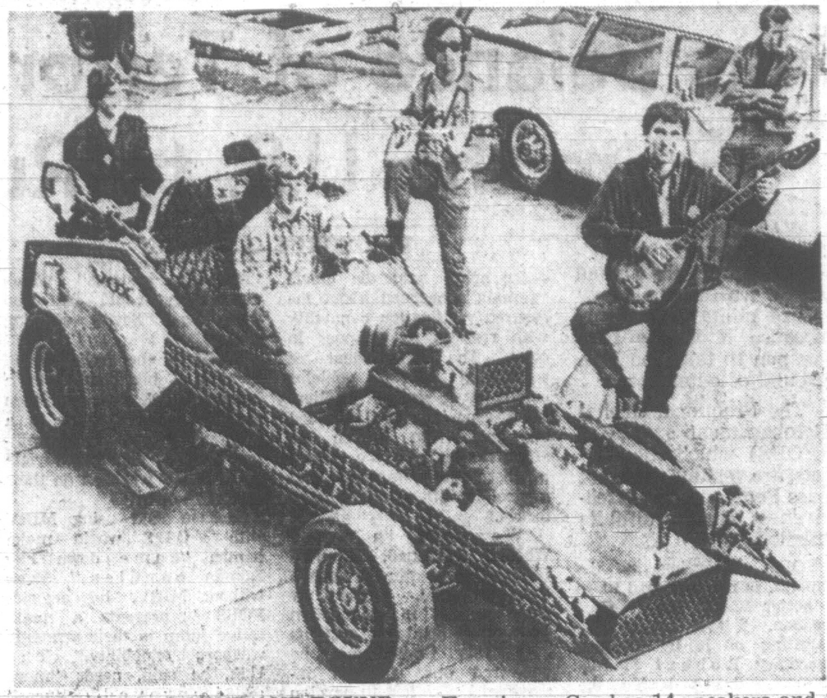
EDMONTON (CP) — Provincial Auditor C. K. Huckvale Wednesday announced a provincial budget deficit of $82,000,000 and warned that unless a fast-climbing spending trend is not stopped, the province is headed for a more serious situation than now exists.

In his report for the 1966-67 fiscal year, Mr. Huckvale announced a record expenditure of almost $540,000,000—almost $124,000,000 more than the previous year.

He said Alberta's tax base had simply been outstripped by expansion.

Phoenix to Sail

PHILADELPHIA (Reuters)—The Quaker ketch Phoenix will sail from Hong Kong Friday, bound for Da Nang with a cargo of medical supplies for South Vietnamese Buddhists and the Red Cross, a spokesman for the Quaker Action Group said on Tuesday.



MUSIC GOES ROUND AND ROUND and comes out of the car, a $30,000 creation of Thomas Organ Company, being tested by musicians in San Francisco. Car has 14 speakers and 32 input jacks for guitars and is designed for parades and exhibition appearances. (AP Wirephoto.)

Hospitality Scholarship Fund

A scholarship fund to help students in the hospitality industry was set up by the B.C. Motels and Resorts Association at the close if its annual convention in Holyrood House Wednesday.

The fund was started with a $100 donation and will be used to further the education of promising employees in the motel and resort industry.

Bert Dann, executive director of the association, said the names of likely applicants for the scholarship will be forwarded by branches throughout the province.

"The $100 donation was just a start," he said. "We are now devising ways and means of augmenting the fund."

The association presented scrolls of merit to Mr. and Mrs. George McMorran of Cordova Bay and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Poe of Pender Island for dedicated service to the tourist industry.

MORE FALLOUT FROM DEFEAT BY ISRAEL

Nasser's Men Lose Out In Yemen, South Arabia

By CARL MOLLINS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Egypt's Gamal Abdel Nasser has been forced to ditch his political proteges in both South Arabia and Yemen this week under pressures resulting directly from his defeat by Israel last June.

In Aden, the South Arabian army leadership has lined up behind the National Liberation Front in its showdown power struggle with the Egyptian-backed organization known as F.L.O.S.Y. — Front for the Liberation of Occupied South Yemen.

Nasser, who had been urging the rival groups to co-operate, has been powerless or unwilling to prevent the NLF winning a strong position to take over in South Arabia this month from the departing British. Nasser's men, the F.L.O.S.Y. Leaders, apparently are out in the cold.

In Yemen, republican leadership has been seized from Abdullah Sallal, Egypt's man for five years, with Nasser's acquiescence if not his connivance.

DETAINED IN CAIRO

The men with the upper hand in both South Arabia and Yemen, including the NLF's Qahtan Shaabi and Yemen's Qadi Iryani, were among Arab leaders detained in Cairo last year when they went to the Egyptian capital to intercede with Nasser against policies of his proteges, Abdullah Asnag of F.L.O.S.Y. and Salal in Yemen.

Both the F.L.O.S.Y. leaders and Sallal depended on the presence of Egyptian troops in Yemen. F.L.O.S.Y. was counting on Egyptian help in dislodging the NLF from recently-gained control in most of South Arabia. Sallal needed help against both royalist tribesmen and restive republicans.

But following his Sinai defeat, Nasser had to agree to withdraw from Yemen in return for financial aid from Saudi Arabia, which opposed Egyptian intervention on the Arabian Peninsula. The agreement knocked the props out from under F.L.O.S.Y. and Sallal.

NEEDS NLF SUPPORT

Nasser could not afford to resist power shifts this week in Yemen and South Arabia. Besides needing Saudi money, Nasser needs tacit NLF support in negotiating use of the Aden oil refinery in place of the Suez refinery destroyed last month by Israeli gunfire. Aden petroleum workers support the NLF — and four tankers carrying Egyptian crude oil have been waiting in Aden Harbor this week for permission to use the refinery.

Despite the fact that NLF leaders and Yemen's new chiefs have been slapped down by Nasser in the recent past, they are generally sympathetic to Nasser-style Arab nationalism.

BOY TRAVELS IN SUITCASE

ROME (Reuters) — A Bulgarian engineer who was unable to get an exit permit for his four-year-old son smuggled him across four borders in a suitcase during a 27-day journey from Sofia to Milan, a Rome newspaper says.

The daily Gironale d'Italia says the son, Stanimir, arrived in Milan Tuesday in one of the eight suitcases carried by his father Stoyno, 37, and grandmother Tzevetanka, 60.

CALVERT OF CANADA LTD., MONTREAL • TORONTO • VANCOUVER

The name of the rye is Grand Prix.

We made it incredibly smooth by making it dry.

And we made it dry by discovering a new way to make rye without any cloying sweetness.

This makes Grand Prix a full-bodied rye so smooth you can actually sip it straight. And like it.

It took Calvert ten years to make Grand Prix so smooth, and naturally our Master Blender is pretty proud of it.

But try it yourself. In ten seconds you'll know why he's so proud.

Calvert Grand Prix. The world's first dry rye.

WATSON SAYS:

Control Grab Of CBC Feared

TORONTO (CP)—John Matheson, parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, Wednesday was accused of using McCarthy-like tactics during a House of Commons debate on the Broadcasting Act.

"He is a disgrace in his role as an MP," former television personality Patrick Watson told a YWCA meeting here. "He is a disgrace to his role as the prime minister's parliamentary secretary."

Mr. Watson, now a lecturer at the University of Waterloo, said Mr. Matheson in the House last Friday manipulated statistics, quoted out of context and was guilty of "arrogant dishonesty."

Mr. Watson was co-producer and an interviewer on the CBC television public affairs program This Hour Has Seven Days. The program was dropped last year by the CBC.

He said Mr. Matheson had made an innuendo lumping Watson, Douglas Leiterman and Laurier LaPierre, all of Seven Days, and former CBC public affairs director Reeves Haggan with convicted British spy Guy Burgess.

The obvious conclusion from Mr. Matheson's remarks was that the government wants more control over the CBC, Mr. Watson said.

The new broadcasting bill will not ensure an independent CBC, said the former CBC producer. Heads of broadcasting hobnob with heads of government, industry, business and banking and "I cannot imagine their intention to create a truly independent CBC."

It will be difficult to "keep it from being just another commercial venture."

DINNER CAME LATER FOR CREW

Dinner had to wait for 249 officers and men of HMCS Saskatchewan Wednesday night.

They were recalled to the ship by a mock emergency alarm at 6 p.m.

"The response was excellent," a navy spokesman said. "Most of the crew returned in fast time. The ship didn't sail but she could have got away quickly if required."

The recall was effected by means of a telephone "fan out" system in which one crew member calls several others.

'Unique' Shawnigan Family Plan

A family plan country club has made Shawnigan Inn unique among B.C.—and probably Canadian—hotels.

Kenneth G. Watt, owner of the well-known Shawnigan Lake resort, has spent $100,000 in remodelling the former Shawnigan Beach Hotel since he took over in September last year and has now changed the concept of the resort as well as the property.

Mr. Watt said the country club plan offers a family membership which includes use of all the inn facilities, one free Friday night's lodging a month with the Saturday night room rate of $5, plus half-price dining on that weekend. Dining at other times offers members a 10 per cent discount.

Club membership is $96 a year per family.

In addition members may use the inn's facilities for boat mooring.

The inn has a heated circular pool, tennis courts and a golf course. Fees are charged for use of sail boats and speed boats.

B.C. Hydro To Award Scholarships

University of Victoria students will receive $2,000 of $10,000 in scholarships to be awarded by the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority next year.

The company will give eight $250 scholarships for general proficiency to students who have completed at least one year at the university.

The allotment to UBC students will be $6,000 and the remaining $2,000 will go to Simon Fraser University students.

Thief Gets $30 From Paper Boy

A 15-year-old paper boy was robbed of $30 of his monthly collection money Tuesday, according to city police.

Wayne Price, 1142 Caledonia, left the money in a dresser drawer early Tuesday morning.

Latin Awards Announced

Winners are Penni Shaw, a graduate of Queen Margaret's School in Duncan, who earned 91 per cent. She is enrolled at the University of Victoria.

The other winner is UBC student Frances Connell of Vancouver who graduated from Crofton House School with 90.5 per cent in Latin.

B.C. Job Shortage Studied by Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Manpower offices in British Columbia are in touch with the provincial government on the provinces' unemployment problems, Manpower Minister Marchand told the Commons Wednesday.

He was replying to questions from Davie Fulton (PC—Kamloops) and Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena).

Mr. Fulton said October unemployment figures released by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics showed the B.C. average was 1.8 per cent higher than the national average.

What plans did the federal government have for discussions with B.C. to find employment there?

Mr. Howard said 1,000 fishermen in the herring industry on the West Coast are unemployed because of decisions made by the federal fisheries department. What steps would be taken by Ottawa to assist unions, companies and provincial officials to find other work for the men?

Mr. Marchand said the answer to both questions was the same.

"We have manpower centres in British Columbia which are in touch with the provincial authorities and it is the job of these manpower centres to find solutions to these problems," he said.

Joint Research Of Bottom Fish Resources Set

TOKYO (AP) — Representatives from Japan, Canada and the United States agreed today to conduct a joint survey of bottom fish resources in North Pacific waters, a Japanese source said.

The decision was made at a three-nation meeting of the International North Pacific Fishery Commission which began in Tokyo Monday.

The source said the delegates will discuss at Friday's plenary session the period and method of the survey of the resources such as flatfish and cod in the Bay of Alaska and in waters off the coasts of the states of Oregon and Washington. The survey was proposed by the U.S. and Canada, the informant added.

On salmon and trout resources, he went on, the delegates adopted a recommendaton to the effect that each nation should consider conservation of salmon resources in its future fishing operations.

The delegates also decided that regulation of halibut fishing be continued in the Bay of Alaska and in the Bering Sea.

The decisions are in the form of recommendations to the governments of the three member nations.

COMMUNIQUE DUE

At its 1966 meeting in Vancouver, the commission made the halibut recommendations, which included reduction of halibut fishing period in the eastern Bering Sea and closure of extensive sections of the southeastern Bering Sea — a nursery ground for young halibut.

The source said the 1968 commission meeting will be held in Seattle in November. The 1967 meeting is expected to end Friday afternoon following a plenary session in the morning. A joint communique is expected to be issued.

U.S. officials said American delegates have expressed concern about Japanese salmon operations in the Chukchi Sea, north of Alaska, but are now confident that Japanese catches in the area will "not be too high."

This U.S. reference to Japanese salmon fishing is believed to be that conducted twice since last year on an experimental basis by Hoko Fishing Co., of Tokyo. Hoko reportedly caught about 80 tons of salmon and trout in those waters.

'Peace Would Bring World Catastrophe'

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — A newly-published book, purporting to be a suppressed U.S. government report predicting a possible worldwide catstrophe if peace were achieved, was sold out this week in many book stores here.

However, the U.S. arms control and disarmament agency firmly denied that the book—Report from Iron Mountain: On the Possibility and Desirability of Peace—is one of its studies.

Written in the language of bureaucracy, the book said the dislocations which would be caued by the absence of war and armament, without careful planning, would mean the end of the U.S. as a state.

Despite the official disclaims, Arthur I. Waskow, an author of books in the field of disarmament, said the book makes references to a report he did which was privately circulated in government circles here.

SERIOUS consideration of a Vietnam ceasefire "even if it has to be unilateral" has been proposed by U.S. Gen. Lauris Norstad, former NATO commander. He said the impact of the war on the U.S. economy and on the attitude of the American people warrants consideration of a ceasefire.

POOL PHONES ADVOCATED

VANCOUVER (CP) — The water and recreation section of the B.C. Safety Council Wednesday recommended amendments be made to new regulations governing swimming pool safety to make mandatory installation of telephones at pools and circuit breakers on underwater lights. The new provincial regulations go into force Jan. 1, 1969.

Gov't Dropping Annuities Sale

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is withdrawing its active selling of new government annuities but will continue servicing its present contracts for the next 60 years or more, a labor department official says.

Discontinuing the sale of government annuities was recommended by the Glassco royal commission on government organization in 1962.

The government first started selling them in 1908, and until recent years they were the principal basis for group retirement insurance plans.

Breath Test Reading Challenged

A defence lawyer Wednesday in magistrate's court challenged the credibility of breathalyser reports.

Dermod Owen-Flood, defence counsel for Josepth Fraser, 4443 Wilkinson, charged with impaired driving, asked that the testing apparatus be produced in court.

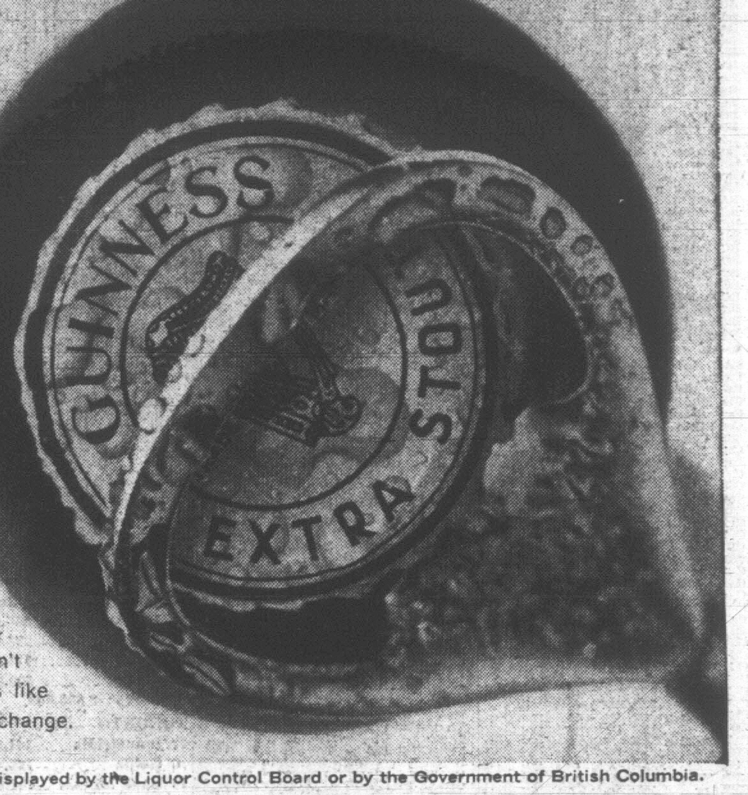
The request came after Constable Bruce Campbell told the court he gave Fraser a breathalyser test Oct. 22 and obtained a reading of .13 per cent.

Mr. Owen-Flood said he wanted the equipment produced so it could be checked by an expert defence witness.

Magistrate Ostler suggested the constable does not have the authority to produce the Breathalyser.

"It seems to me that if you want the machine, you will have to summons the chief of police to produce it," he said.

Finally the magistrate suggested Mr. Owen-Flood and prosecutor Cory Stolte attempt to reach an agreement on the matter and set Nov. 24 to continue the trial.



Guinness pulls this off five million times a day

How's that for openers?

Why do people drink five million glasses of Guinness daily? Well, it could be Guinness' delightful touch of bitterness. Or that rich, creamy texture. Or perhaps its deep ruby colour. This old Irish brew is unique. Constantly unique. Now in British Columbia, Guinness is available where beer is sold and enjoyed. So why don't you discover the brew that tastes like no other on earth. Just for a change.

Isuzu Bellett.

When it comes to cutting corners, we're square.

That's why the Isuzu Bellett ended up with 4-speed syncro-mesh and a 71 h.p. engine that tops 90 m.p.h. (That's 42% more horsepower and 13% more speed than the biggest-selling economy car.)

And the Isuzu Bellett ended up with 4 doors and 4 headlights. (That's 100% more doors and 100% more headlights than the biggest-selling economy car.)

And the Isuzu Bellett ended up with an all vinyl interior. Whitewalls. Undercoating. And a locking gas cap. All standard equipment. (The biggest-selling economy car doesn't have any of these features so there's no percentage figuring it out.)

There's one place we're at a standoff with the biggest-selling economy car. We have independent 4-wheel suspension. So do they. We don't mind sharing the glory on this one point.

Of course, we get up to 40 miles to the gallon. That's why we call the Isuzu Bellett an economy car.

Otherwise, it would probably be the cheapest luxury car going.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP)—Rapeseed prices showed broad advances in trade today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange following early irregularity.

In the background of rapeseed trade were advances in soybean prices at Chicago and overseas support. Hedging sales in both rapeseed and flax were light reflecting producers hesitancy to deliver.

Flax prices were lower.

Blue Chips in Comeback

A wide range of long-neglected key stocks advanced from fractions to one or two points, reflecting solid investment demand.

AT TORONTO General Products Manufacturing A jumped 5 to 89 and Levy Industries 3¼ to 39½.

Inco moved up 1½ to 117 and Texaco 1 to 31.

CPR dropped 1⅛ to 60¼. Jefferson Lake and Famous Players slipped 1 each to 57½ and 40½.

Among base metals, Denison was down 80½ and Hollinger ⅜ to 25⅝. Rio Algom picked up ½ to 35.

In western oils, Scurry-Rainbow dropped 1⅛ to 40⅞. Dome Petroleum moved up 1¼ to 51¾.

AT NEW YORK a rise of about two points by Chrysler showed the way for autos and steels.

News of Chrysler's tentative labor agreement with the United Auto Workers and the latest earnings statements which showed favorable comparisons against the year-ago third quarter helped sentiment.

AT MONTREAL gains and losses were about evenly matched in trading today.

International Nickel gained two points to 117¼. Hudson Bay Mining tumbled two points to 57, erasing Wednesday's fractional advance, and Cominco and Husky Oil each dropped about ½ point.

CPR fell ½ in active trading of 13,000 shares and Canada Cement and Dominion Textile were shaded.

AT LONDON the half-point increase in bank rate had little effect on stock markets today. Gilts which were already lower ahead of the news, fell further after the announcement.

Canadians also were mainly lower despite the further improvement in Canadian markets. Firm exceptions were provided by Trans-Canada Pipe, Inco and Hollinger.

Leading industrials generally were narrowly irregular. Bowater recorded a small gain. Toronto and Nova Scotia were firm in Canadian banks.

AT VANCOUVER mines were up and oils and industrials mixed in brisk trading before noon today.

Western Exploration led the trading with over 186,000 shares. Western went up .21 cents to .88, a new high. It had reached .94 earlier in the day.

Dynasty and Granduc were both up .10, Dynasty to $7.20 and Granduc to $6.35.

In the oils Peace gained .02 to .31.

Neon in the industrials went up to $9.62, a new high, but settled back to $9.50 for a gain of .25.

CN Operation Impresses U.K. Gov't

LONDON (CP) — The Labor government was reported today to be highly impressed with the operations of Canadian National Railways and likely will seek some guidance from this publicly-owned body on corporate policy that could affect the future of the debt-clogged British railways system.

A spokesman added, however, that while the British transport department is keenly interested in Canadian operations, there is no question of offering the chairmanship of British railways to N. J. MacMillan who heads the CNR.

John Morris, parliamentary secretary to the transport ministry, flew to Montreal late last month to confer with MacMillan and other CNR officials. There was speculation in the British press today that in the course of those talks, MacMillan was offered the chairmanship of British Railways and turned it down.

The spokesman said that while it is true that Sir Stanley Raymond, 54-year-old chairman of British Railways, is being asked to take another job, it is not true that the British government is looking for a possible replacement in Canada.

Hydro Hopes To Avoid Rates Boost

VANCOUVER (CP) — Despite rising costs, B.C. Hydro hopes to avoid raising prices this year, co-chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum says.

"It will be a miracle if rates don't go up this year," Dr. Shrum said at a service club meeting. "And we expect to perform a miracle."

In an interview later, he said B.C. Hydro was being squeezed by rising costs in wages and equipment.

"But we're hoping to effect economies to offset these," he said.

Dr. Shrum said costs of the Peace River dam project had increased by $70,000,000, but this would be offset by extra revenue due to power production starting in 1973 instead of 1983, as originally planned.

Labor Income Scores Gain

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor income is running 10 per cent higher this year than a year ago, the bureau of statistics has reported.

It said paid workers received an estimated $2 638,000,000 in August, nearly 1 per cent more than in July and 9.3 per cent more than in August last year.

Cumulatively, paid workers received $20,150,000,000 in the first eight months of 1967, 10 per cent more than the 1966 cumulative total of $18,312,000,000.

Savings Bond Response Off

By AB KENT
Business Editor

Kent

Response to the current Canada Savings Bond issue in Victoria is down from the last two years, according to a quick bank survey.

Two main reasons are the tendency to cash purchases rather than roll-overs of previous CSB issues, and the comparative attraction of corporate and some provincial bond issues at 6½-7½ per cent yield against 5.48 per cent average yield on savings bonds.

One bank manager said public response is off 50 per cent to last year, when a similar yield was available. Both issues have compound interest features that double investment in 13 years.

The latter factor discourages roll-overs, hence most individual purchases are by cash.

By contrast, the payroll deduction plan is doing as well as it has in the past, having virtually the same clientele.

Banks do most of the bond selling aside from payroll deduction, but investment houses account for a substantial number of sales.

Local investment dealers agree that sales this year are below 1966 and 1965 levels.

One dealer said prospective bond buyers are "pretty lazy if they haven't got some corporates at 7 or 7½."

This same dealer said he had the feeling the bond market has bottomed out, but could not put his finger on any indicators.

One of the bond dealers said there has been a "perceptible change in climate" through a better reception to recent new issues.

He would be surprised to see any early fluctuation in prices, he said, but the next significant change will be upward.

That may be a few months in coming, however, but meanwhile dealers would have time to clean up inventories.

Vancouver Stock Exchange will close early Monday in recognition of Remembrance Day.

B.C. prospectors are becoming more professional-minded and have recently incorporated a society to set examinations for members, among other things.

Pacific Northwest Society of Prospectors was registered as a society Oct. 20 to provide accounting, business, financial, engineering "and other professional assistance" to members enabling them to dispose of properties more satisfactorily and profitably.

The society is empowered to engage full-time staff to man a business and information centre, to set a minimum scale of fees to be charged by members in carrying out their work and to promote the general and professional well-being of prospectors.

Finally, the society may set examinations which must be passed by prospectors before they are considered qualified prospects for the society.

Six men named as directors in the articles of incorporation are prospectors: Ian C. McMillan, W. Douglas Savage, J. Cliff Turner and John H. Gerlitzki, all of Vancouver; Harry D. Merrell, of Merritt, and Ralph A. Sostad, West Vancouver. A seventh director is Vancouver lawyer M. Michael Sikula.

The supersonic thunderclap that accompanies faster-than-sound flight may be known in North America as the Boeing boom, after the SST project culminates in 1971.

That's the year Boeing's supersonic transport is scheduled to fly, provided a ban-the-boom movement does not kill the government-subsidized project.

A significant movement against the prospect of great atmospheric crashes induced by supersonic flight is being mounted in the U.S. and abroad, but so far it has not affected Boeing development progress. At the same time, the major U.S. airlines which will buy the plane are worried about public reaction to the boom.

Crown Introduces 10,000 Documents

VANCOUVER (CP)—The prosecution in a federal Combines Act case Wednesday introduced close to 10,000 documents as a single exhibit in support of the Crown's contention that a price war led to freight rate fixing by five Canadian freight-hauling companies.

The documents were admitted as evidence by Mr. Justice Hugh F. Gibson of Ottawa in Exchequer Court. They were introduced by Crown Counsel Richard P. Anderson.

The five companies are charged with conspiring to prevent or unduly lessen competition in transporting goods imported frm the Orient, and with conspiring to unduly limit facilities for transporting or dealing in various articles or commodities.

The companies are J. W. Mills and Son Ltd., Kuehne and Nagel (Canada) Ltd., Overland Import Agencies Ltd. (formerly known as Leith-Dyke Forwarders Ltd.), Denning Freight Forwarders Ltd., and Johnston Terminals Ltd. The Crown claims the conspiracy to fix rates between Vancouver and Eastern Canada was in effect from January, 1956, to August, 1966.

Mr. Anderson contends that a bitter price war between Overland and J. W. Mills and Son led to a formal agreement on pool car rates from Vancouver to points in the east.

He says the formal agreement was later abolished in favor of a "gentleman's agreement" on setting prices as a result of federal government investigation under the Combines Act.

The case continues.

RISK PACTS STUDIED

TORONTO (CP)—A plan to provide risk insurance for some direct Canadian investment in developing countries is under federal consideration, Trade Minister Winters told an international development seminar Monday. The seminar was sponsored by York University.

He said the plan is one of several techniques the government is exploring to encourage private Canadian investment in such countries.

Alberta produced 145,000,000 bushels and Manitoba 90,000,000 bushels, an increase of 14 per cent over the 1966 figure. (CP Newsmap.)

Railway Layoffs Causing Concern

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Large layoffs by the railways across the country are causing grave concern here as an indication that the booming economy is heading into serious difficulties.

Operations of the railways are watched closely by economic experts in the government. The railways are indicators of the health of the economy.

When the railways are operating with peak loads and their cars click clacking across the country at a steady rate, the health of the economy is good.

When the railways encounter a slump — look out. That is the word from the experts within the government whose job it is to keep their fingers on the economic pulse of the nation.

Wheat shipments are down.

The movement of mine products is down.

Manufactured products and miscellaneous freight shipment are down.

FARMERS HIT

When shipments of wheat fall off drastically it means farmers are not getting the income they had a year ago or two years ago. When farmers aren't making money from their wheat they don't buy automobiles, or refrigerators or other household goods or farm machinery.

When these purchases fall off the railways don't have the same amount of freight to move across the country.

Transport Minister Hellyer has explained to Parliament that the large layoffs of men by the railways are due to the total decline in rail traffic this year.

Some 4,000 railway employees have been already laid off. Almost every area has been affected, T. C. Douglas, NDP leader, pointed out in the Commons this week.

He warned that many of these may be permanent lay-offs. He forecast that lay-offs may reach as high as 10,000 before the spring.

Eldon Wooliams (PC—Bow River) pressed the government to set up a meeting with the managements of the CPR and CNR to discuss the lay-offs. Robert Muir (PC—Cape Breton North and Victoria) also called for such a meeting.

Mr. Hellyer said this would involve discussions with other ministers. He indicated to the house he was not yet in a position to say whether such a meeting was to be held.

Cost of Living Down in October

OTTAWA (CP) — Lower food, clothing, and transportation prices pushed the consumer price index down two-tenths of a point to 150.5 early in October, from 150.7 in September.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics said the decline would have been greater but was offset by higher doctors' and dentists' fees, housing costs, and the prices of recreational and reading materials.

The index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, was 145.3 in October last year. Today's report shows that consumer prices at 3.6 per cent higher than a year ago, a narrowing of the spread which prevailed earlier this year. It was 3.9 per cent in September and four per cent in August.

The October food index was down 147.8 compared with 148.5 in September mainly because of lower prices for fresh fruits and vegetables in harvest season.

Lower prices for apples, grapes, potatoes, carrots and other root crops were partly offset by higher prices for oranges, bananas, tomatoes and lettuce. Beef prices were higher but pork, bacon, ham, and sausage prices were lower.

CLOTHING PRICES LOWER

Women's wear prices were lower in the clothing index, mainly for fur coats and other items of ladies' outerwear. It fell one full point to 133.7. Lower prices also prevailed for footwear and piece goods, but children's wear prices were higher.

The lower transportation index, down to 157.9 from 158.4, reflected the customary introduction of lower rail fares for the off-peak travel months.

Both higher rents and increased prices for new homes sent the housing index up to 153.1 frm 152.6 in September. This index counts for nearly one-third of the total consumer price index.

The health and personal care index rose to 193.2 from 191.4, largely as a result of higher professional fees. Drug prices fell.

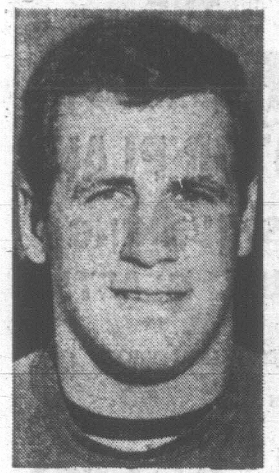
Stakes Are Big When Tyees Take on Bucs

Performances both on and off the field will be important Saturday night at Royal Athletic Park.

On the ragged and dying turf Victoria Tyees will be tangling at 8 p.m. with Sacramento Buccaneers in a game that will probably decide which of the two wins out in battle for fifth place in the Continental Football League's Western Division.

Tyees, leading the Buccaneers by one game, will be playing their final home game of the season and for many of them, the battle with Bucs will be a major factor in gridiron employment for next season, either in the Contintental League or in a more lucrative circuit.



DAVE DILLON

Important for the future of the Tyees and, perhaps, for the city will be the numbers of spectators and the enthusiasm dipslayed in the stands.

This time more money at the gate and greater encouragement for the Tyees are not the main reasons for hopes of Victoria owner-coach Don McKeta for a large and noisy crowd. Plenty of people could ensure the stability of a professional football club in Victoria.

Wandering around Athletic Park Saturday night will be Jim Garrett, who is on a fact-finding mission for the National Football League, and John Anderson, on a scouting trip for Los Angeles Rams.

Garrett's objective is to assess the potential of Victoria for supporting a football club, to look at available facilities and to make recommendations on players he believes are worthy of tryouts with NFL clubs.

Anderson will be mainly watching the players who might eventually help the Rams, but his impressions of enthusiasm could be vital to the Tyess because it is believed both the Rams and Green Bay Packers are interested in using Victoria as a base for a farm team.

Both National and American League teams are showing greater interest in supporting farm teams as a means to keep active players who are normally held on "taxi squads" and to develop potential professional stars. The Continental League is the largest of the minor grid circuits and presumably the one major league clubs will consider first.

"What we would like," McKeta explained after announcing the planned visits of Garrett and Anderson, "is to get subsidization and a team like the one in San Jose."

San Jose Apaches, who put on a display of power here last weekend, have received help from San Francisco 49ers and Oakland Raiders. In fact, players with the Apaches one week have been turning up in Oakland uniforms the next weekend.

Several Tyees Rate Consideration

Although McKeta declined to name actual players, he believes several of the Tyess deserve consideration by big league teams.

Among them must be rated linebacker Fred Forsberg, defensive lineman Glen Gardner and defensive halfback Tom Foster. Also possible candidates for a move up the ladder are lineman Wendell Jones, halfback Steve Jones, and defensive halfbacks Jim Whitmore and Dave Dillon. Quarterback Terry Durham, with his roll-out ability and running talent, might interest Canadian pro clubs.

Although most clubs in the Continental's western section have had problems this season, executive director Danny Hill has compiled a report that reflects considerable optimism.

"Progress has been about what was expected," Hill said in his report, "and league officials have been particularly pleased with increased attendance in the West, evidenced by gradually-improving attendance and interest shown in 1968 franchises by a half-dozen new cities."

Hill reported that paid attendance at the first 22 Western Division games this year totalled 96,165 for an average about 4,400 fans per game.

"Not much by comparison with NFL sellouts," Hill continued, "but significant in comparison with the 2,500 or less drawn by some American League clubs in their first season, 1968. Just seven years later, Oakland drew 53,474 fans for a game with San Diego."

Victoria Tyees, of course, can never expect to attract huge crowds but McKeta is confident they can generate enough fan interest to at least break even under the plans he has drawn up for next season, when Portland and Spokane may join the western division along with two southern teams.

He will probably need subsidization from a big-league team, and he could use the money that will be forthcoming if any of the present Tyees are selected for NFL tryouts.

And with those tryouts a possibility, the Tyees should be going all out Saturday night. So should the Bucs.

Buckaroo Burst Piles Up Points

PORTLAND (AP) — Eight Portland players hit the scoring column here Wednesday night as the Buckaroos thumped Phoenix Roadrunners 8-2 in a Western Hockey League game.

The victory lifted Portland into a second-place tie with San Diego, each with 11 points.

It was the only league game scheduled.

Roadrunners kept pace with Portland until the 7:22-minute mark of the second period when a goal by Doug Messier broke a 2-2 deadlock and put the Buckaroos ahead to stay. Portland added two more before the period ended and added another three in the final period.

TWO AIDES ON WAY OUT . . . . . . BUT MORRIS STAYS WITH B.C.

Parker Hiring Starts Shuffle

JACKIE PARKER

VANCOUVER CP) — British Columbia Lions will retain Ron Morris as assistant coach but may release assistants Tony Knap and Al Evans, head coach Jim Champion indicated Wednesday.

"Morris will be here next year," he said.

Asked about the status of Knap and Evans, Champion replied:

"I prefer to say there will be some changes. I am not firing anyone because I did not hire them."

Morris, Knap and Evans were hired before the start of the 1967 season by Dave Skrien, who was fired as head coach last August and replaced by Champion.

Earlier Wednesday, Lions announced that Jackie Parker, one of the all-time Canadian football backfield greats, had been signed as an assistant coach.

Parker, 35, who led Edmonton Eskimos to three consecutive Grey Cup victories from 1954 to 1956, will join head coach Jim Champion's staff immediately.

"I've always felt that Parker was a very smart football man," champion said. "We all know he has proven himself a fine leader."

Parker, former star at Mississippi State University, has won the award as Canada's most outstanding player five times and was an all-star for eight successive years.

He was head coach of the Toronto Rifles of the Continental Football League until he resigned early this season.

During his 13-year career that ended with a knee injury last year when playing for Toronto Argonauts, Parker scored a record 744 points.

He completed a total of 1,035 of 1,970 passes for 15.750 yards carried the ball 805 times for 5,143 yards and tossed for 88 touchdowns.

Parker was with Edmonton from 1954 to 1962 and joined the Argos in 1963 before he was sidelined with a knee injury in the 1966 season.

He is scheduled to move to Vancouver from Toronto in January.

GAME MONDAY

Vernon Steps Past Cougars

Victoria Cougars are without a scorer among the top ten of the British Columbia Junior Hockey League, but that won't hurt coach Doug Anderson's feelings, for the moment.

"I guess you can say I'm from the old school," Anderson said Wednesday, "but I still like defensive hockey.

"Certainly, it is nice to have all the high scorers on your team. On the other hand, I would prefer depth — with everyone sharing in the scoring — than to load down one line."

Anderson thus continued to emphasize defence at the team's workout Wednesday.

VERNON MOVES UP

Cougars started out the day in third place, but find themselves fourth today. The shuffle came about in Vernon when the hometown Essos scored four unanswered goals in the first 21 minutes and held on for a 5-3 victory over Kelowna. That moved Vernon into third.

Cougars conceivably could slide further down the ladder. Fifth place Kamloops plays in Penticton tonight and could, with a victory, move ahead of Victoria.

The Kamloops squad will visit Victoria's Memorial Arena on Monday. If affords Cougars a chance to make up ground lost during this week's idleness.

KELOWNA THREATENS

At Vernon, before about 1,100 fans, Kelowna scored three times in 11 minutes to threaten Vernon's lead.

Rookie Ray Mathews moved up to take over in goal for Kelowna and made 31 stops.

Jeff Wilson and Tom Serviss each picked up three points in Vernon's victory to jointly move into sixth place in the individual scoring race.

PASS KEY?

Hunger Pains In East

TORONTO (CP) — Hunger may be the key Sunday when Toronto Argonauts clash with Ottawa Rough Riders at Lansdowne Park in the sudden-death Eastern Football Conference semi-final.

The big hunger for Ottawa probably will be a desire to start earning back the estimated $2,000 each player lost by not ending first in regular-season play as they—and almost everyone else—expected. Each Rough Rider is reported to have a bonus clause for that much for winning the league.

The Riders were second by a single point to Hamilton Tiger-Cats and must enter the two-game, total-point final against the Ticats by beating third-place Toronto.

Two Toronto players desperate to win the 11 a.m. (PST) game, to be broadcast nationally by CTV, are quarterback Wally Gabler, halfback Bill Symons and fullback Jim Dillard.

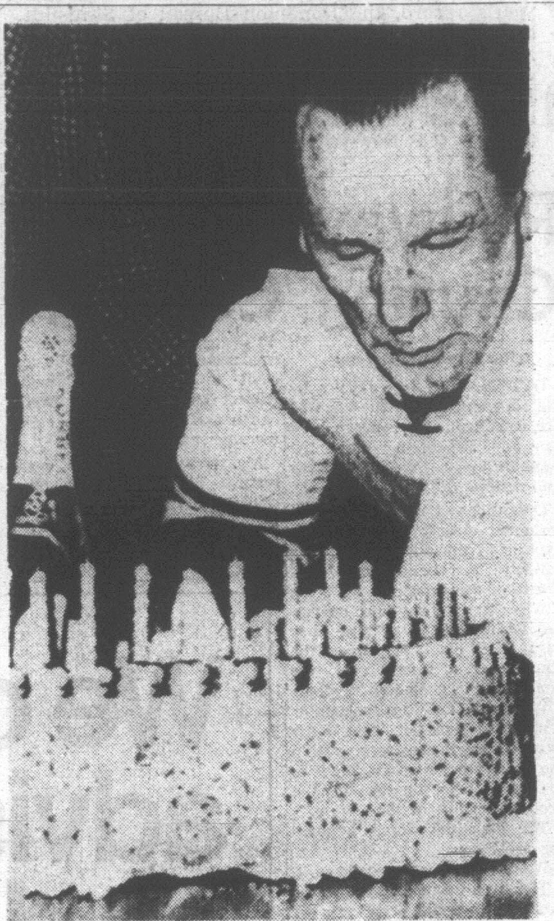
Gabler, Dillard and Symons all are suffering from beatings by Hamilton defenders last Sunday in the final league game, which Argos lost 9-5.

They will all be in action Sunday, although rib bruises picked up by Gabler and Symons and a re-injured knee suffered by Dillard could keep them below par.

The big thing with Gabler is that he blames himself for the loss to Hamilton and is concerned that his passing in recent games has not been up to standard.

"If we get our passing attack going, we'll be okay. Passing is the key," said Gabler.

Dillard was unhappy last year with Ottawa and would like to beat them out of the Grey Cup game, which will be played in Ottawa Dec. 2.



DID HE MAKE A WISH?

When he finished blowing out 43 candles on birthday cake between periods of National Hockey League game Wednesday night in Oakland, Toronto goalie Johnny Bower didn't say whether or not he had made a wish. However, Oakland owner Barry Van Gerbig later may have wished he had not donated cake because Bower played brilliantly as Maple Leafs whipped Barry's Seals 6-1. (AP Wirephoto.)

One Big Break May Decide It

By The Canadian Press

The only safe prediction about Saturday's Western Football Conference sudden-death semi-final is that anything could happen.

Both teams—Saskatchewan Roughriders and Edmonton Eskimos—have had great games this season. Both also have driven their fans to despair with occasional dismal performances.

The outcome in Regina Saturday could be decided almost before the clubs step on the field if one team has a bad day. In particular, much depends on the performances of the quarterbacks. Saskatchewan's Ron Lancaster and Edmonton's Frank Cosentino and Terry Baker all have had their troubles in some games this year.

BREAKAWAY THREATS

Eskimos' Jim Thomas and Saskatchewan's Ed Buchanan are capable of swiftly changing the shape of any game with their breakaway running.

Buchanan especially may be due for a big game. Up to mid-September this year he was second only to team-mate George Reed in yards gained rushing with a season total of 530. From that point on, Buchanan added only about 150 yards to his season total as Reed carried the brunt of the Saskatchewan ground attack.

The weather is promising for the contest. Taylor Field is reported in perfect shape and both sides are healthy.

EVENLY MATCHED

At least on the basis of the latter half of the regular season, when Eskimos caught fire after a slow start, the teams appear evenly matched.

The CBC will carry the game in black and white on its national television network beginning at 12 noon (PST).

Two outstanding goalkeepers in the Inter-High School Soccer league face each other Friday, threatening to make the championship playoff between defending champions Victoria High Tyees and Mount View Hornets a defensive fight.

Kjeld Brodsgaard of the Tyees and Mount View's Graham Lee each allowed only seven goals past them in the 10-game regular schedule. Brodsgaard, kicking penalties for his team, also scored four goals. He also had five shutouts, compared with four for Lee.

John's Assist Proved Icing On Leafs' Cake

By The Canadian Press

The 44-year-old Toronto Maple Leafs netminder did just that Wednesday night and came within a goal of giving the Leafs a National Hockey League shutout as they beat Oakland Seals 6-1 before a sparse crowd of 4,749.

But he made up for the one slip, when Aut Erickson beat him after Toronto had taken a 1-0 lead in the second period, by getting his first assist of the year on a goal scored by defenceman Allan Stanley.

He cleared to Keon at mid-ice and the speedy centre skated behind the Oakland net and passed perfectly to Stanley for an easy shot.

Between the first and second periods, Bower had been presented a birthday cake at centre ice by Oakland owner Barry Van Gerbig.

The victory moved Toronto into first place in the Eastern Division, two points ahead of New York Rangers.

In other action, Chicago Black Hawks picked up their third win of the season with a 3-2 victory over Montreal Canadiens, the Rangers missed their chance to stay with the Leafs by losing 6-3 to Boston Bruins, Philadelphia Flyers tied Pittsburgh Penguins 1-1 and Minnesota North Stars battered St. Louis Blues 5-1.

The Boston victory jumped them two places in the standings, a point ahead of Montreal and idle Detroit Red Wings in third place, a point back of New York.

In New York, the Bruins got two goals from 22-year-old rookie Derek Sanderson, with Ken Hodge, John Bucyk, Bobby Orr and Tom Williams adding one.

Two goals by Stan Mikita, finally starting to reach his form after a series of early-season ailments, and one by Pit Martin made the difference for Chicago.

SCORES ON REBOUND

At Pittsburgh, Ab McDonald batted in a rebound with less than five minutes to play to give the Penguins their tie after Bill Sutherland had scored for the Flyers.

Among the more outstanding efforts of the night was that of Sanderson—who drew praise from both is own coach Harry Sinden and manager-coach Emile Francis of New York.

Killing a penalty midway through the second period, the centre last season with Niagara Falls Flyers of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series drifted in on Ranger goalie Ed Giacomin and zipped it home from behind a mass of New York defenders. It tied the score 2-2.

His second came just six seconds gone in the third period when Ranger defenceman Arnie Brown fanned in trying to retrieve the puck after the faceoff and Sanderson swooped down to hammer it into the net.

PRAISES ROOKIE

Sinden said after the game the play of the big rookie was an example of what can be expected from his new-size centres this season.

"We had the smallest centres in the league last year," said Sinden who traded away Murray Oliver, Pit Martin and Ron Schock in the off-season. "Now, with Derek, Phil Esposito and Fred Stanfield we have three of the biggest."

ATHLETES SHOULD REPLENISH . . . . . . MOISTURE AND MINERALS

Old Spitting Habit May Be on Way Out

By KEN PRITCHARD

NEW YORK (CP) — You've often seen it. A sweating athlete takes a swig of water, swishes the fluid around in his mouth, and spits it out.

The somewhat sloppy customs may be on the way out in the wake of research that proves athletes who replenish the fluids and minerals lost through perspiration outperform those who don't.

Team physicians and trainers have been trying various ideas for years. Salt tablets have been added to the water given athletes, in a bid to prevent muscle cramps and nausea which can be caused by water alone. But the salt sometimes caused more discomfort than the thirst it slaked.

Finding favor with many athletic teams now is an electrolyte mineral replenisher drink. At least one is being produced commercially while others have been developed independently by physicians and experimenters.

Taken frequently and in small doses, the drink is, in effect, and "instant meal."

Dr. Gerard Balakain of Englewood, N.J., is one individual who has developed an electrolyte drink. The doctor three years ago noticed his son and other high school football players sucking oranges to quench thirst during a game and reasoned that they needed an efficient way quickly to replenish lost liquid and minerals.

The formula he developed contains salt in small amounts, a potassium compoud for depleted muscle cells, dextrose and sucrose as an energy souce and vitamin C to help blood clotting in case of cuts. Like the commercial product, this one is lemon-flavored. The important ingredients are the water and salts, which make possible quick absorption into the blood stream.

Controlled experiments, the doctor says, have shown the formula does what it is supposed to do—renew energy. It is not in any way a stimulant, however, the doctor emphasizes.

TEE TOPICS

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Fireworks, despite bans here and there, were ignited on Halloween. And while it didn't happen, someone should have lit a Roman candle, or two, after last week's announcement that Victoria-area golf clubs have formed a turf grass association.

The news drew only casual comment. It deserves more, especially from the vociferous club member who continually yaps about increasing dues.

It won't defeat inflation, but the greenkeeping co-operative group hopes to cut a few financial corners. And not just grass.

Primarily, course maintenance will be the major concern. But clubs are already talking about exchanging equipment and participating in bulk buying.

You have a post-hole digger, and I have a gravel-assorter. But, at the moment, I need the digger . . . and rather than buy what could be an expensive piece of machinery, I'll borrow. . . .

Catching on?

Bulk buying, as suggested, could produce a certain saving. Most clubs, for example, purchase such items as fertilizer and weed-killer on a "whenever-needed" basis.

Two years ago, Colwood stepped out and purchased a year's supply of fertilizer at almost half the cost of bit-by-bit buying. It stands to reason that if all district clubs got together and made one great purchase, the saving might be even greater.

Welsh Extend Touring Kiwis

SWANSEA (Reuters) — The New Zealand Rugby Union's All Blacks were given the toughest battle of their tour of Britain so far Wednesday by West Wales although they eventually won 21-14.

The New Zealanders came from behind twice, trailing 6-0 after 14 minutes and 14-13 with only 16 minutes to play.

In a late rally, the All Blacks scored a try and a goal in the last eight minutes.

The All Blacks stuck to their pre-tour promise and kept handling the ball. The policy paid dividends and produced two fine trys, both score by centre Graham Thorne when the team was behind.

IT'S A CHANGE:

O'Keefes Eye Province Cup

Vancouver's Firefighters are on their way, but the burning soccer topic in Victoria at the moment is the fact that O'Keefes have decided to enter the Province Cup competition.

That's a change in policy.

Only once in the past nine years has Victoria's Pacific Coast Soccer League entry decided to compete in the provincial competition and a chance to try for the Dominion Cup.

KENNEDY CUP OUT?

And one reason for the change of heart, said a team spokesman, is because the future of the international Kennedy Cup tournament seems to be in doubt.

O'Keefes, regular-season champions of the Coast League, last year won the international tournament over teams from Los Angeles, San Francisco and Mexico.

With professional soccer making inroads in the U.S., including Lost Angeles and the San Francisco areas, soccer officials feel the days of the international event are numbered.

TOO MANY DELAYS

Also adding reason to O'Keefes decision is the fact that there are altogether-too-many "off" weeks during the two months the Province Cup competition is held. Manager Frank Grealy feels O'Keefes "might be better off by keeping active" with a game a week.

Last weekend, for example, was an off week for Victoria but O'Keefes scheduled an exhibition game in Nanaimo. O'Keefes won, 5-2.

Chinooks Have Respect For Swiftest of Saints

Want a name to remember? Try Brent MacLean.

Regardless of whether you will be able to recall the name in a couple of days, Victoria Chinooks will be thinking of Brent MacLean hour by hour until at least late Sunday afternoon.

MacLean, you see, is the swift young man who puts the zip in Vancouver CYO Saints, currently deadlocked with Chinooks for first place in the Inter-City Junior Basketball League.

Saints and Chinooks, who each have collected five victories in six starts this season, will clash in two games at Central Junior High School, Saturday at 8:30 p.m. and Sunday at 1:30 p.m.

Two victories by either club would boost the winner into a comfortable position while a double loser would be dropped back into the pack.

Twice winners of the national junior crown in the past five years, Saints have built their fast-breaking attack around MacLean. Remarkably quick, the former Alberni high school star engineers most of the CYO plays and is a consistent scoring threat.

With six-four forwards Bob Cunningham, Claire Wakefield and Brian Hyland rugged rascals on the boards and quick to cash in on MacLean's playmaking, the Saints have been averaging more points than the Chinooks.

However, the Victorians have slightly better defensive record and coach Moe Turner declared today his Chinooks, with scoring strength well distributed, are ready for the Saints at any time.

The first time is Saturday night but before the junior clubs lock horns, Oak Bay and Esquimalt boys' high school teams will tangle in a 1 p.m. tussle. Oak Bay's pep band will heat things up for fans both Saturday and Sunday.

REWARDS FOR ACCURACY

Shoot Them Straight And See Hoop Celtics

Almost every young basketball player wants to see the famed Boston Celtics in action.

For two of Victoria hoop-tossing youngsters the dream will come true February 24 at a National Basketball Association game in Vancouver. Accuracy in foul-shot shooting will decide who earns the trip.

Starting this Saturday when Victoria Chinooks meet Vancouver CYO in an Inter-City Junior Basketball League game at Central Junior high School will be free-shot contests for all boys on under-12 and under-14 teams in the city minor basketball program.

Competition will continue at remaining home games of the Chinooks until a winner is decided in each age group. The two winners will be invited to be guests of the Chinooks for a trip to Vancouver to watch an NBA game between Celtics and Seattle Sonics.

Bulldogs Square Western Final

WINNIPEG (CP) — St. Vital Bulldogs scored a late fourth-quarter touchdown Wednesday night to edge St. James Rams 11-7 in the second game of the Western Canada senior football final.

Rams won the first game of the best-of-three series Sunday 29-28 on a last-minute punt single.

The third and deciding game will be played here Sunday.

Quarterback Wayne Skene tossed an 11-yard pass to end Henry Bryner to cap a 40-yard march for the winning points.

PRO PLAYOFF COULD BE RICHEST

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Pro football commissioner Pete Rozelle predicted Wednesday the world championship game in Miami's Orange Bowl next Jan. 14 would be the first in history to gross in excess of $3,000,000.

Ticket sales would bring in $796,822 based on an expected full house of 75,546 for the game between the National and American league champions. Television and radio broadcasting revenue of $2,500,000 would bring the total of $3,296,822.

Ticket prices are $6, $8, $12.

Green Bay Packers defeated Kansas City Chiefs 35-10 last January. Tickets for that game were priced at $12, $10, and $6. Gross ticket sales was $707,560.

Each player and coach on this year's winning team will receive $15,000. Each losing player and coach will get $7,500.

'U.S. SCHOOLS BETTER AT TEACHING FRENCH'

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians living in the United States have found French is taught better in schools there than in Canada, a Canadian teacher discovered during a two-month investigation of the American educational system across the United States.

"It's a Canadian myth that their schools are inferior," Dr. Gerald Nason, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Teachers' Federation, said in an interview Wednesday.

Police Chief Fired By New Negro Mayor

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Wasting no time in fulfilling a campaign pledge, Mayor-Elect Carl B. Stokes Wednesday night replaced Cleveland's police chief in an attempt to improve relations with the Negro community.

He named Police Inspector Michael J. Blackwell, a member of the force for 43 years, to replace Richard R. Wagner, who had been chief since Jan. 1, 1963. Stokes had promised to oust Wagner because he said the chief was insensitive to the problems of police relations with the Negro community.

NO ENROLMENT CUT

Earlier Start Seen For Uvic Next Year

No cut in student enrolment faces the University of Victoria next September.

This was stated by Robert T. D. Wallace, Dean of Administration, following an announcement by the University of British Columbia that its enrolment may have to be limited in the year 1968-69.

"We expect we can probably handle the classroom situation for another year by taking whatever emergency measures may be necessary," said Dean Wallace.

"These measures include starting lectures earlier in the day and running them later, and also scheduling classes at lunch hour."

"It may be necessary to run laboratories in the evenings also," he added.

A recent meeting of the UBC senate adopted the following statement:

"The university reserves the right to limit enrolment in 1968-69 and thereafter if its facilities and resources are inadequate."

UBC's enrolment currently stands at 18,400 and Uvic's at 4,075.

More Immigrants

OTTAWA (CP)—An increased inflow from all parts of the world has brought 174,593 immigrants to Canada in the first nine months of 1967, compared to 144,534 in the same period last year.

England, Italy, the United States and Scotland continued to be the major sources and the only countries from which the flow to Canada exceeded 10,000.

Park Keeps Witty Name, Board Rules

A new park was given an old name Wednesday and an old park was presented with a $28,500 addition.

Witty's Lagoon, purchased as a regional park for $104,800, was officially named Witty's Lagoon Regional Park by the Regional Distirct Board.

In addition to ensuring the Witty name goes down in perpetuity the board will extend official thanks to the surviving members of the Witty family for permitting the public to use their property for recreation purposes for many years.

The board paid $28,500 for the property at 693 Brookleigh Road to give the park a more solid north-easterly boundary.

Former owner of the property Edward Dysart will continue to live in the house on the property until next June.

CARELESS DRIVERS

Fined in magistrate's court Wednesday for careless driving:

Kerry Frank, of Courtenay, involved in an accident on the Trans-Canada Highway near Colwood, $50; James MacKenzie, 1613 Cook St., involved in an accident on the Trans-Canada Highway at Sooke Lake Road Aug. 11, $50.

TRICKED INTO ACTS OF TERRORISM

Jailed Sons Seek Release

VANCOUVER (CP) — Twelve Sons of Freedom Doukhobors who are serving penitentiary terms for terrorism imposed five years ago have asked Justice Minister Trudeau to review their cases.

Their submission to the minister was revealed Wednesday in a letter that outlined events leading up to their convictions and the parts played in those events by leaders of the sect.

The men, currently serving terms between 10 and 15 years in Mountain Prison at Agassiz, said in their letter that conspirators took advantage of them through their desire to migrate to the birthplace of their parents and grandparents.

"This aspiration was kindled to such an extent we were ready to do anything as long as this came to pass," the letter said.

It also states the men were told by a leader, who they accuse as being a police agent, that the Canadian government would not evict them to Russia unless acts of terrorism were performed.

The letter is signed by John Ostrikoff, Bill Babakaeff, Fred Nevokshonoff, John Makortoff, Mike Chernenkoff, Sam Knokin, Andrew Makortoff, Peter Knokin Nick Repin, William G. Konkin, Pete Repin and John Morozoff.

Originally, there were 100 members of the Sons of Freedom sect in the Agassiz prison but many have been released on parole or transferred to other Canadian prisons.

Two Men Drown In Cariboo Lake

No Admittance to persons under 18.
Enough people to break attendance records.
That's marvelous. But every now and then someone stalks out before the picture's over. About a dozen people since we opened.
Twelve out of thousands. Twelve angry people.
That's a shame. Not because they were upset. But because they didn't give themselves a chance.
Look, a new shot at the truth is always a jolt. Ask any of the twelve who walked out.
But it's usually well worth it. Ask any of the thousands who didn't.

CANADIAN FOLK TALE

Love Restores Innocence In Visiting Ballet Triumph

By KATHRINE THOMAS

Last night's performance of Rose Latulippe was a triumph.

A sell-out audience at the Royal Theatre wildly applauded the Royal Winnipeg Ballet's production of Brian MacDonald's first full-length Canadian Ballet.

The legend of Rose tells of a young French-Canadian girl who, at Mardi Gras, is tempted away from her sweetheart by a sinister stranger, a member of the ruling class.

In Rose Latulippe Mr. MacDonald has made use of the conflict that arises as he says "from family devotion versus the headstrong impulse of youth, respect for the seigneurial aristocratic class coupled with a fear of corruption by it, a strong predilection for the supernatural and belief in miracles, and a love of dancing tinged with apprehension of the licence it can induce."

Rose is caught between the mystic demonic power of The Stranger enforced by the tempting music of De De the fiddler and the forces of home—the Church, the family and human love.

The ballet is really an allegory for the loss of innocence and its restoration through the miracle of love.

The Stranger is a rather ambiguous figure in the ballet. In the opening act set in a French Canadian barn dance he appears as the slightly ludicrous lord, condescending and pompous.

EVIL MAN

In the second act when he struggles with Anselme, Rose's sweetheart, for possession of her sould, he is frightening and evil.

But in the last act, the dream of miracle sequence, he becomes transformed into the archetypal redeemer. Rose is not saved by her mother, her lover or her friends—she is restored by the tenderness and concern of the Stranger.

Mr. MacDonald has taken this arresting tale and made out of it a strong and moving ballet. While the first act is a bit slow to start it is enlivened by an amusing winter skating scene and the gay folk-dancing of the typically French Canadian barn dance.

As choreographer, Mr. MacDonald has skillfully interwoven classical style en pointe with the rustic movements of the folk dance. Harry Freedman's musical score complements the steps with tunes that effectively reflect the French Canadian mood.

But it is in the second and third act, where the folk-dancing is left behind for the dynamic movement of classical ballet that the dancers and the dance are most effective. The struggle between the two men for Rose is brilliantly contrived and executed.

And it is here that Sheila Mackinnon as Rose comes into her own. Her performance is overwhelmingly moving. Miss Mackinnon is not only a stunning dancer, she is an excellent actress. Her portrayal of Rose from the slight, hesitant young girl through to the maddened, bewildered and anguished woman is deeply arresting. She runs the gamut of emotions truthfully and powerfully.

GREAT SKILL

David Moroni who plays the Stranger also gives a performance of great skill. He is technically a brilliant effortless dancer who seems to soar through the air.

His transition from the elegantly haughty seigneur to the demon lover is effective and appealing.

Richard Rutherford, always an excellent dancer, brings passion and desperation to the role of Anselme, Rose's sweetheart. He is particularly moving in his desperate attempts to forestall the Stranger.

The smaller parts in the ballet were all performed skillfully. Anna Maria De Gorriz brought great comic talent to the part of Rose's high spirited friend. Her skating mishaps were delightful.

Churchill Role Out For Burton

LONDON (Reuters) — Actor Richard Burton declined a part in a controversial new play because his wife, Elizabeth Taylor, had real-life connections with the characters, it was learned this week.

The play is The Soldiers by West German Rolf Hochhuth which implies that Sir Winston Churchill had a hand in the wartime death of Polish leader Gen. Vladislav Sikorski.

British producer Kenneth Tynan told reporters: "Burton was tremendously keen to play the part of Churchill."

However, Burton had to turn down the part in The Soldiers because Miss Taylor's godfather, Maj. Victor Cazalet, was the liaison officer to the Polish leader and he died with him in an air crash near Gibraltar in 1943.

"Burton felt it would be in poor taste if he took the part," Tynan said.

ACTOR Robert Vaughn says President Johnson will be told Friday that 5,500 registered Democrats are dissociating themselves from his administration and they hope to encourage a peace candidate to run for president in 1968. Vaughn heads a group called Dissenting Democrats.

Carvings Sought For B.C. Display

Herbert Warren, city parks superintendent, a member, has urged the society to purchase the carvings of Lillian Sweeney, who died in December. 1961.

The collection would be donated to the province.

One member has already offered to make a substantial contribution towards the purchase.

It consists of 33 birds, all exquisitively carved in balsa wood—so realistically that they could be mistaken for the work of a taxidermist.

The collection has been evaluated at $2,000, but Mrs. Dickson is prepared to let them go for about $500.

Mrs. Sweeney was staff artist at the provincial museum from 1936 to 1947, and created out of wood, paper mache, and plaster, models of fish, mushrooms, insects, sharks and dinosaurs.

When King Edward VIII came to Victoria as Prince of Wales in the twenties, Mrs. Sweeney was commissioned to make a model of a salmon he caught in Vancouver Island waters. The model when completed looked like the real thing. It still hangs in the Duke's trophy room.

She also painted in oils and watercolor. Some of her works were purchased by the government.

Born in Winnipeg, Mrs. Sweeney came to Victoria in 1906. She studied at the Mark Hopkins School in San Francisco and later in Chicago.

SENATE CUTS FOREIGN AID

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Senate approved and sent to President Johnson Wednesday a compromise $2,670,000,000 foreign aid authorization bill cut drastically from Johnson's original recommendations.

Johnson had sought $3,200,000,000.

The Senate approved it on a voice vote after the House of Representatives narrowly defeated a bid to send it back to a conference to seek inclusion of a ban on aid to countries dealing with North Vietnam.

U.K. Laborites In Major Revolt

Government's Austerity Program Poses New Challenge to Wilson

LONDON (AP) — A major revolt erupted inside the governing Labor party today against the government's austerity policies.

More than 70 Labor MPs signed a motion seeking an immediate change in the government's employment program.

This program envisages a rising level of unemployment this winter, partly to keep down imports and partly to encourage industrial mobility.

Prime Minister Wilson acted swiftly in the Commons lobbies Wednesday night to head off an open revolt but failed.

Political sources said he offered the rebels a debate on employment policy behind the closed doors of the Labor caucus room two weeks from now. They rejected this attempt to take the heat out of the issue and went ahead with their motion.

REVOLT WIDESPREAD

The revolt presents a more than usually serious challenge to Wilson because the rebels are not confined to the party's militant left wing. They include right wing members from the trade unions and veteran party workers like Emmanuel Shinwell.

Behind the revolt lies a speech in Argentina Oct. 5 by Sir Leslie O'Brien, governor of the state-owned Bank of England. He argued that Britain needed a higher and permanent pool of unemployment if new industries and developing areas are to get the men they need.

The speech brought protests at the time. Only the day before, at Labor's annual convention, Wilson himself had pledged that the party remains wedded to full employment.

In the Commons Tuesday, however, Chancellor of the Exchequer James Callaghan backed up O'Brien's view and said they represent government policy.

Many Laborites were openly saying Wednesday night they had been tricked—that Wilson must have known when giving his pledge Oct. 4 what his head banker would be saying Oct. 5.

Michael Foot, leftist sponsor of the rebel motion, said he will seek to bring it under Commons debate today. Parliamentary experts said his chances of succeeding are slim but that the government may eventually be obliged to yield debating time.

SECOND HIKE IN THREE WEEKS

Britain Boosts Bank Rate

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain today raised its bank rate, key to interest levels, one half of one per cent to 6½ per cent.

It was the second half-per-cent increase in three weeks and the third this year.

With pressure on the dollar and the pound, and the present position of United States and British monetary policy, today's rise was regarded in financial circles as inescapable.

The increase came amid signs of reflation but these reflected consumer and government spending rather than boosted exports which would help the pound and the balance of payments.

Britain's foreign trade figures for October—known to be seriously harmed by seven weeks of wildcat dock strikes—will be published next Tuesday.

The September trade figures, less affected by the strikes, were poor. October's will reflect the full effect of the stoppages holding up shipment of exports worth about £200,000,000 ($600,000,000).

Today's 61 per cent rate restored the bank rate to the level it was at early this year.

Official circles made it clear that the only reason for the increase was to relieve pressure on sterling. It is not intended to dampen relation at home.

But the increase will be reflected in bank loan charges and will probably bring an increase in instalment buying interest rates before long.

CLERK 'BURNED UP' BY ANTI-VIET GROUP

YORK, England (UPI)—Railroad clerk John Grey "terrorized" a city as he carried out a one-man battle against a local anti-Vietnam war group, a magistrates court here was told.

For three months Grey went on a "round of burnings," setting fire to the homes of members of the group, prosecutor Peter Palmes said.

When discovered Grey told police "I wanted to do to them what the terrorists are doing in South Vietnam. There is nothing political. I just believe that the Vietnam group are wrong."

SIGHTINGS REPORTED ACROSS ONTARIO

Police Being Trailed by UFOs?

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The national Defence Department has in its possession a dublicate set of 35 mm slides and one set of photographic prints of an unidentified flying object, Parliament was informed officially Wednesday.

The House received this information on the same day that six of the Ontario provincial police detachments reported sighting a UFO.

OPP officers patroling out of Ottawa, Lancaster, Brockville, Long Sault, Renfrew and Hawkesbury reported observing a flying object that they could not identify.

The reports agreed that it was "a very bright object, larger and more brilliant than the stars that hovered, gleaming and fading with a regular beat, low in the night sky."

Edward Schreyer (NDP—Springfield) has been pressing the government in the Commons to throw some light on all the reports of UFOs in western Canada in recent months. But he has not met with much success.

PHOTOGRAPHS

He was informed recently in written replies that the departments of defence, health and welfare and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police have conducted an investigation into the sighting of a UFO by Stephen Michalak at Falcon Lake, Manitoba. Defence Minister Leo Cadieux said it is not the intent of the national defence department to make public the report.

Wednesday Mr. Schreyer asked if the defence department was in possession of photographs of airborne objects. He said he understood the photographs were given to the department by Warren Smith of Calgary.

NEWSPAPERS

Mr. Schreyer asked if any of Mr. Smith's photographs were made available to any Canadian newspapers or magazines. Mr. Cadieux replied that they were not given to the newspapers by the defence department.

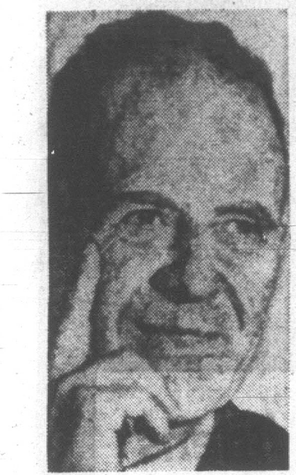
(A number of newspapers published the photographs.)

Canadian newspapers that had asked for copies of the photograph were referred to Mr. Smith, said the defence minister in his written reply tabled in the house Wednesday.

Mr. Schreyer asked: "In all cases where defence department officials have interviewed persons reporting the sighting of unidentified flying objects, have departmental officials requested such persons to not communicate with newspapers reporters?"

Mr. Cadieux replied: "All persons who communicate information to the defence department on alleged unidentified flying objects do so on their own volition and are in no way requested to suppress the release of the information to any other person or persons."

Bail Denied Union Officials



DAVEY
. . . rejects bid

VANCOUVER (CP — Bail was refused Wednesdqy for two officials of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union, but their freedom was extended because an order to take them into custody was not available.

Chief Justice H. W. Davey of the B.C. Court of Appeal refused the bail for union president Steve Stavenes and secretary Homer Stevens.

The pair were not taken into custody following loss Tuesday of their appeal against conviction on contempt of court charges arising from a fishermen's strike last spring in Prince Rupert.

"We asked the RCMP if we were to be taken into custody, and they said they hadn't had any orders to do so," said Mr. Stavenes Wednesday.

The union officials lost their appeals against conviction when judgment was delivered Tuesday following hearings in Victoria.

The union is also seeking leave to appeal a $25,000 fine arising from the dispute. The two officials are also appealing their sentences.

All three appeals will be heard Monday in Victoria.

Character Test Urged For Court Releases

OTTAWA (CP) — A private bill that sponsor Barry Mather (NDP—New Westminster) said aims at shifting the emphasis to release rather than bail was scrutinized this week by the Commons standing committee on justice and legal affairs.

Eldon Woolliams (PC—Bow River) said magistrates now have the discretion to release an accused without bail but are often too busy to exercise it.

"Reform has to go deeper," he said, recommending that the number of magistrates be increased or their jurisdictions decreased.

He also said contact between magistrates and police is too close and police "brainwash" magistrates. They should be kept apart.

Mr. Mather said the present bail system discriminates against the poor, the friendless and the homeless. Release should be based on character rather than on money.

Watch Out For Blondes

Police report that two ash blonde wigs were stolen recently from Lloyd's Beauty Salon, 299 Menzies Street.

The wigs were valued at $90 and $125.

If you've got a great rye whisky...

why corn it up?

This may surprise you, but practically all of those top-selling Canadian whiskies that call themselves "rye" are mostly made from corn. It's a shame, because an all-rye whisky is delightfully different. It's clean and clear and g-e-n-t-l-e, as only a real rye can be. Corn up a good whisky like Alberta Premium? Never!

320 Workers Walk Off Mill Jobs

About 320 workmen walked off the job Wednesday in unrelated incidents at two mill expansion projects.

At Crofton more than 250 pipefitters left work on the B.C. Forest Products mill to protest the firing of a fellow worker.

Shop steward Tom Williams said the man was fired by his supervisor for non-production after being told earlier by the supervisor to slow down on his job because of lack of work.

Electrical work on the $105,000,000 expansion of MacMillan Bloedel's Powell River mill has stopped in a dispute which resulted in the firing of about 60 electricians.

About 90 members of Local 213 of the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers staged a work stoppage Monday to protest the firing of one man.

Only a third of the men returned to work Wednesday after a letter from the contractors, Flanders Installations of Vancouver.

About 70 electricians employed by Commonwealth Hume Construction walked off the job Wednesday in sympathy with the other men but no picket line has been set up and other work on the project is continuing.

Union officials from Vancouver were expected to arrive shortly to try and resolve the dispute.

GIRL DIES

Religion Case Goes To Jury

BARNSTABLE, Mass. (UPI)—A manslaughter trial involving a Christian Scientist mother who said her religious beliefs precluded getting medical aid for her five-year-old daughter, who eventually died, was expected to go to a jury today in superior court.

Both sides rested their cases Wednesday with closing arguments after Mrs. Dorothy Sheridan, 30, of Harwich, testified in her own defence.

Asked by defence attorney Walter J. Skinner if she chose Christian Science "for your child in wanton disregard for her life," Mrs. Sheridan said, "No."

EFFECTIVE

She explained she used Christian Science instead of medical help "because I felt it was the most effective form of healing."

Her daughter, Lisa, died of a lung ailment last March 18 after a three-week illness. Authorities said she would have lived if she had been given proper medical care.

Dist. Atty. Edmund Dinis said in his summation the jury should find Mrs. Sheridan innocent if it felt her religious beliefs justified her in not calling a doctor.

"But if you find that parents who wish to make martyrs of themselves cannot make martyrs of their children, find the other way," he said.

Contests Assured In 2 Areas

DUNCAN—Contests are now assured in both the Duncan and North Cowichan elections in December.

Two newcomers to municipal politics have thrown their hats into the ring in the city.

Roy Harder, 32, a B.C. Telephone employee and retired pharmacist Elmore Clark are to contest aldermanic seats.

Ald. Hamish Mutter is the sole mayoralty candidate and Ald. Barney Cocs is still undecided about seeking re-election.

Coun. Reg Clegg is retiring after eight years' service.

Arthur Mayse

Not so long ago, the operator of a cottage string would cross his eyes and spit at the mere mention of campers. By degrees, however, a change of attitude is being forced upon the professional hosts who ply their trade in holiday country. Quite a few have added campgrounds of a sort to their layouts; and this week in Victoria, Ernest Shauer, newly-elected president of British Columbia Motels and Resorts Association, suggested an even warmer wooing to members gathered for their annual convention.

By urging that camper needs receive much more attention, Mr. Shauer placed himself in approximately the position of a cattleman who would open the rangeland to sheep. I respect his courage no less than his good sense.

I also think that private campgrounds of the sort he suggests — comfortable oases with laundries, well-equipped washrooms, lounge areas and playgrounds—would be very well patronized.

While I question the assumption that campers in general avoid motels because they can't afford the rates, it's true that some are unable to cough up $150 or more for a 10-day vacation stay.

For these, if they are that way inclined, Mr. Shauer's improved camps of the future would provide an ideal compromise between cottage life and tenting in its more primitive aspects.

Unfortunately, too many of today's private campsites are anything but ideal.

The space they occupy is more often than not a second-rate area located back of the motel proper. It is woefully exposed, and the only efforts at improvement are those provided by the campers themselves.

These grounds are often crowded to a point where tents and trailers are ranked shoulder to shoulder and such washroom facilities as they offer would shame a pig.

(In fairness, camping couples who let their children behave as they would never be permitted to do in a home bathroom contribute to that last condition.)

We turn now to a camper of another sort; and whether his roof be of canvas or metal, he will be no more pleased that I was with the speaker's claim that "with good facilities, the camper can be upgraded out of the B.C. government campsites."

The upgrading needed is in the quality of such private campsites as we possess. As for the government camping parks, nine times out of ten they offer the best camping deal in their area, and my only criticism of them is that they are far too few.

They serve a camper of a breed that hasn't the slightest wish for a fancy layout. As long as he's allowed to, he will remain stubbornly aloof from such blandishments as the motel trade may offer in hope of extracting his often-plentiful dollars.

He wants a fair degree of privacy, which practically all our government parks offer him. He likes a campfire and a sufficiency of trees, and the strange fellow actually prefers to leave most of home's comforts behind him.

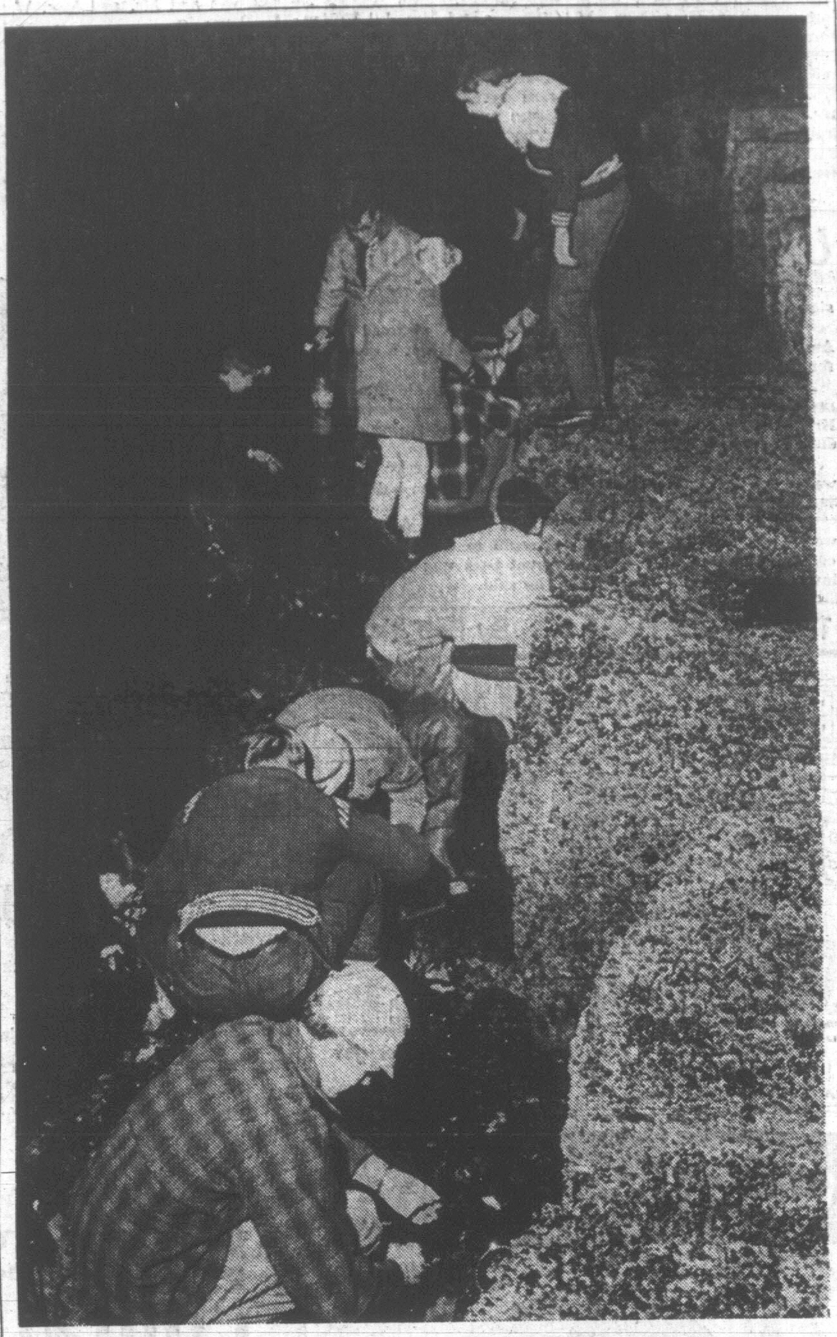
I wouldn't say that he's precisely roughing it, but he has achieved the basic living he prefers.

We still have a great many campers of this sort. I remember one husband and wife team from Oregon who were able to pay their way in any motel or resort, but simply didn't want that kind of a holiday.

They had a splendid outfit, they knew how to handle bad weather, and they enjoyed every minute of their Vancouver Island stay.

The site where they raised their tent was in a large, well-kept private ground that also provides furnished cottages, plus low-rental one-room cabanas to which you bring your own cooking gear and bedding, and a batch of trailer and tent locations.

Add boat rentals and launching, and you have an all-round operation that pays off even in seasons when many a motel man is dolefully contemplating his vacancies.



WHAT'S MISSING? Nothing really. It's a search for knowledge by students in the junior botany class of Dr. Alan Austin, biologist at the University of Victoria. They prowled Ogden Point breakwater in a field excursion to gather marine algae samples. With low tides between 9 p.m. and midnight at this time of year, flashlights and lamps are a must. Specimens go back to the lab for a closer look. Course includes instruction on zone levels where seaweed is found, its life history and economic importance. Dr. Austin has been conducting detailed study of local inter-tidal vegetation for 2½ years. (J. J. Philion photo.)

'Grave' Challenge Faces New Board

The new district will be responsible for all future hospital planning and financing.

Reeve Curtis, who is also the chairman of the Regional District, assumed his new position shortly after being presented with the letters patent by deputy minister of the department of health services and hospital insurance D. M. Cox.

Making the presentation he called for the fullest co-operation between the new super-hospital board and other levels of government.

"I have no doubt that this board will function well," said Reeve Curtis. "But I also feel that I must say that the board will speak out most forcefully if it feels that any particular level of government is sloughing off any of its responsibilities."

GRAVE CHALLENGES

Mayor Hugh Stephen, a director on the new district board along with all other existing members of the regional district, said grave challenges faced the new organization.

"I think we realize what those challenges are," he said. "We must make all members of the public aware of our determination to tackle this (hospital) problem and solve it. We shall face up to our responsibilities and the program which is undoubtedly going to cost us many millions of dollars."

One of the first tasks facing the new hospital district will be the formation of a technical advisory committee formed from hospital staffers throughout the area.

LIMIT COMMITTEE

The advisory committee will be limited to approximately 12 representatives selected by individual hospitals.

Although both the Regional District Board and the Regional Hospital District Board are comprised of the same executive and membership, they function as entirely separate bodies. bodies.

Regional Board Elections Set December 9

The annual elections for the Regional District Board and the Regional Hospital District Board will be held Dec. 9 in unorganized areas of Greater Victoria.

Nominations for positions on the directorate of both boards will close Nov. 27.

Directors from organized areas are appointed by their various municipal councils and must be duly elected council members.

Voting powers of the directors vary according to the population of the community they serve.

Victoria and Saanich each seat several members on the board and each municipality has a total of 12 votes giving the two major areas the bulk of the voting power.

RESTRAINT ASKED ON RENTS

The addition was made in a brief corridor interview just before a scheduled cabinet meeting.

Asked by a reporter whether there were any developments in his call last month for voluntary controls to combat inflation, the premier indicated there weren't but then added "I especially request landlords not to increase rents throughout this province".

Little Polly-Ann Will Visit 35,000 City Homes on Friday

Polly-Ann, the youngest victim of TB found in B.C. through an Operation Doorstep survey this year, is visiting 35,000 Victoria homes Friday.

Christmas Seals support the fight against tuberculosis, and seek out other crippling chest diseases. The campaign is sponsored by the B.C. Tuberculosis-Christmas Seal Society.

In opening the campaign which runs between now and Christmas, president Kenneth Vaughan-Birch, who was elected to the post in Victoria earlier this year, and who is Vancouver's city traffic engineer, stated that such projects as Operation Doorstep, continuing medical education, and the respiratory disease section at University of B.C., all depend on the success of the campaign.

In announcing the start of the campaign Mr. Vaughan-Birch also called for the support from all stores which normally have a Santa Claus, to make certain he has a tuberculin skin test and chest X-ray, before greeting his thousands of young visitors.

Victoria resident Mrs. M. Alice Kimmitt is honorary life member of the B.C. Tuberculosis-Christmas Seal Society and is a society director. Campaign headquarters will again be at 190A Fort Street, 382-4422.

Municipalities To Share Tax On New Court

Formula to Cover Only One Building

The four core municipalities will share a $4,000 tax bill for the new Family and Childrens' Court building now under construction.

The pledge to pay their tax share was made Wednesday afternoon by Reeve Allan Cox, Oak Bay; Reeve Hugh Curtis, Saanich, and Reeve Ray Bryant, Esquimalt.

It was Reeve Cox who suggested the compromise gentleman's agreement after Mayor Hugh Stephen sought endorsation of a resolution making it possible for individual municipalites to levy taxes against property owned by the Regional District Board.

The new court comes under the jurisdiction of the regional district but is being built expressly to serve the four core municipalities.

While winning unanimous support for the general principle of taxes being levied against regional district property, several board members expressed concern at the ramifications of a general endorsement without prior detailed study.

ALSO FOR PARKS?

Reeve Jim Cumming, North Saanich, said he definitely supported Mayor Stephen's suggestion.

"But I don't think it can just apply to buildings," he said. "In North Saanich and in general along the Saanich Peninsula we are being hit quite hard by the acquisition of regional parks. As soon as that happens the property goes off our tax rolls."

"I find myself in the difficult position of agreeing completely with Mayor Stephen and yet having to urge caution," he said. "The ramifications are great and I think we should study the entire problem before passing a final decision. And yet I agree fully with the principle that Victoria should not lose the taxes on the new court building which is being built for, and will be used by, all four municipalities."

Woman Injured In House Fire

Tried To Fight Blaze

An elderly baby-sitter was taken to hospital for observation today after an explosive house fire at 1153 Pembroke.

Mrs. Mary Modeste, 73, of Duncan, was incoherent and suffering shock. Her hair was singed when she tried to fight the fire with a bucket of water.

The fire destroyed an upstairs bedroom in the old wood-frame shingled house. Flames were shooting through the upstairs window as four city fire trucks arrived at about 11:20 a.m.

EXTENSIVE DAMAGE

Firemen were required to chip through sections of the roof to douse the flames and damage is expected to be heavy.

Mrs. Modeste was taken to the home of a neighbor, Mrs. R. C. Warren, then to Royal Jubilee.

Mrs. Warren said Mrs. Modeste had come from Duncan to care for the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Morrell while Mrs. Morrell, Mrs. Modeste's daughter, was in hospital. The Morrell's pre-school-age son was the only other person in the house when the fire broke out.

SMELLED SMOKE

The child is in care of Mrs. Warren.

Fire officials said that when Mrs. Modeste smelled smoke she opened the door of the upstairs room and found it blazing. She tried to fight the fire with a pail of water.

It was not immediately known who turned in the alarm or how the fire started.

Mumps Top Disease; 23 Cases in Saanich

Mumps took over in October as the leading communicable disease in the Greater Victoria area.

Senior metro health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread said the 37 cases reported during the month was slightly higher than usual but that there was no cause for alarm.

Saanich reported 23 of the 37 cases, Esquimalt 10. Oak Bay had one mumps case, Central Saanich two and Sidney one.

Number two disease in the area during the month was infectious hepatitis with 30 cases reported, half of them in Victoria.

"Of the 15 cases in Victoria proper, eight were in Victoria West among residents living close to the Gorge," Dr. Whitbread said. "The others were scattered throughout the city."

Esquimalt had six cases, Saanich four, Langford-Metchosin-Colwood three and Oak Bay and North Saanich each one.

Other communicable diseases reported in the monthly Metropolitan Health Board statistics were: scarlet fever, seven cases; streptococcal sore throat, nine; chicken pox, 10; measles, two; rubella, eight; salmonella, one and viral meningitis, one.

Ferry Work Approved

A communication from B.C. Ferry Authority to B.C. Federal Employees' Union at 3 p.m. Wednesday brought relief from threats of an impending ferry tie-up.

Canadian Labor Congress spokesman Tom Gooderham said the message, from ferry manager M. F. Aldous confirmed that the B.C. cabinet has approved new working arrangements.

Earlier Wednesday Mr. Gooderham had warned that unless response came from the cabinet soon a work stoppage could result on ferries connecting Vancouver Island and the mainland.

The recommendations approved by the cabinet had earlier been agreed upon by the ferry authority and the 700-member ferry employees union.

GREAT-GRANDMOTHER TOP HAM IN B.C.

Her Hand 'Taps' Many Friendships

By BRUCE YEMEN

A departing son's challenge to his mother back in 1939 has led to a 78-year-old Victoria great-grandmother being named British Columbia's amateur radio "ham of the year."

Mrs. Freda Muskett, 1570 Kisber Ave., was voted the honor last week by the B.C. Amateur Radio Association at its annual meeting in Vancouver. She won it on the first ballot—a rarity for the award.

Mrs. Muskett, a tiny, lively woman who was born in Victoria and has lived all but 22 years of her life here, recalls the challenge of her son Arthur when he left home 28 years ago for the Eldorado Gold Mine at Great Bear Lake where he was to be radio operator.

SIX-MONTH TARGET

Although she had no amateur radio experience and was faced with assembling her own radio kit and learning morse code to get her radio licence, her son gave her a target of just six months to get on the air so they could keep in close touch.

"I made it in three months," Mrs. Muskett smiles proudly, adding that in those days it took a lot of scrounging, trading and improvising to gather all the parts for a ham radio. Then, as now, she had the help of fellow radio enthusiasts.

FREDA MUSKETT . . . "key to happiness"

But Mrs. Muskett put her Morse code proficiency of 20 words per minute to good use during the war, helping airmen increase their code speed.

She still gives regular weekly code classes in her home and also makes it available for Victoria hams who need workshop space.

The "ham of the year" award came as a complete surprise to Mrs. Muskett—she didn't know that Victoria amateur radio club president Owen Evans was going to nominate her and she "couldn't believe it" when she won.

With encouragement of club members she is currently studying for an advanced radio licence which will enable her to use voice transmission. Using the code she has made contact with hams across Canada, the U.S. and in Australia, the Soviet Union and other countries.

She has been off the air for the past year because of "ITV"—interference from a nearby television set. Newly moved to another home, she hopes to be back on the air in a week or two.

Mrs. Muskett is looking forward to renewing radio contact with her son Arthur, who now lives in Powell River and is the only other ham in the family of four children, 15 grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren.

A son, George, was killed overseas during the Second World War. Mrs. Muskett is the widow of H. J. S. Muskett, who served as private secretary to five consecutive lieutenant-governors of B.C. in the first quarter of the century.

'WONDERFUL'

B.C.'s ham of the year has no hesitation in recommending amateur radio as a hobby "to everybody" — regardless of age and particularly to people whose families have grown up and left home.

"It's wonderful — full of friendship," she says, and agrees that nobody of normal intelligence should be discouraged by the technical challenge of the hobby.

The local club will present Mrs. Muskett — who goes by the call-letters VE7TH — with her award on Dec. 8 at its annual dinner at Holyrood House.

Ask The Times

Q. Why is there a letter V instead of the letter U in the word "building" on the Metropolitan Building on Yates Street? P.G.

A. Often the lettering on modern buildings imitates the style of lettering on old Roman buildings. In the classical alphabet of Rome there was a V sound and a U sound but only one symbol, the letter V, for both of them. Consequently in old Roman lettering there would be no letter U, only the V.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

LOCAL ARTIST GETS CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

One of Wednesday's bazaars, held in the Royal Canadian Legion Hall by the Victoria M.S. Golden Key, had one of Victoria's artists, Emily Sartain, contribute her own spirit of Christmas to the affair. The well-known painter of flowers had created the perkiest Santa, snowmen and other figures ever to enhance a bazaar stall.

As Mrs. W. A. C Bennett officially opened the event at 2 p.m., people were lined outside the door, waiting to enter the popular affair. Mrs. Bennett was introduced by Mrs. K. C. Gilbart, auxiliary president. W. H. Phillips, president of the Victoria and Vancouver Island Multiple Sclerosis Society, also spoke.

SURPRISE GIFT

A surprise came when W. Hollick officially presented a wheelchair, to be used for transportation of patients in the Cosmo bus.

Mrs. Hilda Price and Mrs. Betty Miller convened the bazaar which netted a record $1,620 for patients' assistance.

Presiding at the head table were Mrs. K. Briggs, Mrs. A. Young, Mrs. W. Champion, Mrs. W. L. Morgan and Mrs. J. K. Wyman. Individual tables were centred with gold-wrapped 'gift boxes' topped with nosegays.

Mrs. J. Hagel, Mrs. J. Bishop, Mrs. D. Mulcahy, Mrs. Gwen Graham, Mrs. Lola Richards, Mrs. T. B. Waddington and members of the Cosmo Pals acted as serviteurs.

TWO TREASURERS

The group's treasurer, Miss Alice Dougan and Mrs. T. B. Curran were in charge of receipts.

Mrs. F. Hammond and Mrs. W. Hollick convened the well-patronized home baking stall. Mrs. Betty Miller and Mrs. Marjorie Eaton were in charge of candy and jam sales.

Other stall conveners were: Aprons and sewing, Mrs. M. Moran and Mrs. Eva Haney; knitted items, Mrs. R. Hodgson and Mrs. Elsie Aitken; dolls, Mrs. C. Bacon; Christmas gifts, Mrs. D. Stewart and Mrs. Archie Wills; plants and flowers, Mrs. Phyllis Stains and Mrs. W. H. Pennock, and superfluities, Miss Bess McGillivray and Mrs. Lil Hutton.

Mrs. M. C. Scotchford assumed the role of Lady-with-a-Hundred-Pockets and the raffles were arranged by Mrs. Elsie Aitken and Mrs. Bell Norton.

The hall was festive with colorful decorations that were the work of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Goodwin and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Pennock.

Some of the hardest workers were those who kept the supply lines running smoothly from the kitchen. Working behind-the-scenes were Mrs. Jessie Champion, Mrs. Velma Acres and volunteers from the Women of the Moose.

UP HEMS—DOWN LINE

A bevy of mini-skirted stewardesses picketed Pan American Airways Tuesday to say that this is not a question for the airline to answer.

Local 505 of the Transport Workers Union said it was in protest of a threat by the company to fire pretty stewardess Kristina Goud, 23, for wearing too short a skirt during an off-duty flight on a Pan American plane.

"Up with mini-skirts, Down with Pan Am," read banners waved by the six girls outside the administration building at San Francisco International Airport.

A Pan Am spokesman said Miss Goud was told two weeks ago that her skirt did not seem to comply with the company's image. Her flight discount pass was lifted as an impromptu measure of discipline, he said.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Lowman

One of the greatest assets in happiness or a career is the ability to get along with others. This fall thousands of young people are working at their first job. It isn't always easy to get along with everyone because there is usually one in every office, school or plant, who is a troublemaker. In the case of women jealousy is very apt to play a role.

If you are working at your first job, or if you have been on the job for some time, remember that the boss is too busy to nurse your feelings along, apply hot water bottles to your ego, massage irritation cramps or straighten out mental fist fights between you and those you work with.

I have personally known of several instances when the ability to get along with others was highly rewarded and the lack of it penalized. I remember in particular one instance when the president of a large college had a vacancy at the head of one of his departments to fill.

He was greatly impressed by the scholastic achievements of a certain man. They were spectacular. However, the president decided to check on the personality of the man he was going to employ by writing to those he last worked for and with.

The report came back that he was brilliant and highly competent but he simply could not get along with the people he worked with, either those above or below him. The president no longer considered him for the job.

In another case a man who would have logically become head of a department, because of his work and his seniority, was passed by, for the same reason. He was forever having trouble with his human relationships.

Remember, too, that it is good for your health and your looks as well as your job, to get along with others.

It's buffable. The best all-floor buffable liquid wax on the market. With a shine that is every bit as deep as that of the finest paste wax, a shine that outlasts paste wax and you can damp-mop it and re-buff it over and over again.

How's that for an easy-to-use liquid wax? And it works on any floor, be it wood, tile, cork or linoleum.

We must mention here that it costs more than ordinary waxes. We don't think you'll mind because you'll save in the long run—on money and work.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan E. Towers, 1764 Oak Bay Avenue, Victoria, announce the forthcoming marriage of their youngest daughter, Judith Marion, to Mr. Paul Wilfred Godin, son of Mrs. Yvette Godin, Williams Lake, B.C. The wedding will take place on Saturday, Nov. 25, at 8 p.m. in First United Church. Rev. R. J. Morris will officiate. (Jus-Rite Portrait Studio).

Education of Eskimos Prime Need of North

Lt.-Col. P. D. Baird gave a vivid picture of the future for Canada's northern territories and told how this future could be achieved when he addressed the Women's Canadian Club in the Empress Hotel on Wednesday.

Straightening out many of the misconceptions about the northern regions, he pointed out that the areas of the Yukon and the North West Territories combined to make up one-third of the total area of Canada—"and it's not all just ice, snow, polar bears and jolly Eskimos."

He quoted the Canadian painter A. Y. Jackson as saying, "There is so much beauty up there, why leave it all to the kodichromers?"

The speaker emphasized, "Not merely a land of barren wastes, this area has some of the most magnificent scenery, some of the best fishing and hunting and most of the unpolluted water in the country."

In the Yukon and the N.W.T. there is a growing feeling of nationalism and, with the capital now moved to Yellowknife, there is a definite step toward self-government.

The Eskimos and Indians, natives to this land, are now "bewildered and depressed by the rapid onset of technological civilization."

Illustrating the unstable nature of the Eskimo's economic well-being, Lt.-Col. Baird cited the "most unfortunate ups and downs of the fur trade. When white fox furs were in fashion these pelts brought high prices in Canadian markets. Suddenly the fashion declined and the Eskimo was left without a cash income.

"This fashion was replaced by seal skins. Up to a few years ago the skins were valueless. When the price went up, seal replaced the white fox in the Eskimo's economy. Because of the protest against the sealing practices in the St. Lawrence, the Eskimo's livelihood has once again been cut off, although he has nothing to do with the St. Lawrence sealing practices."

The speaker told his audience that development is the keyword for the future of Canada's northland. With one-quarter of the world's fresh water, and untold mineral wealth, there is today a need to increase the benefits of these natural resources.

"To truly develop the northlands it is not only necessary to bring greater capital into the area, but the particular need is to provide education for the native peoples in industrial skills so that they may have a firm foothold in the country's future."

Mrs. H. H. Youson, president, introduced the speaker and Mrs. D. Leslie Macdonell, vice-president, thanked him.

Following the speech Mrs. A. T. M. Cowley, bursary chairman, introduced this year's scholarship winners, Miss Penny Bond and Gregory Schroeder, both students from Victoria Senior Secondary School, who were presented to the members.

Waldorf-Swanson Wedding In Grace Lutheran Church

Rev. David Metzger officiated at the ceremony that united Mrs. Elna Olivia Swanson and Henry Waldorf in Grace Lutheran Church.

Mrs. Gunner Nyberg as matron-of-honor chose a gold-toned ensemble with matching accessories. The mother of the bride, Mrs. Ida Johnson was dressed in a pale pink wool suit with blue accessories.

Serving as best man was George Mowat.

The guests were ushered to their seats by Larry and Brian Hurdle, nephews of the bride.

Following the ceremony there was a reception at the Red Lion Motor Inn. A single-tier wedding cake, topped with a crystal vase of pink sweetheart roses, centred the bride's table. A hot and cold smorgasbord was served to the guests.

Master of ceremonies was Everett Johnston, Duncan, and Gunner Nyberg, Vancouver, proposed the toast to the bride.

After the dinner, Ted Goodell, Chemainus, provided music for dancing.

Over from Vancouver for the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Gunner Nyberg, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Matson, Mr. and Mrs. John Leander, Earl White, Mrs. Tess Wright, Mrs. Helen Philpott, and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Goodell. Miss Dina Johnson, New Westminster, also attended.

Other out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Helge Johnson, Port Alberni, Mrs. Arnold Magnussen, Seattle; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Leachman, of Longview, Wash.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Waldorf, of Nanaimo; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Coburn, of New Zealand; Mr. and Mrs. Ted Goodell, of Chemainus; Mr. and Mrs. Everett Johnston, of Duncan, and Mrs. Marg Summers, Seattle.

MONTREAL, November 9th — Everybody complains about money... but THE BANK OF NOVA SCOTIA is doing something about it! There's their Blue Chip Savings Account, for instance. It pays a healthy 4½% interest — and encourages you to save because there are no chequing privileges. (Scotiabank has other accounts for chequing). Another tremendous help they've come up with recently is their new Scotiabank Budget Book. I'm delighted with my copy. It helps me keep track of saving and spending systematically... almost like having my own personal accountant! If you'd like to manage your household money more wisely, why not look into the many wonderful ways The Bank of Nova Scotia can help you.

WHEN IS SALT MORE THAN SALT? When it's a household cleaner, an ironing aid, a gargle... in short, when it's WINDSOR SALT, the crystal-pure salt with so many uses around the home! I use it to clean my deep flower vases, and to keep sink drains free of grease. Mixed with salad oil, it does a great job of removing rings from furniture. Used dry, it frees my iron of rough spots in a flash! And, of course, everyone knows what a great mouth-wash-gargle it makes. Why not keep a good supply of Windsor Salt around your house? P.S. Lest we forget—it does great things for your cooking, too!

ANY WAY YOU LOOK AT IT, an Honest Wash is the best policy! With the Honest Wash you can rid your clothes of bathtub-ring of the washing-machine, that dirty gray film which builds up and clings to your fabrics wash after wash. The Honest Wash leaves your clothes white, fresh smelling, naturally soft and honestly clean. Just add CALGON® water conditioner along with your detergent to your next wash and see your clothes come honestly clean. You'll find, as I have, that whenever you use Calgon you need less detergent—¼ to ½ your usual amount. Next washday, instead of disguising the problem with bleach and whiteners, etc., let Calgon get rid of it... honestly.

One of the Happiest Moments at Oak Bay Event

ELDERLY GUEST WINS 'PAL' AT BAZAAR

The annual bazaar of Oak Bay Chapter No. 42, Order of the Eastern Star, may not have been the biggest one in town, Wednesday, but it was certainly one of the happiest.

One of the most satisfying moments came when an elderly woman, who lives alone, won herself a sweet-singing budgerigar which was a prize for one of the many raffles. She was almost singing herself as she left.

As in events of this nature, the bazaar, which was held in the Henderson Masonic Hall, had many touches to remind shoppers of Christmas.

These included some of the most novel Christmas ornaments to woo a child's heart. Made of candy, there were gaily wrapped Christmas crackers, each topped with a nosegay of flowers; smiling clowns and Christmas stockings designed for the most avid "sweet tooth".

Even the most useful articles had received deft touches to make them glamorous. Toilet rolls were hidden inside bright crocheted "toppers" and tissue containers sported as much ribbon and lace as an old-fashioned camisole.

General convener, Mrs. George Marchmont, had two tea co-conveners, Mrs. Ernest Geisse and Mrs. Robert Hawkes, to help ensure success.

The chapter's worthy matron, Mrs. John S. Hunter, assisted Mrs. Marchmont in receiving the guests, who came and helped raise $300 for OES projects, which are mainly geared to cancer research and the cancer dressing station.

The event was opened by OES grand representative, Mrs. Albert Wilkerson.

Stall conveners were; Penny stall, Mrs. Arthur Curtis and Mrs. Henry Gableman; sewing, Mrs. James Clayton; candy, Mrs. Ronald Ousey; novelties, Mrs. Lawrie Dodd; pink elephants, the chapter's past matrons; home cooking, Mrs. Frank Blynn, and tombolas, Mrs. Lorne Rogers and Mrs. Shirley Anderson. Serving as door committee were Mrs. J. Horne and Mrs. E. McLagan.

The officers of the chapter pitched in to act as serviteurs for the afternoon tea.

Determined to make the day one to remember, the chapter continued its activities during the evening, producing a turkey dinner and an evening of whist and bridge games.

Mrs. G. Bayliss and Mrs. A. Drake work on two of the items that will be on sale when the Sandringham Private Hospital holds a bazaar on Wednesday from 2 to 4:30 p.m. Mrs. George R. Pearkes will officiate at the opening. Proceeds will be used to provide equipment at the hospital.

Couple Exchange Rings and Vows

A cascade bouquet of pink roses and white carnations was carried by Miss Judith Annette Simon when she became the bride of John Clifford Ozard in St. John's Anglican Church. The rose motif was picked up in the headpiece of white roses that held her four-tier, shoulder-length tulle veil. Her gown was full-length, styled on empire lines in white lace over peau de soie and accented by lily-point sleeves and a train extending from a bow at the waist.

For something old, she carried a handkerchief belonging to the groom's great-grandmother. She also wore the groom's gift of a gold cross necklace.

Canon Grahame Baker officiated at the double-ring ceremony that united the daughter of Mrs. Erna Simon, 437 Parry Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Ozard, 1411 Harrop Road. The bride was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Douglas Beckley. Autumn-colored flowers decorated the church.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Douglas Beckley, was matron of honor in a pale pink, full-length gown of peau de soie which was fashioned in empire style and accented by a chiffon train. The bridesmaids, Misses Susan Albion and Donna Hudson, wore identical entrain gowns in peacock blue tone. All the dresses, including the bride's, were made by her mother.

Best man was Jerry Ozard, brother of the groom. The guests were ushered by another brother of the groom, Joel Ozard, and Malcolm Russell.

Here from out-of-town to witness the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Emil Sanders and Mr. and Mrs. John Sanders of Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. Ernie DeRoche of Halfmoon Bay, and Mrs. W. Miller, Prince George.

The reception was held in the Sons of Norway Hall, which was decorated with streamers, bells and arrangements of autumn flowers. The bride's mother had made the three-tier cake which was topped with two doves, bearing rings in their mouths. The toast to the bride was proposed by her uncle, Emil Sanders.

For travelling the bride chose a camel wool suit with a lynx collar and matching hat, accented by black accessories and a gardenia corsage.

The newlyweds will spend their honeymoon in Portland, Seattle and Vancouver before returning to live in Victoria.

Pipe Poses Problem Which Penny Solves

By PENNY SAVER

My husband smokes a pipe. If you have had close dealings with one of this breed you will recognize many of my problems. My ashtrays are too small for the flying dottle, matches are always at a premium and every few minutes sees a frantic search for the indispensible pipe tool. But there is no lack of gift suggestions for a pipe fiend—a new pipe is always in order, tobacco always low and pipe accessories always welcome.

The other day I advanced apprehensively into a store that specializes in all kinds of smokers' supplies to buy a Christmas pipe for my spouse. Completely confused by the variety of shapes, sizes and kinds of pipes, I gave myself completely into the keeping of the competent clerk. He explained about bowls and bits, what to look for in a good pipe, why some tobaccos smell so much nicer than others — everything the novice needs to know. He almost converted me into joining the ranks of pipe smokers when he showed me some Italian pipes made for women. Decorated with rhinestones or colored leather, these pipes sell for $4.95 or $6.95 apiece.

There are many items that solve the problems of a pipe smoker and his wife in attractive ways. Pipe racks of various sizes start at $3. My choice was one designed to hold eight pipes with a jar for tobacco. Made of walnut, this model sells for $10.95.

Just the thing to reconcile the needs of your smoker and your living room decor are ceramic and leather humidors. Made in Italy, these humidors begin at $10.25 for a fairly plain model to $16.95 for one with a peaked lid, decorated with griffins. They have tight-fitting lids that are sure to keep that precious tobacco moist. Matching mortar and pestle ashtrays are available at $10. Single pipestands that double as ashtrays in ceramic with leather backs cost $5 each.

For more dainty tastes are ashtrays with a beaver design on a green, brown or teal background, made in British Columbia. Ashtrays cost $1.50 and matching candy dishes, $2.95.

Please phone me at 382-3131 if you would like to know where these items may be found.

BY CHRIST CHURCH ACW

Proceeds of $550 Raised

The sum of $550 was realized when the Evening Branch of Christ Church Cathedral's Anglican Church Women held a tea and bazaar in the parish hall. The event was officially opened by Alderman Lily Wilson.

Miss Amy Hall was tea convener. She was assisted by Miss Flossie Lawrence, Mrs. C. C. Godson, Mrs. J. Freeson, Mrs. R. D. Lamont, Mrs. C. Crerar, the Misses Alice George, Jessie Robinson, Helen Davis, Marie Foerstel and Eveline Matthews.

Led by the Misses Elizabeth Dewar and Nancy Cappleman, the girls of the Guild of St. Mary's sold Christmas cards and served tea.

Mrs. F. Laughlin was home cooking stall convener, being assisted by Mrs. Sidney Leal. Aprons, novelties and fancy sewing were sold by Mrs. Anne Welton, Mrs. A. W. Toone and Mrs. J. Stillwell.

Mrs. Lois Avery, Miss Marjory Bernard, Mrs. G. Hutcheson and Miss Ruth Scott were kept busy selling the Christmas novelties, candles and decorations they had made. The white elephant stall was manned by Mrs. M. Tyrrell, Miss Alison Chrow and Miss Gillian Clark. Mrs. E. F. Stewart sold calendars and ticket sales were in charge of Mrs. A. H. Marriott and Miss Leah Graham.

DEAR ABBY . . :

Mother-in-Law By Any Other—?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: That letter signed "Just an In-law" got my goat. Why should in-laws be "hurt" over what they are (or are not) called? If the relationship is right, they will be called whatever the new son-in-law or daughter-in-law feels comfortable calling them. If they aren't called anything, that's all right, too. The most important thing is for everyone to feel at ease.

I don't think there is any problem unless a person makes one.

VINCENT

DEAR ABBY: Will you please tell me how mother-in-law got to be such a dirty name?

I have friends with married children who detest being referred to as "my mother-in-law." Why? That's what they are.

I do not wish to be called "mother" by anyone other than my own children. It sounds so forced and artificial.

A young woman comes into the family as a stranger, really, and after having properly addressed me as "Mrs. Jones" during the time my son courted her, suddenly I am "mother"! No thank you.

CALL ME GLADYS

DEAR ABBY: Would you believe that I have been married for 4 years and have avoided addressing my mother-in-law directly because I do not know what to call her?

If she would only say, "Please, call me Hilda, or mother, or mom," I would be so relieved. Please print this as many of my friends have the same problem.

BEWILDERED

DEAR ABBY: My darling daughter-in-law didn't have to worry very long about what to call me. She (and everyone else) started calling my "grandma" five months after my son married her. I don't recommend this as a solution, but it did solve a problem.

GRANDMA

DEAR ABBY: Don't tell me about young wives who call their mothers-in-law "mother" out of respect.

I have several friends who call their mothers-in-law "mother" to their faces, but you should hear what they call them behind their backs. Respect? Hah!

AMUSED

DEAR ABBY: I think complete honesty is the answer to what to call the in-laws:

The night my daughter's beau showed up with the ring, he turned to my husband and me and said, "After Marie and I are married, what would you like me to call you?" I said, "Anything you like."

He replied, "I have a mother and father of my own, so if you don't mind, I'll call you 'Belle mere and Beau frere'."

And that's the way it's been for many years.

HAPPY IN QUEBEC

DEAR HAPPY: Tres bien. If you have "de gaulle."

Tank Find Hints Jet In Collision

LONDON (UPI)—Investigators today announced discovery of a fighter-type fuel tank near the Mediterranean crash scene of an October Comet jetliner crash, reviving theories of a collision possibly with a Russian MiG.

The Comet dived into the sea off Turkey Oct. 12, on a flight from London to Cyprus, killing all 66 persons aboard. British European Airways, the owners, called it an extrordinary crash.

The plane was nearly four miles high. The pilot had time to warn passengers to put on lifejackets but failed to radio an S-O-S. One theory at the time of the crash was that another plane had sliced off the radio aerials.

The Board of Trade accident investigation branch, conducting the official investigation, said a military jettisonable fuel tank was recovered about 10 to 15 miles east of the Greek island of Rhodes and was being brought to Britain for further examination in connection with the inquiry.

Experts will try to determine the fuel tank's source.

Such a tank could be carried by fighter aircraft on long-distance journeys, and souces said it might have been a Russian MiG being ferried from the Soviet Union to the U.A.R. Western nations denied any of their fighters were missing or involved in the Comet crash.

The Comet sank in deep water about 100 miles east of Rhodes. The depth complicated the inquiry because the only wreckage which could be examined by the investigators was the flotsam picked up by rescue ships.

100 Students Protest With Sleep-in

MONTREAL (CP) — The students council of McGill University Wednesday night asked its judicial committee to decide whether the editor-in-chief of the McGill Daily should be dismissed.

The decision was made as about 100 students continued a sit-in that eventually becomes a sleep-in protesting the university administration's decision to take disciplinary action against the editor-in-chief and two other members of the student daily newspaper.

The students council rejected a petition signed by about 2,000 students calling for the immediate dismissal of the editor-in-chief and the rest of the managing board of the newspaper.

Peter Allnutt, the editor-in-chief, and two other staffers of the Daily are accused of "conduct prejudicial to the standards of behavior acceptable to the university."

The charges arise from the publication last Friday of an article in The Daily detailing so-called events that followed the assassination of President Kennedy. It was a reprint from a United States publication called The Realist.

The students council ruled Wednesday night that Allnutt appear before its judicial committee Monday.

The committee—a group of law students—was asked to determine whether the article in The Daily "constituted an act of bad faith."

If it was judged that bad faith was involved, Allnutt would be dismissed. The council said it and its judicial committee had power only to dismiss the editor, not the entire managing board.

The council asked the university senate not to take any action against Allnutt and the other two students on the board until a judgment was made by its committee.

The university senate met earlier Wednesday to discuss the matter but any announced decision on possible action against the students has been put off until Monday.

Racial Bill Passed

SALISBURY (Reuters) — The government forced a race discrimination bill through Parliament Tuesday, despite a ruling by the Rhodesian Constitutional Council that it conflicts with the Rhodesian Declaration of Rights.

The bill, described by the only independent white member of Parliament as based on the same doctrine as apartheid racial separation, would permit local authorities to provide separate public facilities such as parks and swimming pools for different races and enforce segregation at them.

The bill, passed on the eve of a visit to Salisbury by British Commonwealth Secretary George Thomson, received the two-thirds majority needed to overrule the decision of the council.

Also passed Tuesday by a similar majority was a bill to make anyone found in unauthorized possession of arms liable to the death penalty.

The Ian Smith government unilaterally declared its independence from Britain Nov. 11, 1965.

FIRST lady mayor of Hartford, Conn., is Miss Ann Uccello, a Republican, who faces a council that is 6-3 favoring Democrats. (AP Wirephoto.)

Nomination Deadline Nov. 27

Nominations are open in Saanich for the Dec. 9 municipal election, returning officer Gordon Hayward said today.

Deadline for persons wishing to run is noon Monday, Nov. 27, he added.

About 29,000 persons are eligible to vote at the usual 13 polling stations.

Reeve Hugh Curtis announced earlier he will seek re-election as have Couns. William Campbell, William Noel and Edith Gunning. Coun. Digby Kier is undecided.

A. W. Mesher and Lionel Speller have also announced they will seek election to council. Mr. Speller said earlier he will oppose Reeve Curtis if no one else comes forward.

Martin Slaps Police Wrists In Debate on Embassy Raid

By DENNIS ORCHARD

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government took formal responsibility Wednesday for damage to the Russian Embassy by demonstrators, but at the same time put blame on the City of Ottawa and its police force.

External Affairs Minister Martin said in the Commons police took inadequate measures to deal with a noisy, rock-throwing crowd of 350 that protested a celebration of the 50th anniversary of the Bolsevik revolution.

Outside the House, he suggested a change in city bylaws to protect embassy properties.

An embassy official said there would be no further protest here beyond the verbal exchange between Mr. Martin and Ambassador Ivan F. Shepedko at the reception.

But the official said a note may come from Moscow, based on a report sent by the embassy after the demonstration.

The report said guests had been intimidated and damage caused.

The government dispatched a crew Wednesday to replace four broken windows and sand blast paint from the stone steps of the Embassy.

City Police Chief Ab Cavan defended his force. He said the demonstration did not constitute a serious disturbance.

Law Review Sought On Homosexuality

TORONTO (CP) — Two officials of the Canadian Civil Liberties Association Tuesday called for a review of laws governing homosexuality after a Supreme Court of Canada decision upheld the sentencing for an indefinite period of a man in 1965.

Sidney Linden, executive director of the association, said in an interview that he supports the British view that homosexuality between consenting adults is not a criminal offence.

The Canadian government should consider changes made recently in English law after the British parliament received recommendations of a commission on homosexuality.

Julian Porter, president of the association, said that "with consenting adults, I don't believe the law can govern morals of private bedrooms."

The Supreme Court Tuesday dismissed an appeal by Everett George Klippert, a 40-year-old mechanic, against a sentence of an indefinite period in preventive detention as a dangerous sexual offender.

Klippert was convicted by a Northwest territories court on four charges of gross indecency involving homosexual acts in four separate private acts with consenting adults involving no suggestion of violence. He admitted to being a homosexual for 24 years.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

One advantage of Landy and similar conventions is that few people have learned how to defend against it. Actually the defence is simple if you and your parner have worked it out.

Opening lead—♥ 7

The Landy two club bid asks for major suits. If you, as partner of the no-trump bidder, double two clubs you simply say that you have a good hand, and are interested in going on to game or in doubling your opponents when they get into their major suit. A bid of two or three diamonds or three clubs is competitive and nonforcing, while a bid of two no-trump is a very mild invitation to go on to game. A bid of two hearts or spades shows a poor hand but a good suit and no defence against the other major suit, while a bid of three hearts or three spades is a strong invitation to game in that suit and is bid in spite of the fact that you know your opponent is likely to hold five trumps against you.

You may also ignore the two club call completely as Jeff Glick of Miami did some years ago when Alvin Landy was making one of his few appearances at the table. Jeff and Alvin were one of our great partnerships once upon a time, and Alvin handled the three no-trump contract superbly.

He won the heart opening, led a dimaond to dummy's king and finessed against East's queen. He did this because he knew that West was long in the majors. Then he cashed his ace of diamonds, entered dummy with the ace of clubs; ran the rest of the diamonds, came back to his hand with the king of clubs, laid down the ace of hearts for his 10th trick and threw West in with a heart.

West had been forced to hang on to the ace and queen of spades and had to give Alvin one more overtrick.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

There were many people far from satisfied with Sunday's premiere telecast of Public Broadcasting Laboratory, a two-and-a-half hour news and public affairs program on the educational outlets of the U.S.

Included among them was Av Westin, executive-producer of PBL, who gave the show a grade of C-plus.

Stephen

The live, color program covered major elections where race was a factor, a filmed (last summer) confrontation between Negroes and whites in Chicago, and offered a play, a white minstrel show called "Day of Absence."

Many critics said the play was overlong and dragged in its latter stages. The author, Douglas Turner Ward, refused to permit cuts.

A total of 119 stations were scheduled to carry the program, but 29 stations declined. They were mostly in areas with high Negro populations like Georgia, South Carolina and Alabama.

Another controversial segment criticized in Monday's issue of Broadcasting Magazine was the use by the program of "anti-commercials."

These had poked fun at Aspirin commercials and the claims for the new 100-mm cigarettes. Broadcasting claimed: "We doubt that PBL will succeed by disparaging the commercial system."

PBL is underwritten by a $10 million grant over a two-year period. A total of 25 consecutive Sunday night programs is planned for each year.

The program will not give up controversy, though. Next week's main topic will be "A House Divided" and centres on the debate raging over American involvement in the Vietnam war.

It also plans to spoof more of the one-minute commercials next Sunday.

(Victoria viewers on cable will not get the program until the middle of this month when Cablevision switches over to Channel 9, the University of Washington educational outlet.)

TID BITS: ABC-TV, founder of the famed second season, will ring in Robert Wagner in a series titled "It Takes A Thief" Jan. 9. Wagner is a smooth thief "paroled into the custody of a top-secret government intelligence agency to undertake assignments which need his special talents." Original, huh?

And starting Jan. 13, The Hollywood Palace, a very popular variety show until switched to Tuesday nights this season, will return to Saturdays.

Native Australians Told: Love Will Make Them Stay

By VINCENT MATTHEWS

MELBOURNE (CP) — Love is a rare thing for many girls in Australia.

They are the immigrant girls from Europe, mainly Italy and Greece. When they get off the ship that brought them to their new homeland they feel strangers in a foreign land where the language and the customs are so different.

One in five immigrant girls rarely or never mixes with the opposite sex, an Australian immigration department investigation has discovered.

In the evenings, they watch television, visit relatives or do housework. Compared with Australian-born girls, the immigrants spend twice as much of their spare time doing household chores.

The survey concluded that they would make wonderful wives, but, because of their shyness and social inhibitions, they never get around to meeting a partner.

The immigration officials who carried out the survey have much more in mind than matchmaking. Too many discontented immigrants are leaving Australia and returning to their European homelands. During the last year, 20,000 have quit.

WORRIES GOVERNMENT

This is alarming to the Australian government, which believes this vast continent must populate or perish. It must fill its wide open spaces with immigrants from Europe or the time may come when the Asian masses to the north will leave their overcrowded lands and head for Australia.

All kinds of experts—psychiatrists, sociologists and welfare workers—are being asked by the immigration authorities to find out why so many immigrants from Europe are going home.

Most prevalent reason given so far is: Loneliness. This particularly affects women who don't get as many chances as their menfolk to meet Australians.

But there also is a reluctance by native Australians to accept the newcomers.

Immigration Minister Billy Snedden is concerned at what he says is the "malicious attitude of some Australian children to migrant children." Too often, he says, Australian children unwittingly mirror the bad habits and prejudices of their parents. They take to school with them the hate they have learned at home—and many migrant children suffer terribly.

Snedden warned his countrymen: "Australians must get it into their heads that it is their duty to make these people welcome: Migration is not something that just benefits the migrant: It's a benefit to Australians, too."

An organization called the Good Neighbor Council has started a campaign to help migrants pass through the loneliness barrier. One woman social welfare worker said: "A little bit of romance in these migrant girls' lives could make a big difference. I'm sure they would settle down and be happy in Australia then."

Season Cut Advocated For Seals

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal fisheries department is considering cutting the 1968 seal-catching season off the Labrador Front by 1½ weeks and reducing the season in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Fisheries Minister Robichaud said in an interview Tuesday a reduction of seasons is necessary to conserve dwindling seal herds in the area just east of Labrador and as marketing measure in the gulf.

The season in the Front this spring was from March 11 to April 30, and in the gulf from March 6 to April 26.

A closed meeting of the International Commission for Northwest Atlantic Fisheries in Hamburg last month proposed the 1½-week cut in the Front season, the minister said. Representatives of Canada, Denmark and Norway—countries involved in Atlantic sealing—agreed to take the proposal back to their governments.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a complete, 20 volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Arlene Hall, age 14, of Boise, Idaho, for her question:

Are elephant's teeth ivory like the tusks?

The gentle giant, as everyone knows, is the biggest animal in the world. This eye-opening fact alone is enough to make him interesting. What's more, dozens of other surprising items also set him apart from other animals. The elephant is a regular mountain of fascinating features.

The elephant's most outstanding feature is his long, mobile trunk. It has dozens of uses but possibly, with outside help, he could live without it. Perhaps his second most remarkable feature is his long tough ivory tusks. He has dozens of uses for them also, especially in the wild. But we know for sure that he can manage to live quite well without them. Sometimes the tusks of a temperamental domesticated elephant are sawn off or blunted, just in case he decided to prod some person he happens to dislike. Most of the tuskless elephants you see on parade are females who never bother to grow tusks at all.

An elephant's teeth, however, are vital to his survival. The tusks are two specialized incisor teeth growing downward with a slight upward curve at the bottom from the upper jaw. They are made entirely of durable dentine ivory and they continue to grow throughout his long life. These are his only incisors and he has no canine teeth at all. His only other teeth are sturdy molars in his cheeks. Jumbo is a vegetarian and his menu includes tough stalks and bundles of stiff hay.

He uses his tusks to fell trees, to bring down high leafy boughs and to grub in the ground for tasty roots. He uses his trunk to grasp and stuff food into his mouth. So he needs no tearing canine teeth and no other incisors. But, oh my, how he needs those molars to chew up his tough and stringy vegetable diet. His very life depends upon their durable strength and grinding ability.

Big Appetite

Unlike the solid ivory tusks, the wide, flat molars are upright plates of dentine coated with enamel and separated by wads of cement. Their grooved tops grind like mill stones. But from time to time a front tooth wears down and falls out. It is replaced by another that moves forward from the back of the jaw. The elephant has a lifetime allotment of 24 molars. But as a rule, he has only four of them in chewing condition at one time, one on each side of his upper and lower jaws. When his 24th molar falls out, his chewing days are done. But his solid ivory tusks are meant to last a lifetime.

The Indian elephant may tip the scales at four tons and vegetarians need more food bulk than carnivores. Jumbo needs a quarter of a ton of green foliage or 150 pounds of hay every day, plus 50 gallons of water to wash it down. His chewing job is immense — but absolutely vital. A wild elephant dies from starvation when the last of his molars is gone. Nevertheless, his quota of 24 sturdy molars can last him through a chewy lifetime of 70 years or more.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Janet Schmit, age, 13, of Rising City, Nebraska, for her question:

How do minerals get into the soil?

A gardener and a geologist tend to stress different items when they talk about minerals in the soil. People who grow flowers and crops think of the materials that plants require for food and growth. Geologist take a wider view that includes the vast assortment of minerals in the rocky crust of the earth. All the earth's minerals are made from atoms or from molecules composed of the basic atoms. Their story began when the infant earth solidified and its basic ingredients arranged themselves in chunks and layers of dozens of different minerals.

Time and weather changed this original arrangement and the changes continue. Rocky minerals are broken up and remade by wind and water, by contracting frosts and molten lavas. The basic ingredient in the thin layers of soil so vital to plant life is a powdery mixture of the earth's basic minerals. Mixed with it are organic materials donated from plants and animals of long ago. These organic chemicals are used and reused by the plant world. They are related to the chemicals that the farmer uses to fertilize and revitalize the soil for his crops.

Swimming Pool 'Too Popular'

Swimming has become one of the most popular forms of recreation in the unorganized districts of Colwood, Metchosin and Langford.

John Williams, secretary of the centennial committee which overseered the district project's swimming pool at the old Colwood race track, said more than 600 people have turned up at the pool on the last two Saturdays. The pool's capacity is 120.

"The line-up for swimming last week was unbelievable," he said "We just couldn't cope with the crowd. So we decided to leave 120 in at a time."

The pool was opened three weeks ago.

Cowichan School To Be Expanded

LAKE COWICHAN — A $158,000 expansion of Lake Cowichan Senior Secondary School is being planned.

The planning is being done by Siddall, Dennis & Associates, of Victoria.

The additions will include science and language laboratories, reconstruction of the library, a cafeteria and home management area.

Trustees were told the project is expected to be completed by next September.

The board went on record supporting the abilities of their teachers to teach the curriculum, including the Grade 12 English text book with a controversial four-letter word.

Board chairman Don Hammond said, "The word may be crude, vulgar and not in good taste but it is not obscene."

He said Education Minister Peterson's decision to have the book revised was "very poor."

Mr. Hammond said, "If our only concern is exposure to words used in the context of a story for Grade 12 students we are wasting our time.

"We have professional people in our employ to teach the curriculum and we should show confidence in their ability to discern realities, to use common sense and not be enveloped in the proprieties and improprieties of a book.

"We should support the abilities of our teachers."

Board members agreed.

SALT SPRING ROUNDUP

Unpasteurized Milk Deliveries Cancelled

GANGES — Home delivery of unpasteurized milk, once an important part of Salt Spring Island's economy, has come to an end.

Roger Hughes, owner of Burgoyne Dairy, from now on will sell his milk bottled through local stores.

Mr. Hughes came to the Island in 1959 and four years later took over the milk deliveries business of a number od dairies which were closing.

Shaw's was the first to go followed by Goodrich, Cunninghams and last year by Crawfords.

Opposition to raw milk from health authorities, frequent turnover of help and cost of keeping a truck on the road all contributed to Mr. Hughes' decision.

Existing access roads, many of them useless because they lead to cliffs, should be sold to owners of adjoining property and the money used for purchase of park land.

That's the suggestion of Peter Arnell, roads chairman of the Salt Spring Island Chamber of Commerce.

He will investigate the number of useless roads and report back to the chamber.

Mrs. Westcott's grandson Eddie, won a patchwork quilt at a bazaar.

Program Leads Island

DUNCAN — Adult education director Robert Thorburn claims the Cowichan program among Indians is ahead of Victoria despite the fact the capital city employs a full-time counsellor.

Mr. Thorburn told the school board the program at Duncan is receiving recognition at university level.

A UBC graduate studying for her master degree has been advised to study the native adult education program here as a subject for her thesis.

"We can't stand idly by in a community with a large and militant Indian band which itself is doing wonderful things and not help them in launching their adult education program.

"We have eight or nine courses running this year for Indians covering upgrading, home-making and the native language."

Mr. Thorburn said he had heard it said some of the night school class offerings are facetious.

"I've heard it said we should not subsidize a class in poodle clipping.

JUSTIFICATION

"Most courses are not subsidized but with people having more leisure time any opportunity we can give them to satisfy their creative urges is perfectly good justification for the course."

Mr. Thorburn said over 200 persons are taking academic courses this year compared to only 34 two years ago.

"We have a clear duty to offer a second chance to students who dropped out before graduation and now find they can't get a decent job without at least a Grade 11 or 12 Education."

Adult education courses in the Cowichan district have an enrolment of 1,100 at present and Mr. Thorburn anticipates hitting the 2,000 mark before the end of term in April.

Sidney Just a Stopover For Globe-Trotting Girl?

CARYS
. . . seeing the world

By ED GOULD

SIDNEY—There are a lot of jokes about flying: Flying is the cheapest way to fly; half the fun of flying is getting there; breakfast in London, lunch in Toronto, dinner in Vancouver, luggage in Bombay.

But you can save the jokes—Carys Owen has heard them all. She joined an airline when she was just out of school and has been "flying" ever since.

Born at Beaumaris, Wales, Miss Owen was educated in Switzerland and France and moved about with her family in India where her father was employed.

This early background gave hir itchy feet and she decided the best and cheapest way to see the world was to join an airline company. She was first employed by Pan American in London and then was sent by them to their branch in Lebanon.

Following that, she joined Air Canada and was posted to gigantic London Airport, "one of the most exciting places in the world."

With its 33,000 employees, the airport was like working at the United Nations, she says.

"Scurrying crowds of colorful Arabs, Japanese and Indians and a wonderful feeling of rallying around if some company had staff shortages or delays," made the job interesting.

She met many of the great and near-great including John Diefenbaker and his wife Olive, when Mr. Diefenbaker was Prime Minister of Canada.

"I also frequently saw Queen Elizabeth and the Queen Mother in the VIP lounge," she says, "but we were never allowed to get very close to them."

Her most unexpected thrill came during a "bit part" she didn't even know she had done for a movie made at the airport.

"During the filming of The VIPs with Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor, I announced a fight over the loudspeaker. It came out in the film just the way I said it.

"It was an Air Canada flight—or Trans-Canada Airlines, as it was called then."

Itchy feet momentarily soothed, Miss Owen is now employed as manager of Aladdin Travel Services in Sidney. But it's characteristic of ther that she's still close to the sound and sight of the big planes taking people to the romantic corners of the world.

Former Clerk May Seek Seat

Alfred Sharp, former municipal clerk for Sidney, may run for town mayor in the December elections.

"I'm seriously considering it," he said today. "And if I run I will have plenty to say."

Mayor Arthur Freeman is expected to seek re-election but as yet has made no announcement.

Mr. Sharp retired a year ago after serving for 14 years as village clerk.

He is a holde of the British Empire medal for meritorious service in the Second World War. He received a similar award from the Canadian Legion.

Ald John Bosher and Ald. Hans Rasmussen, whose two-year terms expire in December, are also expected to seek reelection.

$2,000 Needed To Save Clutesi Mural

Now with the end of Expo the Indian Pavilion is to be taken down.

Clutesi says he is willing to take the time to travel to Montreal and dismantle the mural if there is some way of paying the freight back to the Alberni Valley.

'Canada Far Behind European Systems Of Sewage Disposal'

By DON DINGWALL

DUNCAN — Into the midst of the controversy about sewage disposal in this district comes Ivan Dobbyn with a story of a sewage treatment plant where fish live in the second purification of effluent.

Mr. Dobbyn visited the plant in England during a recent trip.

He claims it is much superior to the Iona Island installation which takes care of most of Vancouver and is considered the best in Canada.

Mr. Dobbyn said the English plant operates at a cost of only 2 cents per person per day.

He said, "It's a stunner and no wonder I get hot under the collar."

10-YEAR FIGHT

Mr. Dobbyn has been getting hot under the collar about sewage treatment and disposal in Duncan and North Cowichan for years.

He is a retired schoolmaster and was a pool hall operator, builder and salesman for a septic tank additive.

Mr. Dobbyn sold his city property when he made a breakdown of the tax figures and discovered 71.3 per cent of the general rate was paying the cost of sewers.

He said Wednesday, "I don't have a five-cent piece invested in the city now."

Mr. Dobbyn says Canada is far behind Europe in systems of sewage disposal.

He suggests the import of either English or Dutch engineers to show our municipal governments how it can be done most efficiently and cheaply.

'CLOSED MIND'

The English plant he visited handles an area housing 350,000 people and the sewage is ground, aerated and digested with the use of live bacteria.

In a reference to local administrators, Mr. Dobbyn said, "They do not want to understand and they adopt a closed mind attitude."

He says the provincial government's recent legislation making absorption tests of soil compulsory before building permits are issued is something he was pressing for 10 years ago.

Mr. Dobbyn says' "There's quite a difference between being 10 years ahead and 10 years behind.

"I was suggesting it 10 years ago here but could get no one to listen to me.

"We have to handle our sewerage or it will handle us."

POOR ABSORPTION

Mr. Dobbyn said because of poor soil absorption Mary Street and Sherman Road area building lots should have been double lots or half acres.

Instead, the municipality allowed houses "jammed together" and the result was today's problem of raw sewage flowng down roadside ditches.

North Cowichan council is currently engated in planning a $470,000 sewer installation to serve the south end district, including Mary Street and Sherman Road.

Fisheries Station to Triple Work Space

OTTAWA (CP) — A $3,509,000 contract for alterations and additions to the Fisheries Research Board station in Nanaimo has been awarded to a Nanaimo construction company.

D. Robinson Construction Ltd. will build two new wings to the Pacific Biological Station constructed in 1949 to study marine resources off the Pacific Coast.

Total working area will be almost tripled to 41,000 square feet by the additions to the four-storey building.

Additions will enable the coastal station to give more intensive study to industrial pollution, sea survival of young salmon and the creation of new salmon runs in B.C. rivers.

Share Nuclear Blast Data For Peace, Canada Urges

GENEVA (Reuters) — Canada today urged the United States and Russia to consider the desires of other nations to share in the peaceful uses of nuclear explosions.

Commenting on proposed amendments to a projected treaty to ban the spread of nuclear weapons, the chief Canadian delegate to the 17-nation disarmament conference here, Gen. E. L. M. Burns, stressed the interest of non-nuclear countries in such uses of atomic energy.

The amendments were offered by Nigeria and Mexico, which both called for a clause providing for the fullest possible exchange of scientific information and provision of nuclear explosives for civil projects.

Russian and American negotiators are working privately to adapt a draft treaty they introduced 11 weeks ago in the light of suggestions by other countries.

Burns also called for a consensus on the range of scientific and technical information non-nuclear states could expect to receive from the nuclear powers.

He said this would be "a kind of compensation" for giving up the right to develop nuclear weapons.

Cat-Loving Woman Set Free

WINNIPEG (CP) — Bertha Rand was set free Wednesday, five hours after she had gone to jail for her cluttered household of cats in defiance of a bylaw that would have her abandon her beloved strays. An unidentified woman paid her $250 fine.

Jail doors had closed on the 73-year-old pensioner of suburban St. James who did not have the money to pay the fine for violating the Greater Winnipeg city's pet-limit law.

If the fine had not been paid, she would have served 20 days.

The bylaw under which she was charged was passed after neighbors charged that keeping 25 to 30 and sometimes more cats under one roof constituted a noisy and smelly neighborhood nuisance.

It is an offence in St. James for a household to keep more than three pets of any kind. An earlier bylaw, restricted to cats, was tossed out as discriminatory in an appeal court action.

"All the time I was thinking: Who's going to take care of the cats while I'm in jail," Miss Rand said in an interview at her home Wednesday night.

Fearing that her pets will be seized, she said she is considering an offer from a St. Boniface woman to farm the cats out on 10 acres of land in a sparsely-populated area.

'France Can't Ignore Problems in Quebec'

PARIS (Reuters) — French Foreign Minister Mauice Couve de Murville said Tuesday the political future of Quebec is a matter for Quebec and Canada to settle, but France holds at heart the future of the French-speaking community in Quebec.

Addressing the National Assembly during a debate on his ministry's budget, the minister said "extravagent comment" made three months ago in France now is completely outdated.

"The French have now understood that this is a problem which France cannot ignore," he said.

"France is developing her co-operation with Quebec and we want to give it assistance and support," he said. "As for Quebec's political future, this is a question of Quebec and Canada to settle.

"But France wishes to show her interest for French-Canadians. The future of Quebec's French-speaking community is a question we have at heart."

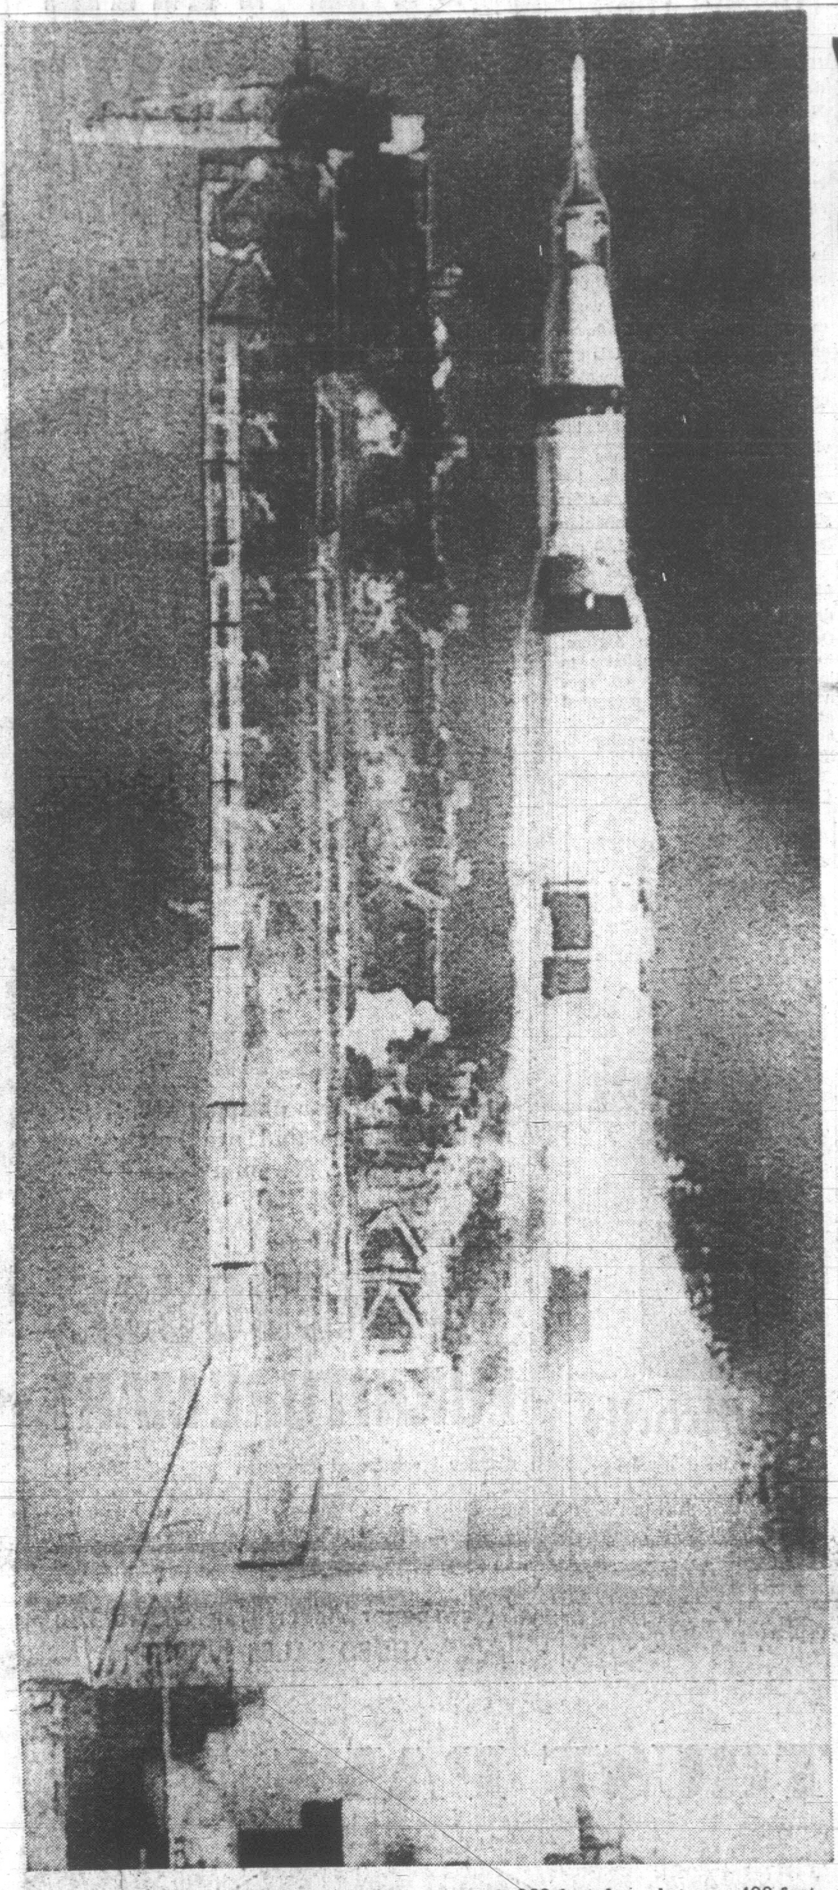
World's Largest Rocket Completes Space Trial



SATURN ROCKET more than twice as high as the British Columbia Legislative Buildings roared into space from Cape Kennedy today. Rocket stands 363 feet, launch tower 400 feet, compared with 172-foot high Legislative Buildings as measured from ground to Captain Vancouver Statue.

First Saturn Flight Perfect

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—The Apollo IV spacecraft completed its maiden flight and splashed down in "bullseye" style some six miles from the carrier, floating upright "in a stable, normal attitude". Frogmen plunged into the water from a helicopter to attach floatation gear.

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Saturn V super-rocket scored a resounding success on its maiden test flight today, orbiting a record 140-ton space vehicle and shooting an unmanned Appollo IV moonship deep into space.

The historic flight gave the U.S. man-in-space program a much-needed shot in the arm and revived hopes that U.S. astronauts still can land on the moon in this decade.

With a thundering burst of power, the powerful rocket blasted away from its launch pad at 7 a.m. EST (4 a.m. PST) after a perfect countdown.

The three stages of the monster Saturn V ignited with drill-like precision during an 11-minute boost phase and shoved the massive payload, including the still-attached third stage, into orbit 115 miles high.

Three hours later, after two orbits of the earth, the hydrogen-powered third stage re-started its engine on ground command and propelled the 64,000-pound Apollo 4 vehicle outward toward a high point of 11,400 miles.

The re-ignition of the third stage gave flight controllers their first anxious moments of the mission. A vent valve refused to close until the last moment.

The spacecraft separated from the stage and a motor on board fired for 15 seconds to provide final power to reach the planned altitude. Had it burned a few seconds longer, Apollo 4 could have gone to the moon, but that was not planned for today's flight because of the need to test the heat shield on re-entry.

Fiery Dive at 25,000 m.p.h.

After reaching the 11,400-mile altitude, the spacecraft was to plunge back through the atmosphere at nearly 25,000 miles an hour—the speed at which astronauts will return from the moon. The fiery dive would determine how well the heat shield survives re-entry temperatures expected to reach 4,500 degrees.

Apollo 4 was to parachute to a landing in a rough Pacific Ocean, 622 miles northwest of Hawaii, at 12:37 p.m. PST.

An hour after the world's most powerful rocket blazed away from Cape Kennedy the Apollo program manager, Maj.-Gen. Samuel Phillips told reporters:

"This mission will do a lot to get the whole Apollo team moving again on a positive course. It will do a lot for the progress in coming months of the Apollo program.

"Yesterday, I would have said that I think we have a reasonably good chance of accomplishing a manned lunar landing by the end of 1969. Today, I think that reasonably good chance is maybe a notch above reasonably good."

The Apollo moon program has been lagging since three astronauts died in a spacecraft fire last January, on a pad not far from where the Saturn V started its flight.

Phillips described the early phase of the flight as perfect. He said the three stages of the powerful booster performed "right on the money" that the orbiting vehicle was working fine.

He reported a cheer went up in the launch control centre when the Saturn V broke its earthly ties and rumbled into the sky on a massive tower of

ANNOUNCING AGREEMENT with Chrysler Corporation in Detroit Wednesday night is Walter Reuther (right), president of United Auto Workers, as Chrysler director Douglas Fraser listens. Workers have yet to ratify terms worked out by negotiating teams. (AP Wirephoto.)

Car Men Win Parity With U.S. Wage Rate

DETROIT (UPI) — A tentative contract accepted by the United Auto Workers and Chrysler Corporation Wednesday night gives Chrysler workers three pace-setting improvements.

They are equal pay for Canadian Chrysler workers, restored pension credits for workers laid off during Chrysler's lean years of the late 1950s and the early 1960s and retroactive pay raises for all blue collar workers.

The union wanted Candian parity to eliminate the temptation among the auto makers to expand parts and assembly operations across the border to take advantage of lower pay in Canada.

Under the agreement, Canadian Chrysler workers will receive five scaled increases that will bring their pay in line with that of Chrysler workers in the United States in 2½ years.

However, U.S. workers will still make about seven cents per dollar more after the time span because of the difference in the currency exchange rate between the two nations.

INFLATION

Canadian officials have expressed concern over the inflationary impact of parity on top of the historic increases won by the UAW. But observers say the impact will be blunted by the 2 years it will take for parity to be fully implemented.

As soon as the agreement is ratified and local issues are smoothed over, assembly line workers will receive 20 cents an hour and skilled workers will get 50 cents hourly retroactive to Oct. 16.

Based on a 40-hour work week and assuming the contract is ratified by the end of next week, assembly line workers will get a Christmas time windfall of $40 and skilled tradesmen will receive about $100 in back pay.

SENIORITY

Chrysler experienced the most lucrative October for sales in its history last month, but Reuther reminded the company of the dog days of the late 1950s and early 1960s when "there were plants where it required 26 years seniority to hold a job."

The workers who were laid off during Chrysler's "depression years" lost not only salaries, but credits toward their pensions.

The new contract will give those workers pension credits for the time they were laid off.

The three measures, along with the guaranteed annual income worked out with Ford, will give Reuther a good start on

Two-Rail Port Link Only Hurdle to Pact

By JOHN MIKA
Times Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO—Complex negotiations towards a huge rail-ship export contract for Fernie coal seem to be highballing towards a successful conclusion but conflicting signals flashed here today warning of a potential head-on collision.

B.C. pointed the finger at Ottawa as the chief danger but a spokesman for the mammoth Kaiser Steel Corporation obliquely hinted the company is worried the provincial government may push the de-rail button.

The differences appeared in separate interviews of Commercial Transport Minister Robert Bonner and Albert P. Heiner, vice-president in charge of public relations and traffic for Kaiser.

The two men met for several hours Wednesday to discuss Kaiser's progress in negotiating a deal to mine and ship at least 45 million tons of Fernie coal to Japan and another seven million tons to California over the next 15 years.

Mr. Bonner told reporters Wednesday evening that a "rigid and unimaginative" insistence by the federal government that the coal move over an all-Canadian rail route to the proposed Roberts Bank superport could undermine the deal.

Mr. Bonner said B.C. still intends to stay in the picture with its $25 million plan to build a super-port but will delay final decision to wait for an official contact from the federal government outlining its $50 million plan as proposed by Transport Minister Hellyer.

He said everything now depends on Ottawa agreeing to a "two-rail link to the ocean" which would allow the Great Northern Railway to freight Fernie coal to Roberts Bank through the U.S. as an alternative to the Canadian Pacific Railway.

But this morning Mr. Heiner indicated that Kaiser feels the two-rail link proposition is vir-

Heater Fire Cause

TAIPEI (UPI) — Nationalist Chinese intelligence sources said today Communist China is planning to carry out a missile-borne nuclear test "at any time." HONG KONG (AP) — Hong Kong officials asked night-time businesses today to institute voluntary curfews to clear the streets while police go after terrorist bombers who have killed one policeman and wounded 66 persons since Sunday night.

Cardinal Resigns To Be Missionary

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger, one of the leading progressives in the Roman Catholic hierarchy, has resigned as archbishop of Montreal to do missionary work among lepers in foreign lands.

The announcement by the Vatican today caused some surprise in church circles, since Cardinal Leger at 63 is 12 years below the retirement age for diocesan prelates and his post is an important one.

But Cardinal Leger for a long time has been urging Pope Paul to release him from his post. It was believed the Pope's decision to accept his resignation was delayed until after the bishops' synod last month.

The resignation does not affect the Montreal prelate's lifetime membership in the College of Cardinals.

The cardinal has made frequent trips to leper colonies in Africa.

Vatican experts speculated that the cardinal, instead of becoming a simple chaplain at a colony, might act as leader of the Church's work for lepers by travelling, organizing and raising money.

Another North American cardinal, Richard Cushing, Archbishop of Boston, also has long desired to leave his post to work in Latin America.

But Cardinal Cushing is 72 and in frail health, and the Pope has not given approval.

Cardinal Leger was named archbishop of Montreal by Pope Pius XII in 1950. He was invested as a cardinal in Rome in 1953.

AID IN TIME OF TROUBLE

By TED GASKELL

"I think I would have done something terrible to myself if I had not had the help of the Red Cross to see me through a trying time."

That was the comment of a mother who, because of her emotional state, couldn't look after her family and was assisted by the Homemaker Service, one of the many agencies within the Red Cross Society here.

This year Red Cross is a partner with Red Feather in the United Appeal for $600,000. Red Cross Quota is $85,000.

The Homemaker Service deals with all manner of cases and the numbers are increasing. In 1965 it undertook 648 cases. Last year this had increased to 832.

The homemakers worked more than 54,000 hours last year.

OTHER CASES

There's a "special service" available for senior citizens who can't look after themselves. In some cases people pay their own Homemakers Services fees, the Red Cross assists some and in other cases the welfare agencies foot the bills.

But the service has more value than just providing people who look after household chores.

One elderly lady felt she got value just from the presence of the homemaker. "It's not very nice to be old and alone. But having the Red Cross lady coming gives me something to look forward to. I feel much more cheerful when she's here."

One of the tougher cases the service recalls is that in which a whole family was sick and two workers, both innoculated, were assigned to the home. They worked two eight-hour shifts, used the trolley supplied by the Red Cross Loan Cupboard and served meals to the large family for nearly six weeks until the adults and older children were well and able to manage for themselves.

One worker helped a mother and children daily for more than a year.

Another family with the mother in hospital, and the father unable to look after the two children, had a homemaker live-in for nine days.

The Red Cross paid one third of the cost of having a homemaker spent five hours a day for two years helping a multiple sclerosis victim, the mother of three children.

Some people are able to pay for the homemaker service but many are not.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP)—Rapeseed prices showed broad advances in trade today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange following early irregularity.

In the background of rapeseed trade were advances in soybean prices at Chicago and overseas support. Hedging sales in both rapeseed and flax were light reflecting producers hesitancy to deliver.

Flax prices were lower.

Blue Chips in Comeback

A wide range of long-neglected key stocks advanced from fractions to one or two points, reflecting solid investment demand.

AT TORONTO General Products Manufacturing A jumped 5 to 89 and Levy Industries 3¼ to 39½.

Inco moved up 1½ to 117 and Texaco 1 to 31.

CPR dropped 1⅛ to 60¼. Jefferson Lake and Famous Players slipped 1 each to 57½ and 40½.

Among base metals, Denison was down 80½ and Hollinger ⅜ to 25⅝. Rio Algom picked up ½ to 35.

In western oils, Scurry-Rainbow dropped 1⅛ to 40⅞. Dome Petroleum moved up 1¼ to 51¾.

AT NEW YORK a rise of about two points by Chrysler showed the way for autos and steels.

News of Chrysler's tentative labor agreement with the United Auto Workers and the latest earnings statements which showed favorable comparisons against the year-ago third quarter helped sentiment.

AT MONTREAL gains and losses were about evenly matched in trading today.

International Nickel gained two points to 117¼. Hudson Bay Mining tumbled two points to 57, erasing Wednesday's fractional advance, and Cominco and Husky Oil each dropped about ½ point.

CPR fell ½ in active trading of 13,000 shares and Canada Cement and Dominion Textile were shaded.

AT LONDON the half-point increase in bank rate had little effect on stock markets today. Gilts which were already lower ahead of the news, fell further after the announcement.

Canadians also were mainly lower despite the further improvement in Canadian markets. Firm exceptions were provided by Trans-Canada Pipe, Inco and Hollinger.

Leading industrials generally were narrowly irregular. Bowater recorded a small gain. Toronto and Nova Scotia were firm in Canadian banks.

AT VANCOUVER mines were up and oils and industrials mixed in brisk trading before noon today.

Western Exploration led the trading with over 186,000 shares. Western went up .21 cents to .88, a new high. It had reached .94 earlier in the day.

Dynasty and Granduc were both up .10, Dynasty to $7.20 and Granduc to $6.35.

In the oils Peace gained .02 to .31.

Neon in the industrials went up to $9.62, a new high, but settled back to $9.50 for a gain of .25.

CN Operation Impresses U.K. Gov't

LONDON (CP) — The Labor government was reported today to be highly impressed with the operations of Canadian National Railways and likely will seek some guidance from this publicly-owned body on corporate policy that could affect the future of the debt-clogged British railways system.

A spokesman added, however, that while the British transport department is keenly interested in Canadian operations, there is no question of offering the chairmanship of British railways to N. J. MacMillan who heads the CNR.

John Morris, parliamentary secretary to the transport ministry, flew to Montreal late last month to confer with MacMillan and other CNR officials. There was speculation in the British press today that in the course of those talks, MacMillan was offered the chairmanship of British Railways and turned it down.

The spokesman said that while it is true that Sir Stanley Raymond, 54-year-old chairman of British Railways, is being asked to take another job, it is not true that the British government is looking for a possible replacement in Canada.

Hydro Hopes To Avoid Rates Boost

VANCOUVER (CP) — Despite rising costs, B.C. Hydro hopes to avoid raising prices this year, co-chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum says.

"It will be a miracle if rates don't go up this year," Dr. Shrum said at a service club meeting. "And we expect to perform a miracle."

In an interview later, he said B.C. Hydro was being squeezed by rising costs in wages and equipment.

"But we're hoping to effect economies to offset these," he said.

Dr. Shrum said costs of the Peace River dam project had increased by $70,000,000, but this would be offset by extra revenue due to power production starting in 1973 instead of 1983, as originally planned.

Labor Income Scores Gain

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor income is running 10 per cent higher this year than a year ago, the bureau of statistics has reported.

It said paid workers received an estimated $2 638,000,000 in August, nearly 1 per cent more than in July and 9.3 per cent more than in August last year.

Cumulatively, paid workers received $20,150,000,000 in the first eight months of 1967, 10 per cent more than the 1966 cumulative total of $18,312,000,000.

Education of Eskimos Prime Need of North

Lt.-Col. P. D. Baird gave a vivid picture of the future for Canada's northern territories and told how this future could be achieved when he addressed the Women's Canadian Club in the Empress Hotel on Wednesday.

Straightening out many of the misconceptions about the northern regions, he pointed out that the areas of the Yukon and the North West Territories combined to make up one-third of the total area of Canada—"and it's not all just ice, snow, polar bears and jolly Eskimos."

He quoted the Canadian painter A. Y. Jackson as saying, "There is so much beauty up there, why leave it all to the kodichromers?"

The speaker emphasized, "Not merely a land of barren wastes, this area has some of the most magnificent scenery, some of the best fishing and hunting and most of the unpolluted water in the country."

In the Yukon and the N.W.T. there is a growing feeling of nationalism and, with the capital now moved to Yellowknife, there is a definite step toward self-government.

The Eskimos and Indians, natives to this land, are now "bewildered and depressed by the rapid onset of technological civilization."

Illustrating the unstable nature of the Eskimo's economic well-being, Lt.-Col. Baird cited the "most unfortunate ups and downs of the fur trade. When white fox furs were in fashion these pelts brought high prices in Canadian markets. Suddenly the fashion declined and the Eskimo was left without a cash income.

"This fashion was replaced by seal skins. Up to a few years ago the skins were valueless. When the price went up, seal replaced the white fox in the Eskimo's economy. Because of the protest against the sealing practices in the St. Lawrence, the Eskimo's livelihood has once again been cut off, although he has nothing to do with the St. Lawrence sealing practices."

The speaker told his audience that development is the key-word for the future of Canada's northland. With one-quarter of the world's fresh water, and untold mineral wealth, there is today a need to increase the benefits of these natural resources.

"To truly develop the northlands it is not only necessary to bring greater capital into the area, but the particular need is to provide education for the native peoples in industrial skills so that they may have a firm foothold in the country's future."

Mrs. H. H. Youson, president, introduced the speaker and Mrs. D. Leslie Macdonell, vice-president, thanked him.

Following the speech Mrs. A. T. M. Cowley, bursary chairman, introduced this year's scholarship winners, Miss Penny Bond and Gregory Schroeder, both students from Victoria Senior Secondary School, who were presented to the members.

Rev. David Metzger officiated at the ceremony that united Mrs. Elna Olivia Swanson and Henry Waldof in Grace Lutheran Church.

Following the ceremony there was a reception at the Red Lion Motor Inn. A single-tier wedding cake, topped with a crystal vase of pink sweetheart roses, centred the bride's table. A hot and cold smorgasbord was served to the guests.

Master of ceremonies was Everett Johnston, Duncan, and Gunner Nyberg, Vancouver, proposed the toast to the bride.

One of the Happiest Moments at Oak Bay Event

ELDERLY GUEST WINS 'PAL' AT BAZAAR

The annual bazaar of Oak Bay Chapter No. 42, Order of the Eastern Star, may not have been the biggest one in town, Wednesday, but it was certainly one of the happiest.

One of the most satisfying moments came when an elderly woman, who lives alone, won herself a sweet-singing budgerigar which was a prize for one of the many raffles. She was almost singing herself as she left.

As in events of this nature, the bazaar, which was held in the Henderson Masonic Hall, had many touches to remind shoppers of Christmas.

These included some of the most novel Christmas ornaments to woo a child's heart. Made of candy, there were gaily wrapped Christmas crackers, each topped with a nosegay of flowers; smiling clowns and Christmas stockings designed for the most avid "sweet tooth".

Even the most useful articles had received deft touches to make them glamorous. Toilet rolls were hidden inside bright crocheted "toppers" and tissue containers sported as much ribbon and lace as an old-fashioned camisole.

General convener, Mrs. George Marchmont, had two tea co-conveners, Mrs. Ernest Geisse and Mrs. Robert Hawkes, to help ensure success.

The chapter's worthy matron, Mrs. John S. Hunter, assisted Mrs. Marchmont in receiving the guests, who came and helped raise $300 for OES projects, which are mainly geared to cancer research and the cancer dressing station.

The event was opened by OES grand representative, Mrs. Albert Wilkerson.

Stall conveners were; Penny stall, Mrs. Arthur Curtis and Mrs. Henry Gableman; sewing, Mrs. James Clayton; candy, Mrs. Ronald Ousey; novelties, Mrs. Lawrie Dodd; pink elephants, the chapter's past matrons; home cooking, Mrs. Frank Blynn, and tombolas, Mrs. Lorne Rogers and Mrs. Shirley Anderson. Serving as door committee were Mrs. J. Horne and Mrs. E. McLagan.

The officers of the chapter pitched in to act as serviteurs for the afternoon tea.

Determined to make the day one to remember, the chapter continued its activities during the evening, producing a turkey dinner and an evening of whist and bridge games.

MONTREAL, November 9th — Everybody complains about money . . . but THE BANK OF NOVA SCOTIA is doing something about it! There's their Blue Chip Savings Account, for instance. It pays a healthy 4½% interest — and encourages you to save because there are no chequing privileges. (Scotiabank has other accounts for chequing). Another tremendous help they've come up with recently is their new Scotiabank Budget Book. I'm delighted with my copy. It helps me keep track of saving and spending systematically . . . almost like having my own personal accountant! If you'd like to manage your household money more wisely, why not look into the many wonderful ways The Bank of Nova Scotia can help you.

WHEN IS SALT MORE THAN SALT? When it's a household cleaner, an ironing aid, a gargle . . . in short, when it's WINDSOR SALT, the crystal-pure salt with so many uses around the home! I use it to clean my deep flower vases, and to keep sink drains free of grease. Mixed with salad oil, it does a great job of removing rings from furniture. Used dry, it frees my iron of rough spots in a flash! And, of course, everyone knows what a great mouth-wash-gargle it makes. Why not keep a good supply of Windsor Salt around your house? P.S. Lest we forget—it does great things for your cooking, too!

ANY WAY YOU LOOK AT IT, an Honest Wash is the best policy! With the Honest Wash you can rid your clothes of bathtub-ring of the washing-machine, that dirty gray film which builds up and clings to your fabrics wash after wash. The Honest Wash leaves your clothes white, fresh smelling, naturally soft and honestly clean. Just add CALGON® water conditioner along with your detergent to your next wash and see your clothes come honestly clean. You'll find, as I have, that whenever you use Calgon you need less detergent — ¼ to ½ your usual amount. Next washday, instead of disguising the problem with bleach and whiteners, etc., let Calgon get rid of it . . . honestly.

IN CHRYSLER PACT

U.S. Wage Parity Won by Car Men

DETROIT (UPI) — A tentative contract accepted by the United Auto Workers and Chrysler Corporation Wednesday night gives Chrysler workers three pace-setting improvements.

They are equal pay for Canadian Chrysler workers, restored pension credits for workers laid off during Chrysler's lean years of the late 1950s and the early 1960s and retroactive pay raises for all blue collar workers.

The union wanted Candian parity to eliminate the temptation among the auto makers to expand parts and assembly operations across the border to take advantage of lower pay in Canada.

Under the agreement, Canadian Chrysler workers will receive five scaled increases that will bring their pay in line with that of Chrysler workers in the United States in 2½ years.

However, U.S. workers will still make about seven cents per dollar more after the time span because of the difference in the currency exchange rate between the two nations.

INFLATION

Canadian officials have expressed concern over the inflationary impact of parity on top of the historic increases won by the UAW. But observers say the impact will be blunted by the 2 years it will take for parity to be fully implemented.

As soon as the agreement is ratified and local issues are smoothed over, assembly line workers will receive 20 cents an hour and skilled workers will get 50 cents hourly retroactive to Oct. 16.

Based on a 40-hour work week and assuming the contract is ratified by the end of next week, assembly line workers will get a Christmas time windfall of $40 and skilled tradesmen will receive about $100 in back pay.

Chrysler experienced the most lucrative October for sales in its history last month, but Reuther reminded the company of the dog days of the late 1950s and early 1960s when "there were plants where it required 26 years seniority to hold a job."

The workers who were laid off during Chrysler's "depression years" lost not only salaries, but credits toward their pensions.

The new contract will give those workers pension credits for the time they were laid off.

The three measures, along with the guaranteed annual income worked out with Ford, will give Reuther a good start on

SATURN ROCKET more than twice as high as the British Columbia Legislative Buildings roared into space from Cape Kennedy today. Rocket stands 363 feet, launch tower 400 feet, compared with 172-foot high Legislative Buildings as measured from ground to Captain Vancouver Statue.

Blistering Dash To Splashdown

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — In a spectacular debut, the Saturn V super-rocket hurled an unmanned Apollo moonship 11,234 miles into space today and the spacecraft survived a blistering dive back through the earth's atmosphere to a parachute landing in the Pacific Ocean.

The splashdown followed a fiery dash back through the atmosphere in which the spacecraft reached lunar return speed of nearly 25,000 miles an hour and had its heat shield blistered by 5,000-degree re-entry temperatures.

The test demonstrated that the Apollo ship can withstand the searing re-entry heat that American astronauts will encounter in coming home from the moon, one of many significant achievements of the momentous mission.

The impact occurred in the Pacific only six miles from the prime recovery ship, the aircraft carrier Bennington, at 3:37 p.m. EST, after a flight of eight hours 37 minutes.

CREW CHEERED

Crew members aboard the Bennington cheered as they spotted the spacecraft floating down under its three huge orange and white parachutes.

Aircraft were overhead immediately and dropped divers into the water to secure the craft.

The landing of the Apollo 4 craft climaxed a tremendous flight that started at 7 a.m. when the Saturn V, the mightiest U.S. rocket ever launched, blasted away from a Cape Kennedy launch pad.

The rocket worked with perfection and lifted a space vehicle weighing a record 140 tons into orbit. Included in the orbiting weight was the still-attached third stage, which re-started after three hours in space to boost Apollo 4 to the high altitude.

The combined weight of the rocket and spacecraft that left the pad today was 6,100 tons. The Apollo craft that returned to earth weighed just 10,600 pounds.

An hour after the world's most powerful rocket blazed away from Cape Kennedy the Apollo program manager, Maj.-Gen. Samuel Phillips told reporters:

"This mission will do a lot to get the whole Apollo team moving again on a positive course. It will do a lot for the progress in coming months of the Apollo program.

"Yesterday, I would have said that I think we have a reasonably good chance of accomplishing a manned lunar landing by the end of 1969. Today, I think that reasonably good chance is maybe a notch above reasonably good."

The Apollo moon program has been lagging since three astronauts died in a spacecraft fire last January, on a pad not far from where the Saturn V started its flight.

Phillips described the early phase of the flight as perfect. He said the three stages of the powerful booster performed "right on the money" that the orbiting vehicle was working fine.

He reported a cheer went up in the launch control centre when the Saturn V broke its earthly ties and rumbled into the sky on a massive tower of

Cardinal Resigns To Be Missionary

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger, one of the leading progressives in the Roman Catholic hierarchy, has resigned as archbishop of Montreal to do missionary work among lepers in foreign lands.

The announcement by the Vatican today caused some surprise in church circles, since Cardinal Leger at 63 is 12 years below the retirement age for diocesan prelates and his post is an important one.

But Cardinal Leger for a long time has been urging Pope Paul to release him from his post. It was believed the Pope's decision to accept his resignation was delayed until after the bishops' synod last month.

The resignation does not affect the Montreal prelate's lifetime membership in the College of Cardinals.

The cardinal has made frequent trips to leper colonies in Africa.

Vatican experts speculated that the cardinal, instead of becoming a simple chaplain at a colony, might act as leader of the Church's work for lepers by travelling, organizing and raising money.

Another North American cardinal, Richard Cushing, Archbishop of Boston, also has long desired to leave his post to work in Latin America.

But Cardinal Cushing is 72 and in frail health, and the Pope has not given approval.

Cardinal Leger was named archbishop of Montreal by Pope Pius XII in 1950. He was invested as a cardinal in Rome in 1953.

'Religious Crisis' Led To Decision

MONTREAL (UPI)—Paul Emile Cardinal Leger said today a "deep religious crisis" had led to his decision to abandon his leadership of one of the world's largest Catholic dioceses and withdraw to tend to lepers in Central Africa.

Cardinal Leger said he would leave for Africa in mid-December.

The cardinal, speaking to a crowded news conference called to explain his unprecedented decision to resign as Archbishop of Montreal, said his decision directly resulted from the recent synod of bishops in Vatican City.

"During the discussions on faith and atheism, my future became a question of conscience to me.

"It became clear to me that our Lord was asking me for deeds, as well as for words," the 63-year-old prelate said, speaking slowly and evenly but with obvious fatigue.

A priest, believed an aide to the cardinal, wept softly as he spoke.

In view of the Remembrance Day holiday Saturday there will be no issues of the Victoria Daily Times. The weekend edition will be published tomorrow, Friday.

A special feature in Weekend Magazine is a colored photo story of the fungi in Francis Park, as discovered by the Victoria Natural History Society in rambles through the virgin forest area only six miles from the city.

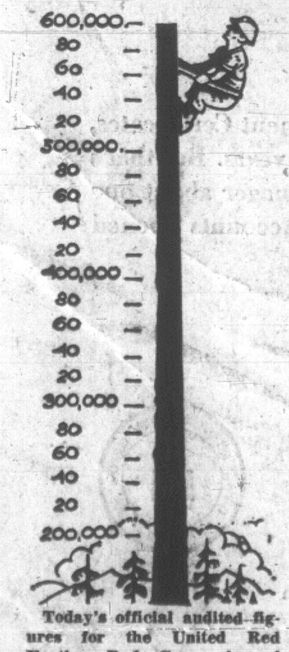
Red Cross Kept Woman From 'Something Terrible'

United Appeal

Put Him Up On Top



Today's official audited figures for the United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal stood at $505,387 or 84.2 per cent of the appeal target of $600,000.

By TED GASKELL

"I think I would have done something terrible to myself if I had not had the help of the Red Cross to see me through a trying time."

That was the comment of a mother who, because of her emotional state, couldn't look after her family and was assisted by the Homemaker Service, one of the many agencies within the Red Cross Society here.

This year Red Cross is a partner with Red Feather in the United Appeal for $600,000. Red Cross Quota is $85,000.

The Homemaker Service deals with all manner of cases and the numbers are increasing. In 1965 it undertook 648 cases. Last year this had increased to 832.

The homemakers worked more than 54,000 hours last year.

OTHER CASES

There's a "special service" available for senior citizens who can't look after themselves. In some cases people pay their own Homemakers Services fees, the Red Cross assists some and in other cases the welfare agencies foot the bills.

But the service has more value than just providing people who look after household chores.

One elderly lady felt she got value just from the presence of the homemaker. "It's not very nice to be old and alone. But having the Red Cross lady coming gives me something to look forward to. I feel much more cheerful when she's here."

One of the tougher cases the service recalls is that in which a whole family was sick and two workers, both innoculated, were assigned to the home. They worked two eight-hour shifts, used the trolley supplied by the Red Cross Loan Cupboard and served meals to the large family for nearly six weeks until the adults and older children were well and able to manage for themselves.

Another family with the mother in hospital, and the father unable to look after the two children, had a homemaker live-in for nine days.

The Red Cross paid one third of the cost of having a homemaker spent five hours a day for two years helping a multiple sclerosis victim, the mother of three children.

Some people are able to pay for the homemaker service but many are not.

Two-Rail Port Link Only Hurdle to Pact

By JOHN MIKA
Times Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO — Complex negotiations towards a huge rail-ship export contract for Fernie coal seem to be highballing towards a successful conclusion but conflicting signals flashed here today warning of a potential head-on collision.

B.C. pointed the finger at Ottawa as the chief danger but a spokesman for the mammoth Kaiser Steel Corporation obliquely hinted the company is worried the provincial government may push the de-rail button.

The differences appeared in separate interviews of Commercial Transport Minister Robert Bonner and Albert P. Heiner, vice-president in charge of public relations and traffic for Kaiser.

The two men met for several hours Wednesday to discuss Kaiser's progress in negotiating a deal to mine and ship at least 45 million tons of Fernie coal to Japan and another seven million tons to California over the next 15 years.

Mr. Bonner told reporters Wednesday evening that a "rigid and unimaginative" insistence by the federal government that the coal move over an all-Canadian rail route to the proposed Roberts Bank super-port could undermine the deal.

Mr. Bonner said B.C. still intends to stay in the picture with its $25 million plan to build a super-port but will delay final decision to wait for an official contact from the federal government outlining its $50 million plan as proposed by Transport Minister Hellyer.

He said everything now depends on Ottawa agreeing to a "two-rail link to the ocean" which would allow the Great Northern Railway to freight Fernie coal to Roberts Bank through the U.S. as an alternative to the Canadian Pacific Railway.

But this morning Mr. Heiner indicated that Kaiser feels the two-rail link proposition is vir-

Production Key To Full Parity

Cabinet Members Cautious On Equal Pay With U.S.

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Overall wage parity between Canada and the United States could cause very serious problems until productivity between the two nations is equal.

That was the initial reaction today of members of the Cabinet to the announcement from Detroit that employees of Chrysler Canada Limited will achieve wage parity with workers at the parent corporation in the U.S. by June 1, 1970.

The question was considered during a cabinet meeting this morning. But neither Prime Minister Pearson nor External Affairs Minister Paul Martin would comment on the development at this stage.

Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp said he wanted to study the terms of settlement before making comments. However he said overall wage parity between the two countries was a practical impossibility until productivity was equal.

COMPETITION

Trade and Commerce Minister Robert Winters observed that productivity has been lagging behind the U.S. for some time. Anything that contributes to a widening of productivity disparity would hurt Canada's competitive position in world trade.

The onus is on the Canadian management of Chrysler and on labor to make sure they can offset the wage increases by improved productivity, he suggested.

Finance Minister Sharp in an address in Quebec City Wednesday night said one of the reasons why prices and costs have been increasing rapidly is that in recent years the increase in our productivity has not been satisfactory. He said this disappointing increase has not been due to insufficient demand nor is it the result of inadequate investment.

Industry Minister C. M. Drury expressed the hope today there would be some relationship between the increase in wages with an increase in productivity.

the bargaining with General Motors Corp. in the weeks to come. Of the big three of the auto industry, GM has yet to settle with the UAW.

George Burt, UAW Canadian director, said in Windsor he is confident there will be no difficulties in getting wage parity from Ford of Canada and General Motors.

He said the Ford Motor Co. in Detroit has indicated it will meet the situation if its competitors agree to parity.

A membership meeting of Chrysler workers in Canada will be held within the next few days to vote on wage and parity terms and on lifting the Nov. 15 strike deadline so bargaining may continue for an extended period.

The average hourly straight time wage for UAW workers in the industry is $3.41. Siilled workers at Chrysler were earning 60 cents to $1.20 above this under terms of the expired contract.

Barefoot Patient Flees Hospital After X-Rays

A man is in good condition in the psychiatric ward of Royal Jubilee Hospital today after he fled barefoot from the X-ray department Wednesday night.

The man had been brought to the hospital with possible head injuries following a traffic accident.

He leapt from the table after the X-ray technician had taken some pictures, and ran from the building.

Police and orderlies searched the dark grounds and finally spotted him running up a fire escape. He was apprehended and taken to the psychiatric ward.

. . . CARDINAL

Observers wondered if the action by Cardinal Leger would set a precedent for more resignations by leading prelates to do field work in developing nations.

The resignation was the first by a cardinal for such a purpose in many years.

Cardinal Leger was a leading advocate in the 1962-65 Vatican ecumenical council for basic changes in the Church.

During the council he formulated a view of marriage that placed marital love on an equal plane of importance with child-bearing, this opened the way to a new look at the theology of marriage that pointed toward acceptance of birth control measures.

The special commission that reported on birth control to Pope Paul gave great weight to this view and recommended that the Pope allow birth control methods other than abstinence and the rhythm method. These two are still the only methods allowed by the church as Pope Paul continues to study the problem.

FOUGHT FOR POLICIES

Cardinal Leger fought long and hard to steer church policy abreast of the times while fighting materialistic modern values.

His outspoken pronouncements covered every subject from art to vice, linking the church with causes he deemed worthwhile, pitting it uncompromisingly against all that smacked of sin.

As spiritual leader of more than 2,000,000 Roman Catholics in Montreal diocese, he headed the largest archdiocese in the Commonwealth.

Like Pope Paul, Cardinal Leger probably considers himself a missionary for he has served his church abroad many times.

A tireless opponent of poverty, Cardinal Leger has led many drives to raise funds for church work and in poorer countries.

WORKED IN JAPAN

As a young priest he went to Japan in 1933 to found a seminary at Fukuoka, on the southern island of Kyushu.

Cardinal Leger's six years in Japan were part of the training that led to his unexpected selection in 1950 as an archbishop and his elevation to the College of Cardinals three years later at the age of 48. He was one of the youngest men to don the red hat.

This particular system left one-third of an inch of rain at Vancouver airport.

Another Pacific system now east of the weather ship will continue rapidly eastward and will spread continuous rain into the lower mainland late this afternoon. Temperatures will remain the same.

tually agreed as a compromise and the only substantial obstacle left in the way of completing the Japanese negotiations is an assurance that no one will delay development of the super-port.

The negotiations now "impinge on Roberts Bank being ready for first shipments in early 1970," he said.

Mr. Heiner revealed the CPR recently offered a "competitive rate and service to Roberts Bank" which Kaiser feels will allow a mutually satisfactory compromise splitting the rail hauling business between the CPR and CNR.

And, without referring specifically to Mr. Bonner's comments, Mr. Heiner warned that public controversy posing the problem as a fight over rail traffic could "seriously harm" current talks.

The two men also differed on the size of the contracts involved.

SIX MILLION

Mr. Bonner said he believes Kaiser will ultimately sign a 15-year contract for exporting six million tons annually to Japan at a price "in the range of $13.50 a ton."

His estimate would place the gross value at about $1.2 billion.

But Mr. Heiner emphasized that "as far as Kaiser is concerned we are only working on the basis of three million tons a year to Japan and we're hoping to move between 300,000 and 500,000 tons a year to our plant at Fontana as well, possibly through Roberts Bank."

He said there was "absolutely not a shred of proof" to suggestions that Kaiser has financial or managerial involvement with the Great Northern.

UNIT TRAINS

Mr. Heiner said Kaiser may ship directly by unit trains to its Fontana plant 45 miles east of Los Angeles. Although the distance is 1,800 miles he said this could be cheaper than using the Roberts Bank facility.

He would not comment on prices but, if $13.50 is correct, the Kaiser negotiations would have a gross value of about $583 million.

Mr. Heiner said Kaiser has an agreement with Crows Nest Industries Limited under which it can "take over all their coal interests at Fernie" Jan. 30 if the Japanese export contract is signed by then.

He said in that event, Kaiser would invest "between $50 and $60 million over a period of two years" at Fernie, developing a strip-mining operation and more facilities for cleaning, storing and loading the coal.

(In addition, CNIL plans to begin construction soon of a provincially authorized $12 million 60-mile spur line from Fernie to the GNR mainline in Montana.)

Mr. Heiner said the recent CPR offer was "definitely" better than the previous offers which have been quoted at $4.50 a ton hauling charge and his company feels "100 per cent assured that the CPR is being extremely co-operative."

He said the CPR has "definitely agreed to provide service to Roberts Bank" rather than to its own terminal in Port Moody from which the CPR will ship 13 million tons of Alberta coal to Japan over the next 10 years under a recent contract it made with Coleman Collieries Ltd.

FERNIE COAL

In turn, Mr. Heiner said Kaiser has assured the CPR it would be given part of the Fernie coal traffic.

He said Kaiser feels it is essential to have the two real alternatives to protect itself but he declined to comment when asked if the scheme could founder on a refusal of this concession.

"While we have premised our whole approach on dual rail service, and we feel it is in the interests of Canada, too, to have an alternate route to the sea, if this question becomes a burning controversy in the press it would only hurt the negotiations," he said.

Mr. Heiner added Kaiser uses $2,000,000 tons of coking coal a year at Fontana supplied from its own mines in Utah and Mexico.

He said those will remain the company's main sources of coke supply and the Fernie coal will be used "not as a replacement but as a supplementary source of coke to blend with that coming from our other two mines."

NEW TALKS IN RHODESIA

British Commonwealth Secretary George Thomson and Prime Minister Ian Smith of the breakaway state of Rhodesia and their advisers met in a closely-guarded police station in a fresh attempt to bridge the gap between Salisbury and London.

Smith declined to comment on whether progress was achieved at Wednesday's talks, believed to be the longest Smith has had with a visiting British envoy since Rhodesia's unilateral declaration of independence Nov. 11, 1965.

He said recovery would be a challenge because winds were gusting to nearly 30 miles an hour and seas were rough in the planned landing zone.

But no matter what happened the remainder of the mission, the Saturn V had taken a huge step toward its development as a man-to-the-moon booster and as the "ultimate" rocket for U.S. exploration of space for at least the next two decades.

With its engines generating the combined power of more than 500 jet fighter planes, the Saturn V thundered into the sky in the most spectacular launching in the 17-year history of Cape Kennedy.

Emblazoned on the brilliant white sides were the American flag and the letters USA.

Tens of thousands of observers throughout the Cape area watched awestruck as the massive 36-storey-tall rocket rode a pillar of fire more than 500 feet long across the sky and sent an unearthly howl rolling across the land.

The rocket's more than 1,000,000 parts meshed, pulsed and interacted flawlessly, and all three stages—two of them never flown before—ignited like clockwork during the 11-minute boost phase to push the record satellite into orbit 115 miles above the earth.

Included in the weight of the orbiting craft are the Apollo 4 moon ship; a large metal dummy representing the Lunar Module that two astronauts one day will ride to the surface of the moon, and the still-attached third stage of the Saturn V.

Total weight of the orbiting vehicle was 280,036 pounds.

The previous record-holder was another Apollo craft and attached rocket stage which weighed 58,537 pounds. They were launched in 1966 by a smaller Saturn I rocket. The heaviest payload orbited by the Russians was the 26,900-pound Proton 2 satellite launched in 1965.

The flight plan today was planned to simulate the early phases of an Apollo manned lunar landing mission.

Apollo 4 was to parachute to a landing in the Pacific 522 miles northwest of Hawaii, where defence department recovery forces awaited.

Developing Nations Bid For Aid Hike

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (Reuters)—A mission from developing nations will visit North America soon to ask support for their demands for better terms in international trade and aid, informed sources said here Wednesday.

The sources said the mission, to be led by former Pakistani representative to the United Nations, Syed Amjad Ali, would meet U.S. President Johnson and other high U.S. officials and United Nations Secretary-General U Thant.

No date was given for the visit.

After visiting the U.S., the mission will go on to Ottawa for similar talks with Canadian leaders, the sources said.

The mission is one of five formed by the "77 group" of developing countries at an October conference in Algiers, to bring advance publicity to industrialized nations on economic demands to be presented at a UN conference on trade and development meeting in New Delhi in February.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP)—Rapeseed prices showed broad advances in trade today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange following early irregularity.

In the background of rapeseed trade were advances in soybean prices at Chicago and overseas support. Hedging sales in both rapeseed and flax were light reflecting producers hesitancy to deliver.

Flax prices were lower.

'Merger Detrimental To Public Interest'

OTTAWA (CP)—The Resrictive Practices Commission has found the activities of two firms manufacturing and selling cast iron soil pipes and fittings in Western Canada o be a "merger detrimental to the public."

The Commission report, released by Registrar-General Turner, recommends that Anthes Imperial Ltd. be required to divest itself of all interest in Associated Foundry Ld. of Vancouver and that the two companies refrain from arrangements to restrict competition.

Columbia Rerouted At Dam Site

REVELSTOKE (CP) — The Columbia River at Mica dam site, 85 miles north of here, has been rerouted for more than half a mile, the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority has announced.

The diversion, through two concrete-lined tunnels 45 feet in diameter and 3,200 feet long, was made following construction of four dikes across the river that will later form the basis for upstream and downstream cofferdams.

Fill material will render the cofferdams watertight, enabling engineers to drain the pool between the two structures and permit excavation for the main dam.

The cofferdams will be completed before the spring runoff next May.

About 2,800,000 cubic yards of material will be excavated to a depth of 155 feet to bedrock before construction of the main dam begins. Mica will be more than 80[illegible] feet high from bedrock to crest when completed in 1973.

Inco moved up 1½ to 117 and Texaco 1 to 31.

CPR dropped 1⅛ to 60¼. Jefferson Lake and Famous Players slipped 1 each to 57½ and 40½.

Among base metals, Denison was down 80½ and Hollinger ⅜ to 25⅝. Rio Algom picked up ½ to 35.

In western oils, Scurry-Rainbow dropped 1⅛ to 40⅞. Dome Petroleum moved up 1¼ to 51¾.

AT NEW YORK a rise of about two points by Chrysler showed the way for autos and steels.

News of Chrysler's tentative labor agreement with the United Auto Workers and the latest earnings statements which showed favorable comparisons against the year-ago third quarter helped sentiment.

AT MONTREAL gains and losses were about evenly matched in trading today.

International Nickel gained two points to 117¼. Hudson Bay Mining tumbled two points to 57, erasing Wednesday's fractional advance, and Cominco and Husky Oil each dropped about ½ point.

CPR fell ½ in active trading of 13,000 shares and Canada Cement and Dominion Textile were shaded.

AT LONDON the half-point increase in bank rate had little effect on stock markets today. Gilts which were already lower ahead of the news, fell further after the announcement.

Canadians also were mainly lower despite the further improvement in Canadian markets. Firm exceptions were provided by Trans-Canada Pipe, Inco and Hollinger.

Leading industrials generally were narrowly irregular. Bowater recorded a small gain. Toronto and Nova Scotia were firm in Canadian banks.

AT VANCOUVER mines were up and oils and industrials mixed in brisk trading before noon today.

Western Exploration led the trading with over 186,000 shares. Western went up .21 cents to .88, a new high. It had reached .94 earlier in the day.

Dynasty and Granduc were both up .10, Dynasty to $7.20 and Granduc to $6.35.

In the oils Peace gained .02 to .31.

Neon in the industrials went up to $9.62, a new high, but settled back to $9.50 for a gain of .25.

CN Operation Impresses U.K. Gov't

LONDON (CP) — The Labor government was reported today to be highly impressed with the operations of Canadian National Railways and likely will seek some guidance from this publicly-owned body on corporate policy that could affect the future of the debt-clogged British railways system.

A spokesman added, however, that while the British transport department is keenly interested in Canadian operations, there is no question of offering the chairmanship of British railways to N. J. MacMillan who heads the CNR.

John Morris, parliamentary secretary to the transport ministry, flew to Montreal late last month to confer with MacMillan and other CNR officials. There was speculation in the British press today that in the course of those talks, MacMillan was offered the chairmanship of British Railways and turned it down.

The spokesman said that while it is true that Sir Stanley Raymond, 54-year-old chairman of British Railways, is being asked to take another job, it is not true that the British government is looking for a possible replacement in Canada.

Hydro Hopes To Avoid Rates Boost

VANCOUVER (CP) — Despite rising costs, B.C. Hydro hopes to avoid raising prices this year, co-chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum says.

"It will be a miracle if rates don't go up this year," Dr. Shrum said at a service club meeting. "And we expect to perform a miracle."

In an interview later, he said B.C. Hydro was being squeezed by rising costs in wages and equipment.

"But we're hoping to effect economies to offset these," he said.

Dr. Shrum said costs of the Peace River dam project had increased by $70,000,000, but this would be offset by extra revenue due to power production starting in 1973 instead of 1983, as originally planned.

Labor Income Scores Gain

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor income is running 10 per cent higher this year than a year ago, the bureau of statistics has reported.

It said paid workers received an estimated $2 638,000,000 in August, nearly 1 per cent more than in July and 9.3 per cent more than in August last year.

Cumulatively, paid workers received $20,150,000,000 in the first eight months of 1967, 10 per cent more than the 1966 cumulative total of $18,312,000,000.

INDUSTRIALS

Exchanges Oppose Tax Report

TORONTO (CP) — Implementing the Carter Commission report on taxation would lead to a shrinkage of Canada's mining and petroleum industries and withdrawal of foreign investment in Canada's dividend-paying companies, the Toronto and Montreal stock exchanges say in a brief on the report.

In a submission to Finance Minister Sharp made public Wednesday the exchanges say that implementing the Carter proposals — which, among other things call for a capital gains tax and increased tax allowances on dividend-paying companies — would "discourage savings generally," and "work to break up skilled pools of capital currently available to Canada."

The exchanges said the Commission's proposal to integrate corporate and personal income taxes would increase the flow of Canadian savings into stocks, but increase borrowing costs for small companies and individuals because of the consequent lessening of money available for debt financing.

Merger of U.K. Electrical Giants Near

LONDON (AP) — Britain's giant General Electric Co. today claimed victory in its £160,000,000 ($480,000,000) takeover battle for control of Associated Electrical Industries.

GEC banker Hill Samuel reported that shareholders accounting for 48 per cent of the AEI capital had accepted the bid.

Prime Minister Wilson's labor government had given its backing to a merger of the country's two biggest electrical companies into a single group with assets or more than £300,000,000 ($900,000,000).

'Merger Detrimental To Public Interest'

OTTAWA (CP)—The Resrictive Practices Commission has found the activities of two firms manufacturing and selling cast iron soil pipes and fittings in Western Canada o be a "merger detrimental to the public."

The Commission report, released by Registrar-General Turner, recommends that Anthes Imperial Ltd. be required to divest itself of all interest in Associated Foundry Ld. of Vancouver and that the two companies refrain from arrangements to restrict competition.

MINES

Columbia Rerouted At Dam Site

REVELSTOKE (CP) — The Columbia River at Mica dam site, 85 miles north of here, has been rerouted for more than half a mile, the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority has announced.

The diversion, through two concrete-lined tunnels 45 feet in diameter and 3,200 feet long, was made following construction of four dikes across the river that will later form the basis for upstream and downstream cofferdams.

Fill material will render the cofferdams watertight, enabling engineers to drain the pool between the two structures and permit excavation for the main dam.

The cofferdams will be completed before the spring runoff next May.

About 2,800,000 cubic yards of material will be excavated to a depth of 155 feet to bedrock before construction of the main dam begins. Mica will be more than 800 feet high from bedrock to crest when completed in 1973.

Grain Cargoes From B.C. Ports In 40% Decline

VANCOUVER (CP) — Grain shipments from B.C. ports for the first three monts of the crop year are down 40 per cent from the same period last year.

The Vancouver Merchants Exchange says the biggest drop has been in shipments to the Orient.

Last year 14,200,000 bushels of wheat were shipped to China and Japan in October. Shipments to the same countries this year have totalled about 6,000,000 bushels.

The season total for all B.C. ports is 27,800,000, compared with 48,000,000 bushels last year.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP)—Rapeseed prices showed broad advances in trade today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange following early irregularity.

In the background of rapeseed trade were advances in soybean prices at Chicago and overseas support. Hedging sales in both rapeseed and flax were light reflecting producers hesitancy to deliver.

Flax prices were lower.

Lakehead prices for Class Two, IWA and Domestic wheat all were down ⅛ cent.

CHICAGO (AP)— Soybean futures advanced about one cent on the board of trade today.

Other grains, after an advance of about ¾, declined and closed virtually unchanged.

The principal influence in the movement of prices was an announcement that the U.S. government would make another move to stimulate an increase in prices farmers get for their grains.

Arthur Mayse

Not so long ago, the operator of a cottage string would cross his eyes and spit at the mere mention of campers. By degrees, however, a change of attitude is being forced upon the professional hosts who ply their trade in holiday country. Quite a few have added campgrounds of a sort to their layouts; and this week in Victoria, Ernest Shauer, newly-elected president of British Columbia Motels and Resorts Association, suggested an even warmer wooing to members gathered for their annual convention.

By urging that camper needs receive much more attention, Mr. Shauer placed himself in approximately the position of a cattleman who would open the rangeland to sheep. I respect his courage no less than his good sense.

I also think that private campgrounds of the sort he suggests — comfortable oases with laundries, well-equipped washrooms, lounge areas and playgrounds—would be very well patronized.

While I question the assumption that campers in general avoid motels because they can't afford the rates, it's true that some are unable to cough up $150 or more for a 10-day vacation stay.

For these, if they are that way inclined, Mr. Shauer's improved camps of the future would provide an ideal compromise between cottage life and tenting in its more primitive aspects.

Unfortunately, too many of today's private campsites are anything but ideal.

The space they occupy is more often than not a second-rate area located back of the motel proper. It is woefully exposed, and the only efforts of improvement are those provided by the campers themselves.

These grounds are often crowded to a point where tents and trailers are ranked shoulder to shoulder and such washroom facilities as they offer would shame a pig.

(In fairness, camping couples who let their children behave as they would never be permitted to do in a home bathroom contribute to that last condition.)

We turn now to a camper of another sort; and whether his roof be of canvas or metal, he will be no more pleased that I was with the speaker's claim that "with good facilities, the camper can be upgraded out of the B.C. government campsites."

The upgrading need is in the quality of such private campsites as we possess. As for the government camping parks, nine times out of ten they offer the best camping deal in their area, and my only criticism of them is that they are far too few.

They serve a camper of a breed that hasn't the slightest wish for a fancy layout. As long as he's allowed to, he will remain stubbornly aloof from such blandishments as the motel trade may offer in hope of extracting his often-plentiful dollars.

He wants a fair degree of privacy, which practically all our government parks offer him. He likes a campfire and a sufficiency of trees, and the strange fellow actually prefers to leave most of home's comforts behind him.

I wouldn't say that he's precisely roughing it, but he has achieved the basic living he prefers.

We still have a great many campers of this sort. I remember one husband and wife team from Oregon who were able to pay their way in any motel or resort, but simply didn't want that kind of a holiday.

They had a splendid outfit, they knew how to handle bad weather, and they enjoyed every minute of their Vancouver Island stay.

The site where they raised their tent was in a large, well-kept private ground that also provides furnished cottages, plus low-rental one-room cabanas to which you bring your own cooking gear and bedding, and a batch of trailer and tent locations.

Add boat rentals and launching, and you have an all-round operation that pays off even in seasons when many a motel man is dolefully contemplating his vacancies.

WHAT'S MISSING? Nothing really. It's a search for knowledge by students in the junior botany class of Dr. Alan Austin, biologist at the University of Victoria. They prowled Ogden Point breakwater in a field excursion to gather marine algae samples. With low tides between 9 p.m. and midnight at this time of year, flashlights and lamps are a must. Specimens go back to the lab for a closer look. Course includes instruction on zone levels where seaweed is found, its life history and economic importance. Dr. Austin has been conducting detailed study of local inter-tidal vegetation for 2½ years. (J. J. Philion photo.)

'Grave' Challenge Faces New Board

The new district will be responsible for all future hospital planning and financing.

Reeve Curtis, who is also the chairman of the Regional District, assumed his new position shortly after being presented with the letters patent by deputy minister of the department of health services and hospital insurance D. M. Cox.

Making the presentation he called for the fullest co-operation between the new super-hospital board and other levels of government.

"I have no doubt that this board will function well," said Reeve Curtis. "But I also feel that I must say that the board will speak out most forcefully if it feels that any particular level of government is sloughing off any of its responsibilities."

GRAVE CHALLENGES

Mayor Hugh Stephen, a director on the new district board along with all other existing members of the reginal district, said grave challenges faced the new organization.

"I think we realize what those challenges are," he said. "We must make all members of the public aware of our determination to tackle this (hospital) problem and solve it. We shall face up to our responsibilities and the program which is undoubtedly going to cost us many millions of dollars."

One of the first tasks facing the new hospital district will be the formation of a technical advisory committee formed from hospital staffers throughout the area.

LIMIT COMMITTEE

The advisory committee will be limited to approximately 12 representatives selected by individual hospitals.

Although both the Regional District Board and the Regional Hospital District Board are comprised of the same executive and membership, they function as entirely separate bodies. bodies.

Regional Board Elections Set December 9

The annual elections for the Regional District Board and the Regional Hospital District Board will be held Dec. 9 in unorganized areas of Greater Victoria.

Nominations for positions on the directorate of both boards will close Nov. 27.

Directors from organized areas are appointed by their various municipal councils and must be duly elected council members.

Voting powers of the directors vary according to the population of the community they serve.

Victoria and Saanich each seat several members on the board and each municipality has a total of 12 votes giving the two major areas the bulk of the voting power.

RESTRAINT ASKED ON RENTS

The addition was made in a brief corridor interview just before a scheduled cabinet meeting.

Asked by a reporter whether there were any developments in his call last month for voluntary controls to combat inflation, the premier indicated there weren't but then added "I especially request landlords not to increase rents throughout this province".

Little Polly-Ann Will Visit 35,000 City Homes on Friday

Polly-Ann, the youngest victim of TB found in B.C. through an Operation Doorstep survey this year, is visiting 35,000 Victoria homes Friday.

Christmas Seals support the fight against tuberculosis, and seek out other crippling chest diseases. The campaign is sponsored by the B.C. Tuberculosis-Christmas Seal Society.

In opening the campaign which runs between now and Christmas, president Kenneth Vaughan-Birch, who was elected to the post in Victoria earlier this year, and who is Vancouver's city traffic engineer, stated that such projects as Operation Doorstep, continuing medical education, and the respiratory disease section at University of B.C., all depend on the success of the campaign.

In announcing the start of the campaign Mr. Vaughan-Birch also called for the support from all stores which normally have a Santa Claus, to make certain he has a tuberculin skin test and chest X-ray, before greeting his thousands of young visitors.

Victoria resident Mrs. M. Alice Kimmitt is honorary life member of the B.C. Tuberculosis-Christmas Seal Society and is a society director. Campaign headquarters will again be at 190A Fort Street, 382-4422.

Municipalities To Share Tax On New Court

Formula to Cover Only One Building

The four core municipalities will share a $4,000 tax bill for the new Family and Childrens' Court building now under construction.

The pledge to pay their tax share was made Wednesday afternoon by Reeve Allan Cox, Oak Bay; Reeve Hugh Curtis, Saanich, and Reeve Ray Bryant, Esquimalt.

It was Reeve Cox who suggested the compromise gentleman's agreement after Mayor Hugh Stephen sought endorsation of a resolution making it possible for individual municipalites to levy taxes against property owned by the Regional District Board.

The new court comes under the jurisdiction of the regional district but is being built expressly to serve the four core municipalities.

While winning unanimous support for the general principle of taxes being levied against regional district property, several board members expressed concern at the ramifications of a general endorsement without prior detailed study.

ALSO FOR PARKS?

Reeve Jim Cumming, North Saanich, said he definitely supported Mayor Stephen's suggestion.

"But I don't think it can just apply to buildings," he said. "In North Saanich and in general along the Saanich Peninsula we are being hit quite hard by the acquisition of regional parks. As soon as that happens the property goes off our tax rolls."

"I find myself in the difficult position of agreeing completely with Mayor Stephen and yet having to urge caution," he said. "The ramifications are great and I think we should study the entire problem before passing a final decision. And yet I agree fully with the principle that Victoria should not lose the taxes on the new court building which is being built for, and will be used by, all four municipalities."

Woman Injured In House Fire

Tried To Fight Blaze

An elderly baby-sitter was taken to hospital for observation today after an explosive house fire at 1153 Pembroke.

Mrs. Mary Modeste, 73, of Duncan, was incoherent and suffering shock. Her hair was singed when she tried to fight the fire with a bucket of water.

The fire destroyed an upstairs bedroom in the old wood-frame shingled house. Flames were shooting through the upstairs window as four city fire trucks arrived at about 11:20 a.m.

EXTENSIVE DAMAGE

Firemen were required to chip through sections of the roof to douse the flames and damage is expected to be heavy.

Mrs. Modeste was taken to the home of a neighbor, Mrs. R. C. Warren, then to Royal Jubilee.

Mrs. Warren said Mrs. Modeste had come from Duncan to care for the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Morrell while Mrs. Morrell, Mrs. Modeste's daughter, was in hospital. The Morrell's pre-school-age son was the only other person in the house when the fire broke out.

SMELLED SMOKE

The child is in care of Mrs. Warren.

Fire officials said that when Mrs. Modeste smelled smoke she opened the door of the upstairs room and found it blazing. She tried to fight the fire with a pail of water.

It was not immediately known who turned in the alarm or how the fire started.

Mumps Top Disease; 23 Cases in Saanich

Mumps took over in October as the leading communicable disease in the Greater Victoria area.

Senior metro health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread said the 37 cases reported during the month was slightly higher than usual but that there was no cause for alarm.

Saanich reported 23 of the 37 cases, Esquimalt 10. Oak Bay had one mumps case, Central Saanich two and Sidney one.

Number two disease in the area during the month was infectious hepatitis with 30 cases reported, half of them in Victoria.

"Of the 15 cases in Victoria proper, eight were in Victoria West among residents living close to the Gorge," Dr. Whitbread said. "The others were scattered throughout the city."

Esquimalt had six cases, Saanich four, Langford-Metchosin-Colwood three and Oak Bay and North Saanich each one.

Other communicable diseases reported in the monthly Metropolitan Health Board statistics were: scarlet fever, seven cases; streptococal sore throat, nine; chickenpox, 10; measles, two; rubella, eight; salmonella, one, and viral meningitis, one.

Ferry Work Approved

A communication from B.C. Ferry Authority to B.C. Federal Employees' Union at 3 p.m. Wednesday brought relief from threats of an impending ferry tie-up.

Canadian Labor Congress spokesman Tom Gooderham said the message, from ferry manager M. F. Aldous confirmed that the B.C. cabinet has approved new working arrangements.

Earlier Wednesday Mr. Gooderham had warned that unless response came from the cabinet soon a work stoppage could result on ferries connecting Vancouver Island and the mainland.

The recommendations approved by the cabinet had earlier been agreed upon by the ferry authority and the 700-member ferry employees union.

Ask The Times

Q. Why is there a letter V instead of the letter U in the word "building" on the Metropolitan Building on Yates Street? P.G.

A. Often the lettering on modern buildings imitates the style of lettering on old Roman buildings. In the classical alphabet of Rome there was a V sound and a U sound but only one symbol, the letter V, for both of them. Consequently in old Roman lettering there would be no letter U, only the V.

GREAT-GRANDMOTHER TOP HAM IN B.C.

Her Hand 'Taps' Many Friendships

By BRUCE YEMEN

A departing son's challenge to his mother back in 1939 has led to a 78-year-old Victoria great-grandmother being named British Columbia's amateur radio "ham of the year."

Mrs. Freda Muskett, 1570 Kisber Ave., was voted the honor last week by the B.C. Amateur Radio Association at its annual meeting in Vancouver. She won it on the first ballot—a rarity for the award.

Mrs. Muskett, a tiny, lively woman who was born in Victoria and has lived all but 22 years of her life here, recalls the challenge of her son Arthur when he left home 28 years ago for the Eldorado Gold Mine at Great Bear Lake where he was to be radio operator.

SIX-MONTH TARGET

Although she had no amateur radio experience and was faced with assembling her own radio kit and learning morse code to get her radio licence, her son gave her a target of just six months to get on the air so they could keep in close touch.

"I made it in three months," Mrs. Muskett smiles proudly, adding that in those days it took a lot of scrounging, trading and improvising to gather all the parts for a ham radio. Then, as now, she had the help of fellow radio enthusiasts.

FREDA MUSKETT . . . "key to happiness"

But Mrs. Muskett put her Morse code proficiency of 20 words per minute to good use during the war, helping airmen increase their code speed.

She still gives regular weekly code classes in her home and also makes it available for Victoria hams who need workshop space.

The "ham of the year" award came as a complete surprise to Mrs. Muskett—she didn't know that Victoria amateur radio club president Owen Evans was going to nominate her and she "couldn't believe it" when she won.

With encouragement of club members she is currently studying for an advanced radio licence which will enable her to use voice transmission. Using the code she has made contact with hams across Canada, the U.S. and in Australia, the Soviet Union and other countries.

She has been off the air for the past year because of "ITV"—interference from a nearby television set. Newly moved to another home, she hopes to be back on the air in a week or two.

Mrs. Muskett is looking forward to renewing radio contact with her son Arthur, who now lives in Powell River and is the only other ham in the family of four children, 15 grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren.

A son, George, was killed overseas during the Second World War. Mrs. Muskett is the widow of H. J. S. Muskett, who served as private secretary to five consecutive lieutenant-governors of B.C. in the first quarter of the century.

'WONDERFUL'

B.C.'s ham of the year has no hesitiation in recommending amateur radio as a hobby "to everybody" — regardless of age and particularly to people whose families have grown up and left home.

"It's wonderful — full of friendship," she says, and agrees that nobody of normal intelligence should be discouraged by the technical challenge of the hobby.

The local club will present Mrs. Muskett — who goes by the call-letters VE7TH — with her award on Dec. 8 at its annual dinner at Holyrood House.
